Secretaries, School Board Hit Salary Impasse

Secretaries and clerks have declared an impasse in their salary negotiations with Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59.

Representatives of the Secretary's Association, which has been bargaining with the administration on salaries for the approximately 135 secretaries and clerks in the district, appeared before the board of education Monday night to ask the board to join the negotiations.

The secretaries have been negotiating since last spring with Albeon Waltman, assistant superintendent for personnel, and have reached an impasse, the representatives said.

In a letter presented to the board and signed by most of the secretaries, the association asked that a board member be present at the next negotiation session. The board did not immediately respond to the request.

THE MAIN ISSUE in the talks is salaries, although other issues also are being discussed, according to Ann Buchanan, secretary to Supt. James Erviti and a member of the negotiating team.

"We didn't seem to be getting any place, so we thought we'd go to the board," she said. "Basically, negotiations are at a standstill on money."

The secretaries and clerks in the district work either for a full calendar year or for a school year and either full or part-time. Included in the group are the library-learning center clerks who man the libraries in the district's 20 schools.

Pay scale for all the employees ranges from $1.89 an hour to $4.01 an hour, according to Waltman. The pay increases are granted as an employee gains seniority.

All secretaries and clerks in the district now are being paid under last year's salaries because of the wage-price freeze.

Negotiations are also continuing between the district and the other major group of non-certificated personnel, custodians. These talks were also under way when the wage freeze took effect.

This year is the first secretaries and clerks have negotiated with the administration on salaries.

Measles May Cut School Fund

An outbreak of measles may stand between Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 and $200,000.

In a report to the board of education Monday night, Supt. James Erviti said the district may turn out to be eligible to file a supplemental claim for state aid despite a drop-off in enrollment growth, if average daily attendance stays high through the month of September.

DIST. 59 SCHOOLS

Arlington Heights: Juliette Low.
Des Plaines: Brentwood, Devonshire, Albert Einstein and High Ridge Knolls.
Elk Grove Village: Adm. Richard E. Byrd, Clearmont, Daniel Cook, Grove, Mark Hookins, Lively, Ridge, Rupley, Sal Creek and Grant Wood.
Mount Prospect: Dempster, Forest View, Robert Frost, Holmes and John Jay.

However, anything that might cut down September's attendance, including an outbreak of a childhood disease such as measles, could drop the district below the level needed to file the supplemental claim, Erviti said.

The district's ability to file the claim will depend "on the presence or absence of 10 youngsters," according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative service.

Because enrollment has dropped below the level projected in the budget, he added, the district will definitely lose about $45,000 in state aid and will be able to cut expenditures for teachers by from

To order to be eligible for about $200,000 through the supplemental claim for state aid, the district's average daily attendance ADA through the month of September must increase by 2 per cent over the ADA for the best six months of last year.

THE DISTRICT'S enrollment dropped below the 2 per cent rate of growth this year, and last week district officials believed that would cut ADA enough that they would not be able to file the supplemental claim.

However, Perry said the district will be eligible for the claim "if attendance patterns hold as they have in the past."

Perry said ordinarily a district can get the 2 per cent increase in ADA fairly easily because September attendance is so much better than the rest of the year.

Erviti told the board because enrollment is below projections, the board will also be able to cut back on the number of teachers planned for this year.

The district planned for a teaching staff of 547 in the budget and, by the beginning of school, had hired about 541 persons. Now, Erviti said, the district will probably end up with 537 teachers to maintain class loads as they were last school year.

HE SAID THE reduction in the number of teachers will be made by replacing any who resign during the year with "contingency teachers" who were hired, but not assigned to permanent classrooms while the district waited for final enrollment patterns to emerge.

He said the district should have 538 teachers by the middle of October because of normal turn-over. He said the reduction in the staff will mean a saving of $80,000 to $100,000 out of the amount budgeted for teachers.

GLENN AND MARSHA Busse operate their vegetable stand on Landmeier Road in Elk Grove Village every day from the spring thaw through fall. But in three years their land will have factories on it.

Legislators To Discuss Parochial

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, will air their views on the controversial issue at a town meeting scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church, 1903 E. Euclid Ave., Arlington Heights.

Organizers of the meeting are also hoping to get a representative of the Illinois Catholic Conference to appear with the three lawmakers.

Schlickman, together with State Sen. Robert E. Cherry, D-Chicago, was a co-sponsor of the parochial bill which was passed by the general assembly but vetoed by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

In addition to the position statements by the three legislators, the audience will be encouraged to ask questions and express its opinions.

THE GOVERNOR rejected the bill with an amendatory veto, a special power given him under the new state constitution.

He has since redrafted a parochial proposal which he believes to be constitutional and sent it to the legislators. The bill is expected to be reconsidered by the general assembly this fall.

Mrs. Chapman has a mixed voting record on the parochial issue. She voted against a 1969 bill, in favor of the 1970 purchase of services bill and against the 1971 proposal.

She explained that her objection to the Cherry-Schlickman bill stemmed chiefly from the fact that the legislation would have aided both accredited and non-accredited schools.

Graham has been a foe of aid to non-public schools.

The Illinois Catholic Conference has worked actively in support of parochial.

IN A RECENT church letter to members of the First United Methodist Church, Rev. Charles S. Jarvis said the Illinois Council of Churches has called for a referendum on the constitutionality of parochial. The referendum would be in the form of a vote on an amendment to the state constitution to lift the prohibition against tax support of church-sponsored schools.

"The current procedures of seeking evasive actions to do what our state constitution says is not to be done does harm to the people's confidence in our constitutional processes," Jarvis said.

Recent Supreme Court decisions striking down parochial bills in Pennsylvania and Rhode Island have posed a threat to other states' efforts to aid non-public schools.

'Spanking Judge's Talk Is For Public

The local council of the Knights of Columbus in Elk Grove Village has invited the public to attend tonight's speech by the "spanking judge."

Tom King, a council member from Queen of the Rosary Catholic Church, encouraged parents to hear Judge William J. Obermiller of Whiting, Ind., who because of his unusual tactics with youngsters, is known as the spanking judge.

The talk will be at 9 p.m. in the Village Hall, 901 Wellington Ave.

Cuban Loves His New Home —America

by JERRY THOMAS

"I don't mean to sound more the American than the man who was born here, but maybe because it is my new country I can appreciate it more," said Rafael Garcia.

Garcia, who entered America as a vacationing Cuban 14 years ago, has never returned to the country and family he left as a young man. Today he and his wife are Palatine residents and Garcia works in the Schaumburg Communication division of Motorola.

"I have no regrets now, and knew that day long ago on the City of Havana ferry that I was never to return to my country," Garcia said. "My entry was legal as long as I went back on the ferry; but I did not return and immediately lost my Cuban citizenship," Garcia said.

"As I look back now it was a beginning for me not the end," he added. Garcia remembered he did not enjoy being down to his last dollar a month after he arrived in Florida, and vowed it would never happen again.

GARCIA'S JOB with Motorola is with the International Division. He is responsible for telephone systems sales throughout Latin America. He travels almost half of the year, but this is not a problem he said since his wife Toni, an airline stewardess with Delta, travels also.

"My wife was ironically, the first stewardess involved in a Cuban hijack during a Chicago-Miami flight in 1968," said Garcia, although at the time they were not married.

"We plan our free time together and travel a great deal since Toni gets a discount," said Garcia as he talked about an Australian trip scheduled for this month.

"I am a naturalized citizen now, and think of myself as an American," Garcia laughed when explaining his slight accent did not set him apart too much. "Look at the different Americans in this country," he said.

"THAT WAS WHAT surprised me most when I first came to this country and it still does," said Garcia noting how different Americans are. "That first year just as I thought I knew 'an American' I would meet someone from another state and have to start all over again. I learned to speak English word by word like a baby," he added.

Garcia came to America without money, but had a university education and was an engineer. His first job in Florida was with the Air-Pax Co. In 1964 he met a Motorola executive who was impressed with his record and asked him to come to Chicago to work in the international division.

"My boss at Air-Pax got mad when I told him I did not know what to do. He told me he would never forgive me if I turned down Motorola's offer. He was a great man and after giving me my first chance wanted me to do better," said Garcia.

"This is the type of people that make America great," he said, adding, "If you don't make it here, you're not trying."

THE GARCIA'S BOTH love flying and Rafael holds a pilot's license. "We enjoy home projects together," said Garcia, and make the most of the time we can spend together. Gardening and decorating our house (at 452 Oriole Ct.) is fun, not work for us," he added. Another interest the two share is Rafael's ham radio operation.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Ending a bitter seven-month struggle, the Senate approved and sent to President Nixon legislation extending the draft for two years and raising military salaries across the board by a record $2.4 billion a year.

With U.S. delegation spokesmen optimistic that Washington's plan to provide seats for both Nationalist and Communist China, the United Nations General Assembly opened its 26th annual session. Diplomats from other countries, however, while predicting a close vote, did not share their confidence.

Following a 91-day declassification process, the Pentagon delivered to four congressional committees a censored version of its controversial study of the origins of the Vietnam War, intended for public distribution.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okl., urged President Nixon to nominate a woman to the Supreme Court to succeed retiring Justice Hugo Black. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., made a similar appeal Monday.

The War

Demonstrators in South Vietnam burned an effigy of President Nguyen Van Thieu and a bomb blast damaged headquarters of the pro-Thieu Confederation of Labor. The U.S. Command announced a new program for testing all U.S. servicemen in Vietnam every three months to find out whether they are using heroin or other narcotics.

The State

Prison officials believe the three prisoners who escaped from Stateville Penitentiary near Joliet during the weekend apparently had help from inside the prison. Officials said the civilian clothing worn by the convicts must have been smuggled to them from the prison store-room.

A gunman firing from an automatic rifle was killed and two policemen wounded in a shootout west of Marion, Ill., in Williamson County, after an attempted car theft alert.

James S. White, 42, purchasing agent for Paul Powell in 1964-70, pleaded innocent to charges of bribery, income tax evasion and signing false income tax returns. He faces a maximum 87 years in prison and a $190,000 fine if convicted on all three charges. His trial has been set for Dec. 20.

The World

The U.S. dollar plunged to new lows against the West German mark, the Belgian franc and the Dutch guilder in a new wave of speculation against the dollar in European money markets.

Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party and senior member of the ruling Moscow troika, visits Yugoslavia today, initiating three months of globetrotting to sell Soviet policy to statesmen from Canada to North Africa.

The Market

The stock market spent another listless day, the Dow Jones Industrial Average finishing with a loss of 1.75 to 903.40. Investors seemed uncertain as to what Phase Two of President Nixon's economic policies will entail, and were concerned about organized labor's attack on the program in general. Prices eased in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Dorothy R. Stubbs

Mrs. Dorothy R. Stubbs, 41, nee Knowles, of 1210 Crabtree Ln., Mount Prospect, died Monday in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, following a lingering illness.

White Funeral Home, Delanson, N.Y., is in charge of the funeral arrangements. Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday in the chapel of Memory Gardens Cemetery, Delanson.

Surviving are her husband, Hubert E.; four daughters, Gail, JoAnn, Lezlie and Erica Stubbs, all at home; and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Knowles of Schenectady, N.Y.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Funeral arrangements were made by Friedrichs Funeral Home, Mount Prospect.

The Almanac

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 22, the 263th day of 1971 with 100 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn.

The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this date in history:

In 1692 the last executions for witchcraft were carried out at Salem, Mass. Nineteen persons were hanged and one crushed to death that year.

In 1776 the British hanged American Revolutionary War hero and patriot Nathan Hale seconds after he uttered his immortal words: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

In 1957 a united front was established in China when the Chinese Communist party announced its support of the national government. The Communists took over Mainland China 12 years later.

In 1959 the Chicago White Sox won the American League baseball pennant for the first time in 40 years. They lost the 1950 World Series to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Bond Sale Court Test Set

It is up to the Circuit Court of Cook County to determine whether the Cook County board has the right to sell $10 million in general obligation bonds without referendum.

A Chicago attorney, Kiriakos Kanellos, filed a taxpayer's suit last week in an attempt to get the court to decide an issue on which the county has been seeking a court test.

The suit results from a County Board decision on Aug. 20 to authorize the sale of $10 million in bonds to complete remodeling work in the County Building at Clark and Randolph streets in Chicago.

County Board Pres. George Dunne added that the county had preliminary plans for the construction of mini-Civic Centers to house decentralized county government in the suburbs.

Thomas E. Brannigan, of the firm of Price, Cushman Keck & Hanin, said the taxpayer's suit — filed on behalf of all citizens of Cook County — was designed to clear up confusion about home rule powers under the new constitutions. His firm will argue the case against the County Boards.

UNDER THE new constitution, counties such as Cook County have right to sell general obligation bonds. However, the constitution does not state if a referendum is required.

Brannigan said there is a law on the books which challenges the right to sell bonds without referendum. He said the law has not been repealed.

That law reports bond sales must be preceded by referendum. Brannigan said he hopes to prove the law on the books will overrule the new Constitution's silence on the question of a referendum.

Brannigan said the county could "just sell bonds like crazy" if bonding power is granted, and said the current request for $10 million in bonds was a "drop in the bucket."

The suit names Dunne, the other 14 members of the County Board, and Edward Barrett, county clerk, as defendants.

Panel Moves To Update Rules Of County Board

A committee of the Cook County Board moved yesterday to update the board's rules for carrying out the public's business.

The rules committee unanimously approved an ordinance which changes and establishes procedures for running a meeting, setting up committees and allowing members of the public to speak at board meetings.

Mrs. J. Hynek of Evanston, president of the League of Women Voters of Cook County, asked the public be allowed at the end of meetings to address the board.

County Board Pres. George Dunne then moved that members of the public be allowed to address the board if they submit their names to the secretary before the meeting. The amendment to the revised ordinance won unanimous approval.

COMR. JOHN TOUTY, chairman of the rules committee, explained one reason for the rules changes was to permit the board to develop some of its own rules in line with home rule power granted by the new Illinois Constitution.

He explained the ordinance included the dropping of two standing committees, on Tax Delinquency and Civil Service, because they did not handle enough business.

Daniel Coman, administrative assistant to Dunne, explained early in the hearing that state statutes do not define all of the board's activities.

In answer to a question from Anne Evans of Des Plaines, former Con-Con delegate and League of Women Voters member, Coman explained the board's rules were first adopted in the 1930s and were updated several years ago.

The new rules, which must be approved by the full board, set regular meeting dates, procedures for special meetings, order of business and the procedure to follow when bids are opened.

The only persons to testify were members of the League of Women Voters. After the hearing, Dunne praised them for their interest and involvement.

Cop Sharpe Nabs A 'Pen Pal'

Never borrow a pen from a policeman.

Off-duty Wheeling Policeman Bill Sharpe loaned a pen to a man in a food store Sunday night, then arrested the man after he returned the pen.

Sharpe had recognized the borrower as a man named in a warrant for forfeiting a bond and failing to appear in court on a traffic charge.

Sharpe recognized the man because he had originally arrested him on the traffic charge, driving with a suspended license.

When he saw the man in the store at 26 W. Dundee Rd. Sharpe went up to the man, identified himself as a Wheeling policeman, and asked the man his name.

The man gave a false name to Sharpe, then turned and asked the store clerk to loan him a pen.

Sharpe offered his pen, and the man signed his name to a check, James A. Berg.

BERG HANDED Sharpe back his pen and thanked the policeman.

Sharpe, who had watched as Berg signed his name, then told Berg he was wanted on a warrant for the bond forfeiture charge and that he was under arrest.

Berg, 25, of 213 Valley Stream Dr., Wheeling, was charged with forfeiting bond and also with unlawful use of weapons.

The weapons charge was filed by police after Sharpe saw a container of mace, a disabling spray, in the open glove compartment of Berg's car as he was checking ownership papers.

Police said Berg was also wanted by Highland Park police on a traffic charge.

With The Factories Coming ...

Vegetable Stands Near Last Harvest

by WANDALYN RICE

The vegetable stands on the Busse property on Landmeier Road have just three years left. Then they will be displaced by factories.

But for Glenn and Marsha Busse, who operate one of the stands, at 1100 Landmeier Rd., Elk Grove Village, and their uncle up the road, this harvest season is much like the last, with corn, tomatoes, green peppers and eggplant stacked in baskets waiting for customers.

From 25 to 30 customers visit Glenn and Marsha's stand every day, with the rush coming when the nearby factories let out.

Besides about 35 varieties of home-grown vegetables, the Busses stock fruits and vegetables they don't grow for those who want them.

Most of the call, however, is for the homegrown vegetables. "Most people just can't wait for it to come on," Mrs. Busse said.

"THIS YEAR the tomatoes have been a little late because of the cold weather in August, but otherwise the vegetables have been doing well.

This is the second year the young couple has operated the stand, which opened right after the spring thaw and will close after Thanksgiving.

"Glenn used to be a produce manager and he just kind of got the idea he'd like to do this for himself," Mrs. Busse said.

Many of the women who come to the stand are those who do their own canning and, while some ask Mrs. Busse for recipes, she just as often asks them for ideas.

Right now she is planning to try one of the recipes she has been given for okra, a vegetable. "I'd never heard of until we opened the stand. People who like it really love it. I have several recipes but I haven't tried them yet."

One of the more entertaining customers, she said, is the hungry husband who stops at the stand on his way home from work.

"You can tell they're usually starving and everything looks good to them. They'll carry pounds and pounds of stuff away and I can just see their wives' faces when they see it," she said.

"USUALLY WHEN I'm working here I try to find out how big their families are so they don't buy too much," she said, laughing.

Glenn and Marsha just smile and not when asked if they are related to "the Busses of Mount Prospect," a family that has been in the area for many years.

"Glenn's folks have been on this land for 45 years," Mrs. Busse said. "But it's been sold now and we have just three years left here."

The land was annexed to Elk Grove Village, zoned for industry and sold, she explained. Buildings from the new industrial park to the north and east already are beginning to encroach on the land.

"I'm going to be sorry to see it go," Mrs. Busse said, watching one of the cars pull away from the stand with a happy purchaser of fresh tomatoes doing the driving.

Clergyman Recalls Circus The Way It Used To Be

by TOM VON MALDER

John Ringling, the famed circus impresario, once said that everyone is a child when it comes to the circus.

So it is not too surprising to discover that Richard Lehman, of 205 N. Wille St., Mount Prospect, has spent three summers traveling with the Mills Brothers Circus. Unless one recalls that the 48-year-old Lehman has been the rector at St. John's Episcopal Church, 200 N. Main St., Mount Prospect, for 8½ years.

His great love of the tent circus, which began — "I can't even remember the start" — back in the days when he would ride his bike 50 miles to stay with friends when the circus was in their town, led Rev. Lehman to take his wife and two sons to join the circus during his month-long summer vacation. He traveled with the Mills Brothers as a general helper for three successive summers, 1965-1967, until the Mills retired after 29 years in the business.

"My particular love is the tent circus, of which there are only some 20 remaining now," he said. "The Golden Age of the Circuses was in the '30s when I was a youth. Today they are disappearing."

THE TENT circuses and their entourage are the nomads of the circus world. They arrive at their site (and it must be fairly large) early in the morning and pull up stakes late that same day.

"The circus we traveled with was proud of its ability to put up and take down. They were there with sun-up, 5:30 or so. At 9:30, we were ready to start the first show.

"The evening show would begin about 9 p.m. They would start taking down as soon as the show started. By 11 p.m. everything would be down and on its way. The tent circus moves in sections — not as a caravan."

The tent circuses are threatened, even today when the wave for nostalgia is reviving interest and enriching coffers, because of urbanization and labor problems, Rev. Lehman said.

The reasonably flat, large areas close to the people are getting harder to find due to urban sprawl, he explained. "This is one of the problems. There have been no parades through the towns for a number of years. The circuses just can't get the help, the permits, and then there is the traffic problem."

The labor problem is that there is just not enough of it. "It takes so much time and effort to set up the tent circus," Rev. Lehman said. "And the laborers' jobs are so unglamorous."

An additional drawback is how circus folk are treated.

"CIRCUS PEOPLE are so mistreated and misjudged by people. People who aren't in the circus are so discourteous and hateful of circus members. Why the only time I couldn't cash an American Express Traveler's Check was when I was with the circus, and it was at a place that issued them," Rev. Lehman said.

"As a result, circus people are really very shy about meeting strangers. But once they've met you they are very friendly."

Rev. Lehman said he believes the anti-circus people attitude arises because "people think of the carnival and the circus as one bag. The carnival has a bad image as a dishonest, undesirable influence coming into the community for a time."

Circus people, he said, think of themselves as akin to the theater, rather than the carnival. "Many belong to the Actor's Guild," Rev. Lehman said.

A tent circus is like a traveling city of some 300 inhabitants. "It's a very close-knit little village," Rev. Lehman said. "You have the normal little irritations. But no children run loose. Any adult with the circus can discipline the children. As a result, while I was with the Mills Brothers, there were about 15 very well-disciplined children.

"The Mills Brothers ran a very tight show. They wouldn't let anyone fool around with alcohol. It would be too dangerous. As it is most of the risks come, not in the performances, but in moving constantly and just the manner of life they lead."

REV. LEHMAN feels circus life is exciting: "Every day something exciting happened. The first day we were with them they were trying to build on a lot which they weren't sure was going to be big enough. Another time a tornado was approaching and the performances had to be shortened so that everything could be well tied down. Luckily, we never saw a funnel."

One can add to the risks of circus life the fact that the performers are not highly paid, the minister said. "Usually, they are paid by the act and the value of an act can vary from circus to circus. Most end up with a modest income. Even a star in a circus would not pull the money a star in a (stage) show would make."

It certainly is different from the old days when circus stars were able to grab lucrative Hollywood contracts.

Rev. Lehman, while with the circus, tried to document the life through comprehensive slides and tape recordings. He now presents these materials to various organizations and schools on request.

He also is a member of the Circus Fans of America, a collection of some 1,500 people from all walks of life. The purpose of the group is to aid circuses whenever and wherever possible. This includes attempts to see that laws detrimental to circuses are not passed.

Rev. Lehman gave the example of a New York state law that prohibited the shooting of anyone from a cannon. "There were only two such performers left, and until we got that law changed it impaired their livelihood."

"I hope the tent circus will not die," Rev. Lehman said. "Besides its entertainment value, it is a bit of Americana, a bit of history."

ONE OF THE FRINGE benefits to traveling with a circus is getting to ride an elephant. Rev. Richard Lehman of Mount Prospect's St. John

Water Reclamation Plant Gets 25% State Funding

The Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant, to serve a portion of the Northwest suburbs, has been granted 25 per cent funding by the State of Illinois.

John E. Egan, president of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, announced yesterday the $10.9 million grant.

A total of $13.6 million is needed for construction of the plant, which will include a two-stage sludge process, chlorination facilities and other devices to treat the sewage.

The announcement came in the form of a letter from Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, who stated the offer was made under provisions of the Illinois Anti-Pollution Bond Act of 1970.

The grant is one of five received from the State of Illinois. Several weeks ago, the MSD received a grant of $7 million for similar projects.

THE RECLAMATION plant is slated to be constructed on a parcel of land north of Schaumburg Road between Meacham and Rohlfing roads in unincorporated Schaumburg Township.

Bids on the $13.6 million project will be opened Oct. 19, said John Varakojis, MSD engineer of process planning. He said it would then take a month for federal approval of the bids, and the project has a 37 month construction schedule.

The district will receive about 33 per cent of the funding from federal sources and the remaining 42 per cent from the district's bond fund, according to a spokesman.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher said he was pleased to hear the news of the grant. "Any step that'll bring this facility into being sooner is pleasing."

Atcher said persons east of the plant have faced basement flooding every time a heavy rain has fallen. The project will ease the flooding, he said.

THE STATE also agreed to help fund intercepting sewers and pumping stations throughout the Chicago metropolitan area. The Salt Creek plant grant is the largest grant in the package.

In July, the MSD reviewed a study report that revealed it would cost the district between $30 million and $50 million to purchase land for a sludge farm to treat processed sewage.

Members of the MSD staff are currently studying the feasibility of other methods of treatment, including the possibility of transporting the sludge to another location for further treatment.

Just Politics

by Bob Lahey

The growing prospect of a 1972 presidential bid by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., raises the specter of an eye-opening election campaign.

Kennedy's emergence in the latest polls as the frontrunner among Democrats for their party's nomination appears to be one of the more significant developments in the cluttered Democratic presidential sweepstakes.

Kennedy while remaining aloof from presidential talk, has surpassed hard-running Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., in the poll while the rest of the lineup of Democratic hopefuls continue to tread water in the percentages.

Thus advance in the polls, coupled with his strength in labor ranks his attraction to the young the poor and the blacks, the expected support of such powers as Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and the Kennedy "magic" among the rank-and-file would seem to indicate a Kennedy shoo-in if the Democrats were in convention today.

That of course could change dramatically between now and convention time, but at the moment it would appear that only an adamant refusal by Kennedy to have his name considered could depose him as the man to beat.

MOST KENNEDY watchers concede it is only a question of 1972 or 1976 when the youngest of the Kennedy brothers makes a run for the White House II, as most expect, the Vietnam war has been removed as an issue, and if President Nixon's new policies have taken the economy away from the Democrats as an issue, Kennedy might well elect to wait four years, when he could take on Nixon's successor.

However, the lesson of 1968 — when his brother Robert waited too long, losing the initiative to Sen. Eugene McCarthy while events turned what appeared to be a futile effort into a clear shot at the Presidency — is not likely to be lost on Ted.

Among the myriad other candidates for the Democratic nomination, it is not clear at this point by what means the Republicans could best attack them. But in the case of the Massachusetts senator, there is a glaringly obvious vulnerability Chappaquiddick.

AS THE POLLS indicate, Democratic spear-carriers apparently have forgiven Kennedy's role in that tragedy. And the voters in his home state were not alienated enough to deny him reelection, although his election margin was shaved from more than 70 per cent in 1964 to 58 per cent in 1970 against a political unknown.

The effect of Chappaquiddick nationwide in a partisan election would surely be more serious than in Kennedy's home state, though how damaging it might be is open to question.

It is, however, an issue for which Kennedy has no answer and one that the Republicans surely would exploit to the fullest. If there is any question about that, it would seem to have been answered by an official publication of the Republican National Committee recently.

In its September edition, First Monday, a newsmagazine for GOP contributors, quoted a telegram sent by an irate airlines worker to Kennedy following the senator's criticism of a Pan American Airlines mishap at San Francisco.

The wire said, "The night you were overloaded you went into the water. Pan Am did not. Please hold remarks till all facts are in."

First Monday also quoted Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who wrote to a friend that he was passing the telegram along to the national committee, "although being as timid as they are, I don't think they will use it."

First Monday's response to the Goldwater challenge seems a clear indication of how the Republican National Committee would perform in a contest with Kennedy.

Tahitian Songs To Be Performed

Two performances of Tahitian songs, chants and dances will be performed Oct. 5 and 6 at John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

A group of 54 Tahitian performers will wear their native dress for the events. The performers are a part of a "good will" tour of the United States and are sponsored by the French government.

Local arrangements are being made by members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon). Proceeds from the performances will be used to defray the traveling expenses of the Tahitian group and to add to the building fund for an addition to the Mormon Church at 2035 N. Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights.

Both performances will begin at 8 p.m. Admission charges will be $2 for adults and $1.50 for 16 year olds and younger people.

Reservations for the limited seating for the performances may be made by calling Mrs. Jeannine Malwitz at 392-3606 or Mrs. Katherine Huisman at 696-3474.

Set Up Plan To Ticket Air Pollution Violators

The Cook County Board Monday approved an ordinance setting up a plan to ticket air pollution violators.

Under the new procedure, inspectors from the county's Environmental Control Bureau will be authorized to serve a ticket similar to those used in traffic cases upon persons or companies accused of violating the County Air Pollution Control Ordinance.

The ticket requires a court appearance by the accused who may face a fine of up to $500. Repeated violators are subject to sealing of their equipment, according to a county spokesman.

County Board president George Dunne said, "This ordinance provides a more speedy and efficient remedy for bringing polluters to justice. In the past, procedural delays have worked to the benefit of the polluters. This new procedure will ensure quick compliance with the stringent Cook County Air Pollution Control Ordinance."

The board held a public hearing on the ordinance last week before unanimously approving it Monday morning.

COMPLETION OF the new construction at Northwest Community Hospital is slated for next spring. The 336-bed facility will be financed by a $5 million note issue.

An advance offering is made this week by B. C. Ziegler and Co. before the national offering on Sept. 27.

Offer Hospital Bond Issue

Northwest suburban residents interested in buying the latest issue of bonds for Northwest Community Hospital have an edge on other investors across the country.

An advance opportunity to purchase bonds in the $5 million issue is available this week through B. C. Ziegler and Co. with offices in Arlington Heights and Chicago. Ziegler will offer the issues on a national basis on Sept. 27.

Negotiations were completed Monday night in the bond issue to finance new construction at the hospital located in Arlington Heights. The Ziegler firm has already sold $660,000 worth of the bonds, primarily to area residents who tried unsuccessfully to participate in last year's offering.

IN LAST YEAR'S $2.5 million offering of bonds for the hospital many area residents placed orders too late to purchase the bonds. A total of $2.7 million was subscribed for by local residents and as a result 387 would be subscribers were disappointed said Warren Coultas, Ziegler resident manager. "I was allotted $13 million of the issue, which I thought was plenty," he said. "This time we will give area people a full week to decide."

Investors can purchase this issue under the following terms: two to three-year bond pays 7 per cent interest, four to five-year term pays 7½ per cent, six to eight year pays 8 per cent, nine to 11 years pays 8½ per cent, and 12 to 15 years pays 9 per cent.

DENOMINATIONS ARE $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000 or any multiple thereof. Interest is payable semi-annually on April 1 and Oct. 1. No commission is charged the investor and the notes sell plus accrued interest to the settlement date of approximately Oct. 15. Orders can be taken for payment then, or the notes can be reserved for payment no later than Nov. 30.

The issue was awarded an AA rating by Fitch Investor Service of New York. The high quality rating was given as a result of accelerated past debt retirement. The previous 1959 series was repaid 9½ years before the final maturity date.

Completion date of the new construction is set for late spring 1972, which will provide a 336 bed facility. Earnings from Northwest Community Hospital operations will retire the notes at their maturity date.

For further information, contact B. C. Ziegler and Co. at 217 S. Arlington Heights Road, phone 394-4524.

Name National Merit Semi-Finalists

A dozen Northwest suburban high schools have contributed 43 students as semi-finalists in the 1971-72 National Merit Scholarship competition.

The 43 students are among 15,000 named today by the National Merit Scholarship Corp. They will compete for about 3,000 Merit Scholarships to be awarded next spring.

This year's total represents an increase of four over last year's total of 39 winners. The semi-finalists in the Pad-dock Publications circulation area are:

Arlington High — Franklin T. Adams, Susan E. Dawson, Margaret J. Heller, Catherine Lentine and Laurel E. Wallner.

John Hersey High — William C. Kessel and Alan K. Pritz.

St. Viator High — Paul J. Erbach, David C. Gibbons and Martin J. Maney.

Maine Township High North — Pamela J. Hanson and Mark V. White.

Maine Township High West — Sherry D. Didier, Thomas E. Hanna, Russell E. Jacoby, David A. Johnson, Elizabeth M. Klein, and William H. Mitchell.

Elk Grove High — Kristofer F. Borgias, Michael D. Brannan, Nancy A. Kucera and Sheila M. Quinn.

James Conant High — Eric A. Brewner, Roy M. Chapman, Craig D. Elderkin, Michael D. Franzen and James A. Netter.

Prospect High — Kay L. Candler and David E. Chakorian.

Palatine Township High — George L. Egger, Carol A. Johnson and Donald S. McLean.

William Fremd High — John F. Besecker, Kevin J. Hastings, Victoria J. Mack, Mark R. Parker, Cathy Schwetman and Robert W. Zei.

Wheeling High — Kathleen E. Kahla and Susan M. O'Brien.

The semi-finalists were the highest scorers in Illinois on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, which was given last February to more than 655,000 students in about 16,600 schools nationwide. They constitute less than one per cent of the graduating secondary school seniors in the United States.

The semi-finalists are representative of the county's most intellectually able young people, according to Edward C.

Smith, president of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. "From this group will come many future leaders in business, industry, and the professions," he said.

Semi-finalists must advance to finalist standing to be considered for the Merit Scholarships to be awarded next spring. Semi-finalists become finalists by receiving the endorsement of their schools, substantiating their high performance on a second examination, and providing information about their interests and achievements.

ABOUT 96 per cent of the semi-finalists are expected to become finalists, and each will be considered for one of the 1,000 National Merit $1,000 Scholarships which are allocated by state.

Many will also be considered for the renewable four-year Merit Scholarships provided by some 500 corporations, foundations, colleges, unions, trusts, professional associations, other organizations, and individuals. Each Finalist will receive a Certificate of Merit in recognition of his outstanding performance in the program.

AHLGRIM & SONS FUNERAL HOME

SCHAUMBURG-HOFFMAN ESTATES

Saturday and Sunday are Open House Days at the new Ahlgrim & Sons Funeral Home in Schaumburg — presenting an unusual opportunity to see a complete, modern funeral establishment under pleasant conditions.

The facilities have been designed to create a decor of traditional dignity and beauty, and to assure every modern convenience and comfort.

It is rare that a funeral home of such excellence is created — and it is even more rare that all portions of such a funeral home are open for the public's inspection.

We hope you'll make it a point to attend. In addition to an interesting and enlightening experience, ladies will receive roses and everyone attending will receive useful gifts.

NEA To File Federal Court Suit

The National Education Association charged recently that President Nixon's Cost of Living Council continues to be ambiguous about its previous ruling to pay thousands of the nation's teachers wage increases. The nearly two-million member organization said it will file a federal court suit challenging the constitutionality of the government's action.

"The suit, authorized by the NEA Executive Committee, will be based on the capricious and arbitrary action of the Cost of Living Council and the Office of Emergency Preparedness. Their position on the teacher wage increase issue violates the due process and equal protection provisions of the U. S. Constitution," said Mrs. Catharine Barrett, president-elect of the nation's largest professional organization.

Mrs. Barrett described the Council's handling of the teacher salary wage controversy as "incredible, inept, poorly managed and an embarrassment to the federal government."

The disclosure of the impending legal action was made following a meeting earlier today between NEA officials and members of the Cost of Living Council.

In addition to filing the federal suit, the NEA announced other actions it will pursue in cooperation with its 9,000 local and state affiliates during the remainder of the 90-day emergency period:

—File unfair labor practice suits or take other appropriate legal action against school boards which refuse to negotiate in good faith.

—File breach of contract suits wherever there is evidence that funds budgeted and authorized for teacher salaries must remain in accounts designated for that purpose.

—Continue procedures for processing individual complaints of inequity in order that group action may protect the individual.

IN ANOTHER development, the NEA announced that it was critical of U.S. Commissioner of Education Sidney Marland Jr., whose nomination for commissioner was supported by the NEA.

The NEA, which has sought clarification of the disputed teacher wage-freeze guidelines, met with Council representatives last week and was told that the Association would be consulted first-hand before any new instructions were issued, according to NEA officials.

The NEA contends that the Council's new position constitutes "an apparent reversal" of its ruling on Aug. 26. At that time, a key ruling issued by the Council stated that under systemwide contracts work by even a single teacher prior to Aug. 15 would qualify all teachers in the district to receive pay raises, according to NEA officials.

"Now the Council is telling us that it didn't really mean this... that the reference to any one teacher apparently has been misinterpreted," declared Mrs. Barrett. "The language in the OEP telegram is ambiguous and continues to muddy the waters on the teacher wage issue."

"THESE INCONSISTENT actions by the Council and the OEP have resulted in mass confusion for the nation's teachers and it's little wonder that they've had enough of this government bungling," asserted Mrs. Barrett.

The NEA sought clarification from the Council in four areas. These concerned certain conditions under collective bargaining agreements; the situation in districts where there are no such agreements but in which salary schedules were set and budgeted or allocated before Aug. 15; salary increments not based upon educational requirements per se but upon other requirements that lead to advancement in job level; and improvements in teacher working conditions, such as reduced class size or teacher load, without any added remuneration to the teacher.

Driver Testing Need Persists

There is a growing trend in the Cook County and state governments to put service units on wheels and to take the government to the people.

The consumer fraud divisions of the county state's attorney and the state attorney general now have mobile units which periodically allow residents to register complaints near their homes. Cook County Board President George W. Dunne has had a traveling unit in operation for over a year, sending representatives throughout the county to answer questions and hear complaints of citizens.

Last weekend, a mobile unit of the secretary of state's office was at Northpoint Shopping Center in Arlington Heights, where state employees were available to answer questions and help solve problems concerning vehicle registrations, driver's licenses and other highway matters.

The Herald has long encouraged efforts to make government services more readily accessible to the people and we believe that these mobile units are to be encouraged.

It would appear, however, that the mobile units now in service provide as much public relations value to the particular officeholders as they do to the citizens. While the secretary of state's Highway Mobile Unit provides a place where the motorist can obtain "the Rules of the Road," learn how to obtain a special driving permit, or have his eyes tested, it does not give him an opportunity to get his driver's license.

Such a basic service still requires, usually, a full day away from his job and a trip to a distant testing center.

The traveling information center, which places the name of the officeholder prominently before the voter, operates six days a week, while the license testing center, for instance, operates only from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Personnel of the secretary of state's office report that plans for expanding mobile services are under consideration, but that many problems must be overcome. They point out, for example, that a mobile testing center for driver's licenses would require a site with ample parking in an area where local traffic would not be disrupted.

Recognizing that problems may exist, we believe that an aggressive approach to solving them could provide the taxpayers with added convenience, which they have a right to expect.

Officials of the secretary of state's office and other government agencies readily admit the inconvenience for many residents — especially those in the suburbs — obtaining governmental services.

This condition continues to linger, however, while little action is forthcoming from governmental agencies to solve the problem.

As noted here recently, the secretary of state more than a year ago approved plans for a driver testing center in the Northwest suburbs. While plans still exist for such a center, there has been no progress made in 18 months.

We believe that increased service to the taxpayers can be achieved more rapidly. The increased use of mobile service units could be one way to speed up the process.

Politics Is A 'Family' Affair

Metropolitan Editor

For those politicians who care about good and bad fortune — and all of them do — the political breezes of change and evolution have some tricky but predictable currents.

Ask Bill Vernon about fortune. A year ago, Vernon was abruptly dumped from the County ballot for school superintendent.

His sins? State officials reported he lacked the proper credentials for the post. Besides, newspapers reported he had been chaplain of a south side group which opposed integration.

Today, however, Vernon is working for the man who replaced him on the ballot, Richard Martwick. His title is Director of Research and Statistics, and he is making between $15,000 and $20,000 a year.

I have never met Mr. Vernon, but his reputation is considerable. In the 1960's, he was a power in the Illinois Education Association's Chicago division — in a city where the Chicago Teacher's Union is the power.

In addition, he is the minister of Englewood South Deering Community Church.

He now has the proper certification for the top county educational post.

Vernon's obvious closeness and loyalty to Martwick — a certain loyalty is required to join the team of the man who replaced you — is reflected by a flavor of closeness and "family" which pervades the county superintendent's office.

First, a Chicago gossip columnist reported earlier this week that Martwick and his assistant, Miss Mary Ann Forgarty, are to be married shortly. One wonders if the new Mrs. Martwick will remain in the office as the chief employment officer after the marriage.

Second, Norman Finkel, the legal counsel in the county superintendent's office, is employed in the law office of Robert Martwick, the superintendent's brother, at 11 S. LaSalle Street in the Loop — a short walk of two blocks to the Civic Center.

Not only does the office have the "family" flavor which characterizes downtown politics, it has a Democratic flavor — which should be expected when a Democrat replaces a Republican officeholder in the Civic Center.

This paper reported on May 26 that clerical personnel who wished to retain their jobs were told to dig up a letter of endorsement from a Democrat if they wished to remain in the office.

The entrance of political patronage on the clerical level was in sharp contrasts to the policy of Robert Hanrahan, Martwick's predecessor. Hanrahan did not require a letter of endorsement, and he invited all of the clerical staff under his predecessor to remain in their positions. Under Martwick, things have changed.

Patronage, by itself, is no evil, at least in this reporter's mind. If an organization can provide the best possible persons to serve the public interest from the ranks of one party, that is the way it should work.

However, there has never been any proof that quality, clerical or otherwise, follows party lines. Civil service, though not perfect in itself, is designed to insure better quality employees. As always, it is needed in Cook County government.

It must be reported, too, that many of the top persons who labored under Hanrahan have stayed in the office. At the same time, such qualified persons as Richard Bachhuber of Mount Prospect have not been retained by Martwick. Bachhuber, a man dedicated to education, did not want to remain in the present regime.

However, the test of Martwick's regime will not come from charges of patronage, whether from The Herald or from the capable public servants who no longer work at the Civic Center.

If the men and women in Martwick's office can prove during their term of office that they are sensitive to the needs of public education and, at the same time, able to meet those needs intelligently, forcefully but economically (they are spending taxpayer's money), I shall be satisfied.

We await the proof.

Both School Issues Supported For District 96

Residents of School District 96:

As you have heard, a referendum will be held on Saturday, Sept. 25, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., at which time you will be asked to vote on two matters required for the construction of a K-8 school on 10 acres in the Strathmore development.

We as a Citizens' Committee, have investigated in detail the necessity and the merits of the proposals. We first discovered that our current enrollment is 900 students, and that our schools' current capacity of 1180 students will be reached this year. In order to finance a third school, the Board listed our district with the Illinois School Building Commission two years ago. This Commission provides interest free loans to overloaded school districts with zero bonding power solely for the building of new schools. Funds will become available for us this October, only if both sections of the referendum succeed.

We think it is our responsibility to explain plainly the two items that will appear on the ballot. The first item will ask the voters to approve the issuance of $835,000 worth of bonds, which will exhaust the school district's bonding power — a necessity to qualify for the State's interest free loan. The school board plans to use these funds primarily for the purchase of school sites in projected population growth areas within the district. The second item will ask the voters to approve paying rent to the State for our new K-8 school which they will build. This rent will amount to less than $133,000 per year for 16-2/3 years. It will cover the $2,250,000 cost of a new 1200 pupil school (built to their stringent but excellent specifications) — including some site work, furnishings, and equipment. At the end of this time the school district will own the school and equipment free and clear.

The approval of both items on the ballot will bring us an interest savings alone of $750,000 to $1,000,000.

We, the Citizens' Committee, thoroughly explored the alternatives with the school board.

One alternative is double sessions. We feel that this is not a satisfactory solution:

- 1) It reduces the quality of education possible for our children,
- 2) It raises the bus transportation costs to a prohibitive amount,
- 3) Eventually there will no longer be room for even double sessions. (Consider this carefully). At the present time the school board feels that the projected growth of the district may enable them to finish the 1971-72 school year without starting double sessions. However, even with the approval of the bond issue and rent levy, and with our new school under construction, it will be necessary to start the 1972-73 school year on double sessions. According to verified demographic studies evaluated by the Citizens' Committee, the capacity of Willow Grove and Kildeer will be substantially exceeded.

There is no reasonable alternative; we must approve both parts of the referendum to enable District 96 to obtain this loan, and start building a new K-8 school in Strathmore, to be completed for the 1973 school sessions. We feel strongly that this is the only solution — and certainly the least expensive one.

We unequivocally recommend the approval of both items on the ballot.

We respectfully request that you vote YES on Sept. 25 for both items. Please bear in mind that if only one item passes, we cannot succeed in obtaining the interest free loan from the State. VOTE YES ON BOTH ISSUES — for quality education in District 96.

Thank you for your support.

SUBURBAN APPLICANTS at driver license examining center encounter regular out-of-car traffic jams.

'The People Are Tired Of An Image'

by BRUCE BOSSAT

One of the Democrats' two flamer-boy candidates, Sen. Edward Kennedy and New York Mayor John Lindsay, Ted can afford to wait until convention time in 1972 and the mayor can't wait at all to make a run for the presidency.

A canvassing of governors in San Juan at the National Governors' Conference and of Democratic state chairmen at their Florida meeting makes it clear Kennedy's name will be alive until someone else is nominated. He comes up again and again, from Connecticut to California and into the Deep South.

That California poll which showed him beating Sen. Edmund Muskie, 37 to 19, in the state was a stunner for a lot of party professionals.

Yet you can't find a Democratic politician of stature who thinks Ted is going to move in the 1972 race in any way. One western governor told me he believes Kennedy would not even like to be drafted at Miami Beach next July.

This doesn't mean that some people in the Kennedy camp are not itchy. Seasoned in other Kennedy races, they feel that the presently active campaigners are rather generally inept, and that they could do it better. But they are locked into a holding pattern.

It's different for Lindsay, the Democratic newcomer. He is known to be playing with the option of plunging into the race early, instead of late as first indicated. Several governors and state chairmen say privately, however, that he doesn't really have an option, that he has to move quickly.

The reasoning is that the mayor can only be sold as a plausible candidate if he is willing to expose himself to the risks and rigors of a full race — which means running in primaries from March on.

To hang back and hope for other candidates to falter before jumping in is seen by one sympathetic professional as "too cute" to make broad impact in the party.

A Plains state governor here expresses it this way:

"People in this country are tired of an image. They want to see the person. That's the way most of these new Democratic governors got elected."

Should Lindsay signal an early entry, his course will be difficult. As previously reported, he is a long way from getting even a foothold in primary states like Wisconsin and Massachusetts, with sizable liberal elements. A fresh run-through of Democratic governors at this conference turns up virtually nothing for Lindsay, in hand or in sight, in such states as Alaska, Georgia, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Idaho, Utah. This limited roster evidently is pretty representative of the whole list.

As noted in a Florida dispatch, Lindsay might work up something fairly useful for him among Dade County liberals in Florida's 81-vote primary next March 14.

Apparently the most combustible prospect he has is the June 8 winner-take-all primary (271 votes) in California. The newest poll gives him 8 per cent, not bad for a new boy. If he could hijack some of that heavy Kennedy sentiment, he might be in business there. But his basic problem is unchanged: How to stay alive until California.

Sensitivity Training Or Group Brainwashing?

While glancing through the courses offered at Maine adult evening school, I was surprised to see the day arrive when people are being asked to pay for a course of group brainwashing under the title of sensitivity training.

The course is promoted under the guise of getting to know oneself and others better. I guess I'm lucky, I know who I am and for those who don't, what these people need is a good psychiatrist and not class room discussion. Through friends of mine, I know what a good psychiatrist can accomplish and also some of the havoc that's been brought to couples my age who went to sensitivity training.

Let's take the idea expressed in this class that "Thinking May Be Dangerous For Your Health" and "Feeling Is Excellent For Your Health." I bet many unweaned mothers could argue that logic for hours on end!

One couple that I knew who went to group therapy have not only brought unhappiness to themselves but also to the grandparents, whose characters and problems were brought up and discussed without their knowledge or permission.

One mother told me of her teenage son whose feelings were hurt because of group criticism brought against him and others in this sensitivity atmosphere, promoted by an instructor. The idea of this instructor was that it was good for people to know what a friend didn't like about him. What became of the practice of "If you can't say something nice about someone, then say nothing at all?"

Well, I could go on and on but I'm sure readers will get the general idea that I'm trying to put across. This is just one more instance where a small group of people are pulling the wool over the eyes of the public. I'm just glad I've learned to think, read and reason for myself. Heaven help those poor souls who haven't.

Word-A-Day

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

Why should you keep your spare money in a savings account, paying 4½ or 5 per cent, when the highest interest rates since the Civil War have pushed yields on good corporate bonds to 8 per cent and more?

Well, there are several reasons why the average family that has accumulated some reserves can't find its way to the table where the juicier melons are being cut — and that's why a new mutual fund, investing solely in bonds with good yields, is now being offered to the public.

Why haven't family savings been going into the bond market? First, this is where the game is played for big stakes. Bonds sell in "round lots" of 100 — and at $1,000 a bond, that means you're an old-latter unless you have $100,000 in your pocket.

Besides all this, the small investor discovers — sometimes too late — that buying bonds can be just as tricky as buying stocks. It's easy to make serious mistakes.

SO, THE PUBLIC may want bonds, but the public doesn't get many bonds — and Henry Neuwirth, who has successfully launched two mutual funds in recent years, decided to do something about it with a bond fund. A bond fund, Neuwirth Income Development Co., is not exactly unique — shares in 40 or more are now being publicly offered — but Neuwirth thinks his new fund is different enough to appeal to some new investors.

—It carries a low-load sales charge — 1½ per cent. With only a few exceptions, including one no-load fund, the major bond funds charge the usual 8½ per cent.

—Shareholders receive a monthly dividend check. NIDCO is the only low-load fund paying monthly, rather than the traditional quarterly dividends. Neuwirth thinks this will have special appeal to retired persons and others who depend on income from savings and investments to help cover living expenses.

—Through automatic re-investment, dividends can be plowed back into your account to buy additional shares or fractional shares, giving the investor monthly compounding of his yield. As of early September, that was 7¼ per cent — and Neuwirth points out that, in terms of long-range results, 7¼ is twice as good as 3 per cent. (The interest on $1,000, compounded monthly, in 15 years amounts to something over $1,000 at 5 per cent —nearly $2,000 at 7¼.)

WHAT HAPPENS to the investor if interest rates keep climbing and by next year we're seeing, not 8 per cent, but 10 per cent? (Neuwirth himself doesn't think it will happen; he's forecasting 6½ per cent for next year.) Well, by the peculiar arithmetic of the bond market, a portfolio's yield should remain pretty closely geared to current levels. You buy steadiness at the sacrifice of possible capital gains.

The two funds previously organized by Neuwirth are geared to capital gains growth, and for the most part they've been high-flyers, up among the top performers. It's quite a switch, from managing for "go-go" results to the sedateness of a bond fund — but Neuwirth evidently believes there must be a lot of people out there who've turned sour on "performance" and are willing to settle for a slice of those record bond yields.

647,000 Here Approaching That Age

Plan Ahead For Retirement

Financial plans should be made in advance for retirement. The average Chicago area retired couple will spend $5,000 in 1972.

That was the picture painted by W. Scane Bowler, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the Pioneer Western Corp.

"There are now more than 647,000 people in the Chicago area between the ages of 55 and 64 — the 10-year period before retirement, who would do well to ponder these expenses and the income required, because these items surely will go up by the time they reach retirement age," Bowler said.

"The average Social Security payments per retired couple — if husband and wife are both over 65 — will be roughly $2,300 in 1972. If only the husband is over 65, the Social Security payment will be approximately $2,120.

"Thus, the average Chicago area retired couple in 1972 will need $2,700 income in addition to Social Security," he said.

"Financial planning may seem to be a difficult process for many people," he says. "Yet the realities of the requirements for retirement living should stimulate them to prepare for the day when regular paychecks stop."

BOWLER notes that the average Chicago area retired budget in 1972 is projected at $1,390 (or 27.8 per cent) for food; $1,960 (39.2 per cent) for housing; $450 (9 per cent) for transportation; $495 (9.9 per cent) for clothing; $400 (8 per cent) for medical care; and $299 or 5.6 per cent for other expenses.

"Those people under retirement age should study these budgets and compare them with their own projected retirement income," Bowler said. "While these figures are average and will vary from family to family in some respects, they represent a picture of future needs for retired couples."

The fundamentals of savings, life insurance and equity investment are necessary in planning for the future and make retirement goals easier to achieve. Bowler said. "The important point is to set an attainable retirement goal," he said, adding that some people turn to a professional person who can guide them to proper allocation of current and projected income.

"There are numerous programs available to achieve a couple's goals and they can be tailored to fit almost any income. But these plans should be made early during a man's productive years in order that his later years will be free of financial worry," Bowler said.

Business Today

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — What really causes severe emotional and mental stress in executives — the kind of stress that leads to peptic ulcer and coronary thrombosis?

According to Dr. Ari Kiev of Cornell University Medical School in New York, a clinical psychiatrist, all the causes of this extreme stress boil down to trying to run away from things, the refusal to face reality.

The reality may be that the tense executive doesn't really want the promotion or is trying hard to win. It may be that he hates going to big functions and being insincerely pleasant or drinking or eating too much because the job seems to demand it.

A certain amount of stress is unavoidable for every executive, Kiev says in current edition of "The Executive Voice," a cassette lecture series produced by True Life audio. But if the executive reacts realistically to stress, if he says "to hell with things" at the proper moments, he will surmount. If his reactions are unrealistic, he is heading for serious trouble — maybe for ulcers or a coronary.

HOW DOES A CHAP recognize the signs that he is reacting unrealistically to stress? Kiev cited the following as danger signals:

- Feeling dissatisfied about the job.
- Leaning on other people for work or decision making.
- Getting irritable with co-workers too frequently.
- Losing to power of concentration.
- Declining energy.
- Sleeplessness.
- Drinking too much.
- Overeating.
- Smoking too much.

A falling sex drive. Too often, Kiev said, a man blames his wife or thinks it's just a matter of middle age when this happens. Not true, according to the doctor. It may be a real sign of dangerous reaction to stress.

The realistic reaction, Kiev said, is to do your own thing the best you can and refuse to be concerned about the rest.

In short, the people who stand stress the best are those who say, "To hell with that," says Kiev.

Electronics '72 Show Oct. 14-15

Electronics '72, a new product show for engineers and technical personnel, will be held at Arlington Park Towers Oct. 14-15.

Ohmtronics, Inc., a Chicago-based industrial distributor, is sponsoring the show. Exhibitors will be major suppliers of electronic components and products.

Major product lines will be on display, as well as new products and new designs being introduced to the industry.

Among the exhibiting manufacturers are Amphenol Division of Bunker-Ramo, Belden, Bud Radio, Cinch Manufacturing Division of TRW Inc., Clarostat, C. P. Clare, Cutler-Hammer, Drake, Littelfuse, Molex, Potter & Brumfield, Inc., Raytheon, Spectrastrap, Sprague, Switchcraft, Inc., Triad, Wakefield and Xerox Corp.

The feature of the Ohmtronics show will be a problem-solving clinic. Each exhibitor will have technical staff available for consultation. Engineers are encouraged to bring prints, specifications, drawings, etc. for this clinic.

The show will be open from 11:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. each day. Lunch, courtesy of Ohmtronics, will be served between the hours of 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

For information and registration cards, contact Manny Grossman at Ohmtronics, Inc., 649 Vermont St., Palatine, Ill., 60067.

A Tale Of Nuts And Bolts

by MARIANNE SCOTT
Women's Editor

What happened to me last week should have happened to Dorothy Meyer. She'd have found some humor in the situation or filed at once for divorce.

But then it couldn't have happened to Dorothy. Her Wally can wield a hammer and I assume is the handyman at her house. At our house I am the handyman. I'm probably the only wife in the block who has a screwdriver in every pocket — and therein lies the root of many a discordant situation at home sweet home.

Last week's trauma began six weeks ago when I embarked on a project — restoring an antique hand pump which will (I hope) actually pump water and become a conversation piece in the garden.

I began by digging an enormous hole into which I will see that there is water. With the aid of penetrating oil I disassembled the rusty little cast iron pump — bolt by bolt and nut by nut. For six weeks I have spent every free minute scraping, sanding, steel wooling, wire brushing and applying rust remover and elbow grease to the pump — plus the nuts and bolts.

THE PUMP NEEDED a new leather (washer) and to preserve its authenticity, I located a pump company that could supply this device. So for $5 (minimum order) plus $1.80 in postage, a new 25-cent leather was obtained. Another leather is soaking in Neat's Foot Oil.

SHINY NEW NUTS and bolts may have destroyed the authenticity of the little antique pump but not the fun of pumping water for the garden.

Himself, who doesn't appreciate "oldies," and also doesn't like removing rust, often reminded me that a brand new pump with new leathers and bolts and nuts was available in the Ward's catalog for only $12.95. Doggedly I continued to rub, scrape, sand and brush, and now six weeks later the little pump shines within an inch of its second life. The man of the house, who also hates to have things out of place, was very good about cleaning up after me.

For a platform — every well has a platform to cover the hole — I sawed, by hand, railroad ties and heavy planks, a task even Dorothy's Wally probably wouldn't undertake. Atop the platform is half of a very old nail keg and atop this picturesque arrangement will be my pump — IF I can find some off-size nuts and bolts!

WOULD YOU BELIEVE that Mr. Clean had emptied the ash tray in which the precious nuts and bolts had been stored for six weeks? And the garbage truck had already been around?

I sought to keep my cool but such exaggerated politeness between two long-married adults you wouldn't believe!

To keep from flipping it was advisable that I be alone. Screaming or crying would get me nowhere. I began to sew. When I sewed a collar on upside down — with interfacing and edge stitching, yet — I decided to go to bed.

Then came an unexpected climax to the evening.

Our 89-year-old poodles (by people count) sleep in the bedroom and every eight hours I must poke an assortment of geriatric pills down their sweet little throats. So it's convenient to keep a supply of these pills in the bedroom.

ALWAYS (?) ALERT, I remembered that the bedroom supply had been depleted that morning so I poured out a handful of the yellow, the white and the pink tablets from our kitchen "dispensary."

The dogs had dined on Brown's chicken (the bolt-tosser was lucky to get eggs) and one of the little dears had carried a hunk of chicken to the TV room. En route to the bedroom with my handful of pills — you guessed it! As I went down, my hand shot up and the pills are now buried in shag carpet!

With that the man of the house retired to the guest bedroom.

On The Far East Side

Her New Life Began At 40

by HELEN HENNESSY

Harvest Court at 216 Argyle Street is just across the road from the Kowloon police station in Hong Kong. It's a Chinese flat near one of the biggest resettlement districts in Kowloon. And it's the last place you would expect to hear, "You all come to see me for the best values in Hong Kong."

These are the words of Louise Ross, proprietor of the "Living Room Boutique," which is just what its name implies. Louise, an American, lives with her teen-aged son, Michael, in a completely Chinese-tenanted building and in her living room she sells beautifully made knitwear, ivory pieces, jewelry and a medley of gift items. It's not a street shop. The place is homey and comfortable — tea, the whole bit. And the knits have continental styling, American know-how and those great low Hong Kong prices.

"MY LIVING ROOM," Louise said, "is like the crossroads of the world. You'll find American Consulate wives, career girls from the embassies throughout Southeast Asia, wives of embassy officials from France, England, Canada, Norway, plus the occasional tourist who hears about me and hopefully dashes over to see if I have something in her size."

The "shop" is charming and chock-full of good buys, but the story behind how it all came about is a tribute to the courage of a divorcee with two children and little funds who cut her losses, left her California home and set out to make a new life after 40 in a foreign country. She tells her story this way:

"In a youth-oriented world, where minis and bra-less bouncy bosoms got the jobs and the older men, what chance did a chubby, slightly used middle-aged mother of two have? Especially one struggling on limited money during inflation."

"I COULD HAVE stayed on in the suburbs, more lonely than ever, listening to the sounds of laughter drift over backyard fences proving life goes on. Married friends continued to gather for cocktails and swimming parties, but somehow inviting a woman alone didn't appeal after awhile."

"Get a job?" she continued. "Doing what — when for so many years I merely kept house, attended PTA meetings, political lectures, cheered at Little League games and ran car pools on rainy days."

Mrs. Ross did try to get a job. But a good one wasn't available for her in California.

"You go tell today's employer," she said, "as he coldly looks you over and mentally discards you, how bright and clever you were years ago. You could write, sketch, play piano. As a slim vivacious girl you worked for this fashion firm, that perfume house, even Warner Bros. in Hollywood. And that, really, you were much, much slimmer."

TRYING TO ADJUST to what is gently described as "a woman alone in her middle years" was as thrilling to Louise Ross as a piece of wet bread. And she had finally had it.

"I thought to myself, what is the most way-out thing I could do at my age? And I did it. I turned my limited assets into money, sent my 18-year-old daughter off to college, took my 13-year-old son and left for Hong Kong where I visited with my brother who lived there, I told myself I had nothing to lose."

How does she feel starting a new life abroad, living on the edge of the giant enigma of the People's Republic of China? What is it like to experience a whole new life in the British Crown Colony where capitalism and communism live and work side by side? Where taking the ferry from Kowloon to Hong Kong "second class" is a status symbol and only costs two cents in American money? Where she's the only foreigner living in a completely Chinese building and the kids stare and titter as she comes and goes?

"I LOVE IT!" she said. "I have never regretted it."

The extraordinary richness and flavor of the Chinese culture are a never ending delight to this American.

"I'm convinced this new recipe for living is delicious. Who knows by the time I'm 55 or 60 — perhaps another diet — another country — maybe even another romance," she said.

Her 15-year-old son now enjoys the best of two worlds. He likes his school, The King George V, he plays rugby and cricket, wears U.C.L.A. T-shirts, is active in American baseball, excels in guitar and singing American jazz at school and dances on local TV.

Louise started out in her new home with a personal mail order business to accommodate a few friends in the United States who wanted ivory carvings, chess sets, snuff bottles and so on. Through recommendations it grew and along with her new home boutique for fashions, it affords her a modest living. Her brother, a successful Hong Kong manufacturer, helps her to obtain exclusive fashion merchandise.

THE TOTAL BREAK with her former life has been like a shot of adrenalin. She looks younger and feels that way.

How she picked herself up by the boot straps could be an incentive to many middle-aged women who, with families gone, feel that life is over. Maybe everyone doesn't have a handy brother in the Orient. But donning a determined thinking cap and summoning up courage long unused as did Louise Ross could point the way to a new and vital life instead of despairing middle age.

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Speaking Of . . .

Fall Cleaning 'By The Book'

by KAY MARSH

Dirty days hark September — and so, alas, does every other month.

But the season's the reason and the autumn equinox turns every reluctant housekeeper's conscience toward the fall housecleaning that we somehow never quite finished in any recent fall. Let's consider, then, what the academics call "a review of the literature" in search of a rationale, pragmatic philosophy, motivation — or just plain old push.

The "I Hate To Housekeep Book" is my own favorite practical guide to instant housekeeping. The witty Peg Bracken covers such relevant topics as "How to Remember to Remember" and "Don't Just Do Something, Sit There." But probably her most helpful contribution is the idea that anything worth doing is worth doing half-way. It's better, she says, to take a fast swipe at a spot now than to wait until you can remember to buy that new miracle cleaning product that everybody's talking about.

On the other hand, just buying the new product can often inspire you to get on with the job. If you've spent $1.89, you certainly want to get your money's worth. Besides, there's a doubting consumer in all of us. I, for instance, am looking for something I read about called DWR. It's supposed to be a Dirty Word Remover for walls, and I can hardly wait to see if it works on clean words, too.

ANOTHER GOOD BOOK is Carol G. Eisen's "Nobody Said You Had to Eat Off the Floor" (though with all the milk spilled in our kitchen, I suspect we have more nutrition per foot of vinyl than anywhere else in the house). Anyway, this psychiatrist's wife offers both help for your housekeeping hangups and a style that's fun to read.

Phyllis Diller's manual on housewifery takes an even more light-hearted approach. For instance, she suggests that you leave out the ironing board or vacuum, then dab furniture polish behind your ears so that everyone will think you've been slaving away.

But ultimately you actually have to slave away to get your house clean. And my favorite suggestion on motivation is that you have a party.

Yes, there's brinksmanship involved in inviting guests when you haven't "shoveled out" since May. Will you or won't you make it? But somehow the family will rally around and your house will look squeaky clean when your doorbell rings. It may even be squeaky clean, if you start with the upstairs linen closet. Which isn't a bad idea, since there's something about a clean linen closet that gives a woman a secret sense of power, like wearing lacy lingerie under your cotton shirtwaist dress.

Besides, it's good one-upmanship to put the last first, starting with some small, esoteric task. If you mention over morning coffee that you just marked all your linens, washed plastic-coated playing cards, dusted old teabags, or whatever, your neighbors naturally conclude that you'd deal with such trivia only after completing window washing, ceiling scrubbing and all the other basic drudgery.

LIB GLIB is another boon to those of us who hate to clean. Your typical woman's lib lady preaches a casual approach, assuming that most of us have more interesting things to do than clean house. (And who on earth doesn't?)

But the idea of non-sexist child raising is, to my mind, the greatest contribution of the lib literature. It's reassuring to know that you can borrow a son's muscle power and, at the same time, steer him away from old-fashioned sexual stereotypes. Of course, you have to catch him first. Our oldest-child-nominally-in-residence, a male almost 6 foot 4, is an expert at hiding on a football field or basketball court. However, I'm hoping for a few days between seasons when I can put him to work at home.

Unfortunately, by the time your male offspring is big enough and old enough to be of real help, he's also smart enough to think of more sophisticated excuses. He may, for instance, tell you that of course he'd be delighted to clean up his room but that such drastic action would disturb the delicate ecological balance.

On second thought, he just might well be right. At any rate, it's a new and timely reason to forget all about your fall housecleaning. At least until next year.

The Farm Is NOT For Sale

Oh, no no, it's not Arcadia Farm that's going on the block!

The farm is just the site of the Oct. 3 auction sponsored by Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses Club. The indoor arena at Arcadia will house the "Back to the Farm" sale of items being collected by the nurses for their annual fund-raiser.

News stories and signs state that the auction is AT the farm, but some persons have assumed that the farm itself will be auctioned.

THE NURSES CLUB will offer all kinds of furniture, accessories, handmade craft items and foods for the event the first Sunday in October. A bazaar booth will feature "homemades" such as quilts, ponchos, jellies, pickles and jewelry. Refreshments during the noon to 5 p.m. event will be served in a Country Kitchen.

Anyone having items to donate may contact Mrs. Stanley Russell, 29° 2649, but no clothing, please.

Arcadia Farm is located on Arlington Heights Road, one block north of Checker Road.

Bride Chooses Dressmaker Suit For August Wedding

Instead of the traditional floor length gown Grace Adele Danisch chose the new mid-length for her bridal ensemble and also the multi-color print worn by her attendant. Grace's white, silk outfit was a dressmaker suit done in Edwardian style and she carried a bouquet of Stephanotis baby's breath lily of the valley and ivy.

Daughter of former long time Mount Prospect residents Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Danisch who now reside at 1810 W. Thomas Atkinson Road Inverness, Palatine. Grace was married Aug. 14 to James Norman Kraft Jr., son of the senior James Kraft of Northbrook.

The wedding was held at 4:30 p.m. in South Church Mount Prospect with Pastor Ira Stevens officiating. A reception for 75 guests was held in Inverness Golf Club.

KAREN MARTIN of Chicago was the bride's only attendant, and to complement her gown she carried a bouquet of mixed flowers. Mrs. Danisch chose a pink and white Belgium lace and Mrs. Kraft a white-embroidered yellow cotton.

Grace a graduate of Palatine High School received her B.F.A. from the School of the Chicago Art Institute. She is now working on her M.A. at the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, where she is an assistant teacher.

Her bridegroom received his B.F.A. from the University of Arkansas and his M.F.A. from the University of New Mexico. He is now teaching photography at the University of New Mexico.

The newlyweds are making their home at 1711 Ross Place S.E. Albuquerque, N.M., after a honeymoon in Wisconsin.

Toast With 1893 Champagne

Champagne saved from his parents' wedding in 1891 was used for the toast Tuesday evening when Charles S. McDonough and his wife Olga celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

The couple who reside at 1190 Leicesters in Elk Grove Village celebrated at Nordic Hills Country Club with a reception and dinner party given by their daughter Mrs. Charlene Davis of Fort Worth, Texas, and their son Jay McDonough of Elk Grove Village. One of the mementoes from the anniversary is a congratulatory message from President Nixon.

The McDonoughs were married Sept. 21, 1921 in Fort Worth, Texas, and until moving to Elk Grove in 1968 were residents of Chicago. Charles retired in 1966 as an inspector for the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Besides their two children their family also includes five grandchildren.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We are suddenly surrounded by an army of gnats or they may be fruitflies. Do you have any idea on how we should get rid of them? We are actually ready to leave home — Phyllis C.

Know exactly how you feel. We had such an invasion once and his royal highness said: "Either they go or I do." It started innocently with some overripe bananas. I saw an occasional fruitfly and gave the situation a "lek" and a promise — using one of the milder insecticides which works only on contact. Naturally this has no effect on those that hatch after the spraying. A helpful pest control man told me to try it myself as it would amount to a tidy sum if they had to come out more than once. We used a strong spray — a residual spray that contained dieldrin. As these insects need water to live, every spot that is in close contact with water has to be sprayed — drains, toilet bowls, bathrooms, window and sills, basement drains, closets and so on. The nightmare is finally ended and I never see one fruitfly or gnat without giving it instant full attention.

Anyone who has the notion that American homemakers buy everything ready made and are helpless if things don't come just so ought to see the flow of letters from women describing the way they shorten too long shirt sleeves for their husbands and sons. Practically all shorten sleeves at the cuff, sometimes difficult as the body of the sleeve has to be taken in to adjust to the width of the cuff. This is the way I've always shortened sleeves myself, but thought it time to check with a high quality store to get the rundown on the standard tailoring practice. If the sleeve is 2 inches too long, 1 inch is subtracted from the shoulder and 1 inch from the cuff end. They do not tinker with sleeves more than 2 inches too long. Makes good sense to me.

Dear Dorothy: Someone told me recently to clean my costume jewelry with toothpaste. It does a beautiful job — J. L. Kerfoot.

Conference For Widows, Widowers

Catholic widows and widowers are invited to attend a conference at St. Mary's School Hall on Center Street just south of Prairie Avenue, Des Plaines this Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

A priest, an attorney and other speakers will answer questions pertinent to the problems of widowhood.

St. John's Chapter of NAIM will host the conference. Naim is an organization to help Catholic widows and widowers adjust to their loss and to their new state in life and affords them the opportunity to meet others in the same situation.

St. John's urges those eligible to also attend their monthly meeting this Friday, at 8:30 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 760 Pearson St., Des Plaines.

For more information interested persons are asked to call 824-3366. Members come from Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows.

A Traveling Bake Sale Saturday

If you live in Cambridge, Mill Creek or the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove don't plan a breakfast menu for Saturday. Members of the newly formed Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club will be selling homebaked "goodies" from five station wagons that morning beginning at 9 a.m. The "goodies" will include breakfast cakes, cookies, brownies, breads and corn muffins, according to Mrs. John Huth and Mrs. Tom Schmidt.

The decorated cars will be cruising on Bernard Street west from Arlington Heights Road to Buffalo Grove Road and south on Raupp Boulevard from Lake-Cook Road to Dundee Road until all the baked goods are sold.

Proceeds from the traveling bake sale will be used to purchase tulip bulbs to be planted by all primary grade students at Kilmer, Alcott, Longfellow, Willow Grove and St. Mary's Schools.

For A Happy Life

It's Fun in September To:

1. Pick a different color for your fall wardrobe this year, plum, green, caramel or black.
2. Train every child who is old enough to make his own bed.
3. Consider how you could become a more interesting person.
4. Wash basement windows inside and out.
5. Study your own posture. Resolve to walk like a queen.
6. Arrange a late afternoon wiener roast for the neighborhood children next Saturday.
7. Offer to take on a chore for a mother who has to work.
8. Note these words by Goethe: "Ignorant men raise questions that wise men answered a thousand years ago."

Together They Lighted A Candle

For "something old" Lynanne Fouty wore her grandmother's ruby ring when she married James Robert Schweiger Aug. 14 in Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights. Lynanne, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. Todd Fouty, 412 S. Yale, Arlington Heights, and James, son of Col. and Mrs. Edward C. Schweiger of Huntley, Ill., wrote their own vows which were concluded with a soloist singing "One Hand, One Heart."

The couple also lit a single candle together during the 3 p.m. service at which Rev. William Zavaski and Rev. Frank Jenks officiated.

Given in marriage by her father Lynanne wore a white silk organza gown with Empire waist, high neckline and long sleeves. The bodice and sleeves were trimmed in peau d'ange lace and frosted with clusters of pearls. The A-line skirt with scalloped hemline was trimmed with appliques of the lace as was the sweep train. A ballerina veil fell from her pillbox headpiece which was also trimmed in lace and pearls, and she carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

KATHY KOVACS, Arlington Heights, was Lynanne's maid of honor and bridesmaids were her cousins, Marsha Bennett, Westfield, Ill., and Rita Duensing, Tuscola, Ill., and Mrs. Sandra Hickman, Peoria, a college friend.

They wore pastel flowered gowns in blue, green, yellow and white fashioned with high necklines, bishop sleeves and Empire waists accented with velvet ribbon and streamers that matched the ribbons on their picture hats. They carried baskets with blue and white daisies with baby's breath and chartreuse star flowers. Ribbons on Miss Kovacs' gown were in deep blue; apple green accented the bridesmaids' gowns. The bridesmaids' gowns were sewn by the bride's mother, light green beaded knit dress and coat ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Schweiger

Lynanne and James honeymooned for a week in Las Vegas, Nev., and are now at home in a Rolling Meadows apartment.

The new Mrs. Schweiger is a graduate of Arlington High School and received her B.S. in business education from Western Illinois University, Macomb. Her bridegroom, a graduate of Prospect High School, received his bachelor of business degree in business administration from Western. He is now a sales representative for Unigard Insurance Group, Arlington Heights.

A CHAMPAGNE DINNER reception for 125 guests was held at Henrici's O'Hare Inn. Mrs. Fouty received in a beaded yellow silk shantung dress and coat ensemble and Mrs. Schweiger in a white feathered mums and Elegance carnations.

Walt Borg, Junction City, was best man. Groomsmen included Robert Gofinski, Rolling Meadows; William Christensen, St. Louis; and Charles Burger Jr., Mount Prospect.

A 5 o'clock dinner followed the rites, served in the Holiday Inn at Quincy.

The bride is a graduate of Gem City College, Quincy, and has been a secretary in the public relations office at Culver-Stockton College, Canton.

Clyde is a '66 graduate of Prospect High School and a '70 graduate of Culver-Stockton. He has completed six months, training in the Illinois National Guard.

The newlyweds are living at 518 S. Main St., Mount Prospect, after a wedding trip to Miami, Fla.

Four New Art Prints Donated To Library

Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club recently purchased four art prints for the Mount Prospect Public Library. The prints were purchased by the Literature and Drama Department with proceeds from a used book sale held at the library.

The four prints are "The Mill at Dedham" by Constable; "Saskia" by Rembrandt; "Fruit" by Peale; and "Lapin Agile with Snow" by Utrillo. The prints are available to the public on loan from the library.

Patricia June Schlager, daughter of the John C. Schlagers of Canton, Mo., and Clyde Robert Zaver, son of Mrs. E. A. Zaver of Mount Prospect and the late Mr. Zaver, were united in marriage at 4 p.m. Sept. 4 in Union United Methodist Church, Quincy, Ill.

Mrs. Frank Ewart of Williamstown, Mo., served her sister as matron of honor and Susan Walters of Kirksville, Mo., was maid of honor. Mrs. Walt Borg, Junction City, Kan., and Mrs. Steve Schlager of Springfield, Ill., the bride's sister-in-law, were bridesmaids.

The bride chose a gown of white organza over taffeta with beaded Venice lace trim. It was styled with an Empire bodice appliqued in lace, a sheer yoke, high collar and long full sleeves. The gown ended in a court length train edged in lace.

Patricia's Venice lace half-hat held her court-length train. She carried a nosegay of white Sweetheart roses, stephanotis and Elegance carnations.

HER ATTENDANTS wore floor-length gowns of cherry colored saki with bell sleeves and a draped train. They wore matching Camelot hats and veils and carried nosegays of pink Sweetheart roses.

They Met In Ireland

It was in Ireland while on a literary tour of Ireland, Scotland and England that Isabel Anderson, daughter of the Roy Andersons of Arlington Heights, met Gerald D. Erickson, son of the Victor R. Ericksons of Wheaton. Isabel was a student of Wheaton College and Gerald was a student at Trinity College in Deerfield.

A graduate of Wheaton College Isabel also studied a year at Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University. She is now an editor with Cook Publishing Co., Elgin. Her bridegroom, a graduate of Trinity, is doing graduate work at DePaul University, Chicago and is also teaching English at Trinity College.

Isabel and Gerald were married Aug. 14 in a small candlelight service held in Wurdack Chapel at Wheaton College.

FOR HER WEDDING Isabel chose a long, white lace Empire gown with long, puffed sleeves. The neckline, hem and sleeves were edged in scalloped lace. Her veil was fingertip, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and white roses. Mr. Anderson gave his daughter in marriage during the double ring service.

Miss Jean Allen of Park Ridge was maid of honor and Miss Ann Ramsey of North Canton, Ohio, a college friend, was bridesmaid. Both wore in mint green dotted swiss Empire gowns with short puffed sleeves. They carried daisies and baby's breath.

Eric Hanson of Wheaton was best man and ushers were the groom's brothers, Victor T. Erickson of Chicago and Randy Erickson of Wheaton, and Richard McManus of Wheeling.

The dinner reception was held in the Swedish Manor, Glen Ellyn, with Mrs. Anderson receiving in an apricot knit

The Prophet Of Change

Educator Has Faith In Man

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Wilson D. Riles, who's responsible to the people of California for the state of their education, was bubbling. Figuratively. Or as much as a sedately gray man in a conservative blue suit and pastoral white shirt can be in a bubbled state.

A California Supreme Court ruling had just made it clear that public education financed by local property taxes was inequitable and unfair. And Wilson D. Riles frankly agreed.

"No child should have a poor education," he said feelingly, "just because he happens to live in a poor district." He illustrated: In posh Beverly Hills a tax rate of $2.40 per $100 yields $1,500 to educate each pupil, whereas in plebian West Covina, a few miles away, a tax rate of almost $5 nets only $700 per pupil.

So Riles was letting his sympathies hang out, although as the state superintendent of Public Instruction, the No. 1 man, elected by the people, he must be equally sensitive to the burgers of Beverly Hills and West Covina.

"In this case," he said exultantly, "thank God for the Constitution. And thank God for the courts."

Wilson D. Riles talks like that. A blend of fervor and dignity and righteousness.

LITTLE MORE than a year ago, few citizens had ever heard of him. He had never run for public office. He was 53 years old. And he is black, obvious black, with the rich sound of his native deep South still lingering in his speech.

"Every kind of professional politician said a black man can't win," he mused, fully filling the chair of his office — he's a big man, 6 feet 4 inches tall. "You're qualified. You'd be an excellent superintendent. But you can't win. Because you're black. Blacks comprise 7 per cent of the population. You have the image of a liberal! — I don't like that term but that's what they said — 'and the state is moving in the direction of a conservative state.'"

"I didn't listen to that kind of talk. I knew deep down that people want good leadership for good education. That's what happened."

What happened was that Riles, a career educator who started out teaching in a one-room Apache reservation schoolhouse, decided in February of 1970 that his predecessor, controversial Max Rafferty, "was not really concerned about improving education in that state," and that no qualified person showed an inclination to oppose him.

"I decided," said Riles, "I'm going to run if no one else does. I wouldn't have it on my conscience that I didn't try."

At the point the polls showed a 7 per cent recognition factor for Riles. He remedied that with a whirlwind campaign which netted him 54 per cent of the popular vote. Did he relish the game of politics?

"I NEVER FELT about it that way. It was a deadly serious business to me, and I cared about winning. I went into this not only for my own self-promotion. You know, when you look at the education system in the state, someone has to do something about it."

Riles spoke from personal appreciation of education.

"I was born in the deep, rural South," he said. "If I hadn't received a break here and there, I could have either been on the welfare rolls or caught up in the law. But at certain points there was always someone to encourage me, to say, 'You can make it if you try.' I believed it."

So much so that he preached that philosophy in his campaign, even to young student dissidents.

"I said to them," he continued, "Many of you talk about tearing down the establishment or tearing down the structure. There may be something wrong with the people in it, but in my view there is nothing wrong with the structure. Once disadvantaged or deprived people know how it works, they can function in it."

WILSON D. RILES came to Sacramento 12 years ago to join the State Department of Education. He is now called Dr. Riles, although formally he has only a master's degree. In 1965, Pepperdine College awarded him an honorary doctorate of law. And St. Mary's College and the University of the Pacific have subsequently honored him, too.

His life style since becoming state superintendent of Public Instruction hasn't changed. He lives in the same modest house on Warren Avenue in South Land Park he bought 12 years ago. He admits he had some problems getting a place in an upper-middle-class neighborhood. "I wasn't interested in having a court case," he said. A doctor's widow interested in fighting discriminatory real estate practices helped him find an adequate four-bedroom house.

His four children are now grown. Three of them are college graduates. But none are teachers.

The most important change that has come to Riles is the size of his office on the fifth floor of the education building on the wide mall which leads to the state capitol. It's big enough to have a conference table. Flags of the United States and the state of California are in a corner. Another corner holds a shiny trophy, the Abraham Lincoln Award given him by the National Education Association. On his semi-tidy desk there is a copy of Roberts English Series, a textbook.

AUTOMATICALLY, one wondered if he considered his job as the fruition of a career?

"If you mean," he parried, "am I interested in Mr. Agnew's job, or Mr. Cranston's (U.S. senator), or Governor Reagan's — no, I'm not interested in politically going ahead. If I can do the kind of job that I think ought to be done in California, that would be enough."

He does get impatient at the slow process of change.

"Education being a state function," he said. "I get very upset because we seem to move so slow. The courts, as in the local property tax decision, only get involved because those of us in leadership positions don't move fast enough or far enough."

"I do find that being an elective official does give you a kind of freedom to pursue a goal of improving education where, as an appointee, you might find yourself restrained. I'm beholden (sic) to the people — that's the way it is."

Through his conversation, there is the thread of implicit faith in the good nature of man, a positive feeling that would come out as cliché if it weren't uttered with such sincerity.

"PERHAPS," Riles indulged in some self-analysis, "I was influenced by some Quakers. I worked with during my student and teaching days in Arizona. They have in their philosophy that there is that of God in every man. That is, an individual has good feelings and instincts and traits as well as what we might call evil. The question then comes, how do you appeal to that in all of us that is positive, that is good? How do you approach an individual?"

"If you approach him to threaten him," he continued, "to make him more insecure, he will react. If you approach an individual with an expectation he's going to be fair, chances are he will live up to this."

"Consequently, if you're working with a legislator who feels his community will not support the good things he wishes to put forth, and indeed would throw him out of office, the likelihood of him going ahead is certainly diminished."

"So what does that say? We must do something to get the support of that legislator who has to cast the vote. And that means those of us in education. In this case, will have to do a better job of interpreting to the people what the needs of the schools are. If the people want a decision made, it becomes a political reality that it be done."

BETH TIKVAH SISTERHOOD

"It's a Very Good Year" will be the surprise feature for tonight's program for the first general meeting of the year for Beth Tikvah Sisterhood. The musical was written, directed and produced by Sisterhood members.

The business meeting will begin at 8:30; the program and coffee hour will follow. Sisterhood meetings are held at the Beth Tikvah Congregation, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates. Anyone wishing further information may call Mrs. Joseph Splansky, 358-9270, or the membership chairman, Mrs. Bernard Kuzan, 894-5315. Guests are invited.

MT. PROSPECT NEWCOMERS

"Let's Get Acquainted" is the theme for the meeting of Mount Prospect Newcomers Club tonight at 8 in the local community center.

After the business session, a round-robin in card party will keep players moving from table to table, changing partners as they go. No card playing skill is needed, just a friendly "hello" and the willingness to make new friends. Mrs. Fred Bietze, 394-5354 or Mrs. Roger Meier, 394-0562, can be contacted for details.

WHEELING-BUFFALO GROVE NEWCOMERS CLUB

What does your handwriting tell about you? That is the topic for Thursday's meeting of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Newcomers Club. "Your Self-Concept in Handwriting" will be discussed by graphologist Elvira Behrens.

Miss Behrens is a handwriting consultant, lecturer and teacher of basic and advanced courses in handwriting analysis. According to her, handwriting is an expression of the subconscious mind as well as the conscious effort to conform to a pattern of handwriting. Following her talk, she will be available for a personal handwriting analysis.

Thursday's meeting begins at 8 p.m. at Adolorata Villa, Wheeling. Mrs. Kenneth Neilson, 337-6039, has details.

ARLINGTON GEN

Arlington Heights Chapter 992, Order of the Eastern Star, will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the local Masonic Temple. Mrs. Arthur E. Harris, worthy matron, has designated this as Sideline's Night, when members of the chapter receive special recognition.

ARLINGTON HOMEMAKER UNIT

Arlington Heights Homemaker Unit will hold its first fall meeting at Arlington Heights Historical Society, 110 W. Fremont, Thursday at 1 p.m. Hostesses will be Mrs. Paul Della and Mrs. Victor

Family Picnic

The Harper College faculty will gather for a family picnic at Deer Grove Forest Preserve in Palatine Sunday afternoon. The event marks the beginning of the school year of activities for Harper College Faculty Wives Club.

The picnic starts at 3 p.m. and includes hiking and games for the children. Mrs. Jack Fuller and Mrs. John Pantre are in charge of the program.

Arlington Woman's Club Competes For '72 Awards

Mrs. Laddie F. Poduska, Arlington Heights Woman's Club president, has announced her club's entry in the 1970-72 Community Improvement Program, co-sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Sears, Roebuck and Co. Purpose of the program is to stimulate federated women's clubs to cooperate with other groups and individuals in analyzing and meeting community needs.

More than $100,000 in awards are being offered in the national program. Five states awards ranging from $50 to $300 and five honorable mentions will be presented to top winners at the 77th annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in April 1972 in Chicago. National awards ranging from $1,500 to $10,000 in each of two categories, metropolitan and non-metropolitan, will be presented at the GFWC 81st annual convention in Denver, Colorado, June 4-9, 1971. All awards won must be used for further community improvement.

Mrs. Poduska states that the Arlington Heights Woman's Club will work on community development with special emphasis upon the youth of Arlington Heights during the current program.

TO CARRY OUT this program, the club will sponsor its second Annual Antique Show and Sale at Fritzels, Arlington Heights, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 14 and 15. Advance tickets are now on sale from Mrs. John Frieberg, 255-0688, for $1.25. Door sales will be $1.50.

Cincinnati Visits For Pro Exhibition

Chicago Bulls On Display Tonight In Prospect Gym

There are no pillars to cuss at, no beer vendors to refuse for the umpteenth time and no seats that require a telescope to decipher a player's number.

A completely unadorned, sober and accurate view of the Chicago Bulls follows the still fresh droning of electrifying motorcycle engines into the Northwest suburbs tonight at Prospect High School. Tip-off is slated for 7:30 p.m.

The normally irritating journey to the Bulls' home stomping grounds via bumper-to-bumper expressways, the costly and cramped parking conditions and the "let's leave after the third quarter to beat the traffic" strategy will all be partially solved when Prospect swings open its 3500-seating capacity doors and ample parking lot gates.

Tonight's bout is the second stop of an 11-game exhibition schedule for the Bulls who are operating out of their preseason training camp at Wheaton College. Dick (Coach of the Year) Motta and 6-8 Howard (touted Villanova rookie) Porter will lead Chicago's still to be trimmed 15-player roster onto the hardwood.

Jackie Dinkins, Sam Hill, Kennedy McIntosh, recently acquired Charlie Paulk, Sam Watts and Clifford Ray will join Bull veterans Bob Love, Chet Walker, Tom Boerwinkle, Jim Fox, Jimmy Collins, Jim King, Jerry Sloan and Bob Weiss.

Awaiting the challenge are the Cincinnati Royals who are tabbed for improvement after suffering through a losing record last season. Directed by Head Coach Bob Cousy and with the likes of Tom Van Arsdale, Johnny Green and Darrell Imhoff, the Cincinnati Kids will be trouble.

Catering professional basketball to the suburbs was originally the creation of Northwest Professional Sports Inc. which introduced the Northwest Travelers into the Continental Basketball Association from a home base at Prospect High School.

The Board of Directors of the corporation included Ron Wittmeyer, Marshall Theroux, Jack Whistler, Russ Shaw, Don Schmidt and Jack Air, of which Wittmeyer helped open relations with Bull General Manager Pat Williams.

"I went to Williams about a year and a half ago," Wittmeyer said, "to guide me through our season with the Travelers. We, in turn, kept him informed of how our players were doing from time to time."

The Bulls are only allowed to control

12 players under National Basketball Association rules and thus are not a mother club to any farm teams.

"When they landed Paul Ruffner and A. J. Holt," Wittmeyer continued, "they sent the boys to us to gain some playing time with the Travelers. Ruffner, of course, emerged as the CBA's leading scorer and, as it turned out, was sent to the Pittsburgh Condors in the Howard Porter deal.

"In June, I visited Pat to discuss our past season and the future. This is when he asked me if we would be interested in an exhibition game in the fall. Obviously, we were thrilled and quickly asked permission from Prospect High School and play in a live game and those that do come to the Stadium may not be able to appreciate the full size of the players. Prospect High School will offer us not only a beautiful facility, but an easily accessible, central location."

After tonight's engagement, the Bulls will be back in town Sept. 25 at Wheaton College against Detroit; Sept. 25 at the Athletic Convocation Center in South Bend, Ind. against Cleveland; against Phoenix at DeKalb on Oct. 5 and at Bloom Township High School, Oct. 6 against the same Suns.

Williams is a sharpie. At only 31, he's already entering his third year as the Bulls' G.M. after a stint with the Philadelphia Warriors. He's knowledgeable and has helped make the Bulls a contender and worthwhile attraction after five other franchises have tried and failed.

A 1962 graduate of Wake Forest, Williams gained immediate attention by shrewdly dealing Jimmy Washington to Philadelphia for blue-chip veteran Chet Walker.

Motta, a fiery disciplinarian, has exhibited his faith in Williams and the Bulls by inking his signature on a new five-year contract, by claiming his job in Chicago still is unfinished. But, then again, a completed job, under Motta's standards, may call for an undefeated, unscored-upon season.

For the second time in a month, a professional sports spectacle will infiltrate our normally pro-starved suburbs. If basketball fans welcome the Bulls as they did the motorcycle races, Prospect High School will be an ant hill of activity.

Tickets are still available at 10 locations throughout the area at $3 for adults and $2 for youths under 18. All seats are unreserved, but advanced ticket buyers will have priority when the doors open at 6:30 p.m.

Northwest Travelers' T-shirts will be on sale in the lobby where Bull players will also be available for autographs after the game.

Striker Lanes Takes Lead

Bowlers in the Paddock Classic Traveling League proved they are human after all when they finally cooled off last Saturday evening at Striking Lanes after two sizzling opening weeks.

After 700 series were rolled those first two sessions with a multitude of 600 scores, only one 600 was posted Saturday — that being 611 by Joe Simonis of Uncle Andy's Cow Palace.

And after six of the eight teams had series in excess of 2900 just a week earlier, none reached that plateau Saturday. Best series was Morton Pontiac's 2857.

Striker Lanes in Buffalo Grove — not to be confused with Mount Prospect's Striking Lanes — pulled into undisputed possession of first place with a 5-2 victory over Hoffman Lanes. That broke a first-place deadlock with Ten Pin Bowl, which was being trimmed 4-3 by Leone Pools. Striker's 14½ points gives it a two-point edge.

In the other two matches, Des Plaines Ace Hardware scored a 5-2 win over Uncle Andy's and Morton Pontiac triumphed by the same score over Gaare Oil Co.

Striker won despite only a 2696 series by winning two of three close games. Hoffman's only points came on a narrow four-pin advantage in the middle game. The winners were led by Hal Collier, whose 596 series was second-best in the league. Collier's closing 252 game was easily the highest of the night in the PCTL.

Barry Stjernberg, who had one of a pair of 596's for third best of the evening, paced Des Plaines Ace Hardware's victory. He closed with a 229. Don Buschner had a 578 and Don Christensen 571. Simonis led Uncle Andy's with a pair of 200-plus efforts.

Des Plaines Lanes Shows Advance

Des Plaines Lanes was the team they were talking about after last Saturday evening's second session of the season in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League.

Des Plaines ran up the only 7-0 shutout of the night at Thunderbird, easily downing Koko Office Supplies. That lifted the winners within a point of first-place Franklin-Weber Pontiac and in the process they posted easily the highest team series of the evening, 2662.

Donna Lohse paced the victory with a 554 series, only one point from being best of the night. Donna opened with a 205 game.

The other three matches all ended in 5-2 scores with L-Tran Engineering prevailing over Doyle's-Striking Lanes, Franklin-Weber over Thunderbird Country Club and Arlington Park Towers over Morton Pontiac.

L-Tran's triumph moved it to third place with the second-best team series, 2609. Isobel Kosi led the winners with 550 but high for the match — in fact, for the league all night — was Lu Schoenberger with 559 for Doyle's. Lu, who had a 200 middle game, is perennially at or near the top of the list of individual averages. Isobel had highest game of the night, 220, in her second outing.

Jean Ladd, who matched Donna Lohse's 558 as second-best of the night, was tops in the Franklin-Thunderbird match. The winners' top scores were a pair of 548 series by Lee Winski and Marge Lindenberg.

Mary Lou Kolb's 554 paced Arlington Park Towers to its win. She started off with a hot 219. Morton's best was Jan Broderick with 542.

Schaumburg Ties For Top Spot In Niles West Invite

The school bus was a little more weighted down Monday when Schaumburg's cross country contingent returned from Niles West.

Both varsity and frosh soph Saxon entries toled home trophies from the 19-team invitational meet conducted by the Indians with coach Dennis Garber's upper level unit taking half the first place hardware.

Schaumburg's varsity tied Glenbrook North for the championship at 79-all. En route, all seven members of the Saxon outfit placed among the top 50 out of nearly 100 participants.

Arnold Jackson, the sophomore whiz, snared the third position with Rick Staback taking ninth place and Mike Carey 13th. John Schevikhoven placed 21st and Doug Warlick 39th to round out scoring while Bill Hommowun finished 40th and Wayne Jensen 49th.

Roy Hascup's soph chargers placed third as a team behind winning Maine North and runnerup GBN but fared even better individually. There were well over 100 entries and seven Saxons finished 36th or better.

The scoring at the chute had Doug Carver ninth, Mike Istok 12th, Bob Solik 13th, Mike Scheuler 21st, Dom Alardo 27th, Mike Hommowun 34th and Frank Hevener 36th.

"CLEAR THE WAY!" That seems to be Conant Lake Park's defense in a moment of hesitation. rousing first quarter, Conant's performance tailed off in a 20-6 opening night loss Friday night. (Photo by Tom Grieger)

49ers, Redskins Show Opening Day Class

by League Publisher

The Redskins and the 49ers marked themselves as the teams to beat in the Senior League opener in Arlington Heights Boys Football play Sunday.

The Redskins won an impressive 36-8 victory over last year's champion Rams, while the 49ers outplayed the Lions 34-18.

On Saturday, the Giants, Saints, and Steelers won opening day victories in the Varsity League. The Giants shut out the Browns 28-0, and the Steelers also won by the shutout route - 22-0 over the Vikings. The Saints downed the Eagles 22-6.

In the Junior League, only two teams, the Colts and the Falcons, were able to muster the offensive punch to score. The Colts dropped the Cowboys 12-0, while the Falcons won over the Packers 16-0. The Cards and Bears played to an 0-0 standstill.

Redskins 36 — Rams 8

The Redskins broke an 11-8 halftime tie to rout the Rams with a four-touchdown second half - three markers coming in the fourth quarter.

Flat passes and end sweeps were the most effective weapons used by the Redskins offense. Matt Shattum passed to Wayne Eshenuth and Phil Dinelli for touchdowns, and line runs by Doug Devlin, Erik Malvik, and George Bastable accounted for the remaining three touchdowns.

A fine run by Mike Schell of the Rams accounted for the only score for the Rams following a Redskins kickoff.

The Redskin victory was a team effort. The defense was lead by Rick Purcell, middle linebacker, and linemen Mark Koupinen and Pat Higgins.

49ers 34 — Lions 18

Behind 12-6 at the half, the 49ers roared back with 20 points in the second half to ice the 34-18 victory over the Lions.

The 49ers Dave Thielmann scored twice on one yard plunges and again on a 26 yard pass play from Kevin Mulroy, who tossed two TD passes. Gary Adams was on the receiving end of the second one. Art Klein recovered a blocked punt in the Lions end zone to complete the scoring for the 49ers.

The first time the Lions had the ball, Keith Mason ran 56 yards around left end for a touchdown, and in the second quarter John Gillen carried over from the two yard line to give the Lions a half-time edge. Todd Schevantes caught a pass and ran 60 yards for the final Lion tally.

Giants 28 — Browns 0

The Giants, in a fine team effort, overwhelmed the Browns 28-0 at Pioneer Park. Pat Shaw passed four times to John Vukovich for a total of 110 yards, including one 30-yard touchdown. Vukovich also ran 35 and 5 yards for touchdowns.

Jim Bosch returned a Brown's punt 35 yards for the fourth Giant score. Keith Siroky ran for two extra points.

The Giants' defense was spearheaded by Vukovich, Gary Kempton, and Bosch.

Steelers 22 — Vikings 0

The Steelers combined a powerful offense with a rugged defense to win their first Varsity League victory in four years. Late in the first quarter, fullback Tom North went off left tackle and raced 70 yards to paydirt. Rick Sutton scored the two-point conversion.

After recovering a Viking fumble in the second period, the Steelers moved into scoring position on runs by halfbacks Randy Blohm and Gary Vevang and passes from quarterback Kevin O'Brien to right end Kevin Kiley. North again scored on a dive off tackle.

Midway in the third quarter, the Steelers drove off the Viking 15 where O'Brien pitched out to Sutton who passed to Kiley for the score. O'Brien rolled out to his left and spun into the end zone for the two-point conversion.

The Steeler defense held the Vikings to only two first downs. Tom Powell threw the Viking passer for big losses on several occasions.

Saints 22 — Eagles 6

The Saints got the 1971 season off with a 22-6 win over the Eagles. Fullback Blake Schmidt raced for three touchdowns on runs of 55, 16, and 6 yards. Jim Braddock and Scott Eichelman scored the points after. Quarterbacks Mike Ambrosio and Craig McKillip moved the team well.

The defensive teams turned in a fine effort in containing the Eagles. A pass interception and fumble recovery by Curtis Palmer and the fine tackling of Tom Schwartz led the defense.

The Eagles only touchdown came in the first period on a 5-yard run by Bob Bettis set up by a 22-yard run by Bill Conner.

Defensive standouts for the Eagles were Conner, Scott Barber, Dick Reeves, and Marty Schell. Ward Willmer intercepted one Saints pass.

Colts 12 — Cowboys 0

Scoring in the first and fourth quarters, the Colts won a 12-0 victory over the Cowboys in the Junior League.

The Colts scored first on a perfectly-executed end-around - a 15-yard scamper by Harbough. The try for extra point was not good. The second Colt score came on a 32-yard punt return by White.

The Colts' defense limited the Cowboys to two first downs. J. Butts made 14 tackles and Smithern made 12 in stopping the Cowboys. In addition, Butts and Conrad each blocked a punt.

Leading the Cowboys were LeBlank and Gillman, each of whom recovered Colt fumbles, and Flynn, who intercepted a pass.

Falcons 6 — Packers 0

Scoring in the second and fourth quarters, and overcoming over 100 yards in penalties, the Falcons won their opener 16-0 over the Packers.

Late in the first half, the Falcons got rolling on passes from Rick Sanders to Mike Andjeski for 37 yards and Marty Kams for 25. Then Kams took a Sanders pass in the flat and ran 10 yards for the first score of the game. Sanders himself carried on a quarterback sneak for the second touchdown.

The Falcon defense was sparked by a number of good tackles by Mike Paice, Jim Murphy, and Scott Ryan.

The Packer defense was led by Tom Moore, Bob Bateson, and Rob Gollberg. Scott Zekes and Kevin Collins played strong offensive roles for the Packers.

Cards 0 — Bears 0

This was a game between evenly matched teams marred by fumbles and penalties. The only real scoring threat in the first half came on a 20-yard pass play from Bear quarterback Brad Russell to John Wakely. But the Cardinal defense stopped the Bears on the 4-yard line. The balance of the half was spent in Cardinal territory. Good punting by Scott Susans got the Cards out of the hole several times.

The ball continued to change hands throughout the third and fourth quarters in the middle of the field without either team having the advantage. Then late in the game the Bears managed to move again deep into Card territory, only to be stopped on the 3-yard line. Time ran out as the Cardinals moved the ball out of the shadow of their own goal.

St. Viator Harriers In 24-35 Victory

Joe Sweeney and Joe Gunterman paced a hungry pack of St. Viator Lions to a 24-35 cross country triumph over hated Glenbrook South.

The St. Viator senior duo conquered a difficult 2.75-mile Titan layout that included a multitude of hills, railroad tracks and a winding stream.

Sweeney earned meet honors in 14:17 and was shadowed by runnerup teammate Gunterman in 14:25. Glenbrook kept the varsity outcome in doubt by sending in Bob Walton, Kurt Gregory, and Marty Burke in 11:25, 11:30, and 11:31, respectively, but a quartet of blue and white-clad Lions put the decision in the victory column.

Bob Ellsworth (14:47), Tom Orrell (14:52), Greg Franzen (15:36), first starter Randy Hughes (15:03), and Kevin Green (15:17) all poured into the chute without a replay from the Titans.

On the fresh-soph level, however, Glenbrook South squeezed Dan Wesner (11:13) and Clyde Forester (11:16) in ahead of Lion front-runner Larry Chmel (11:17) to gain a 19-35 split for the day.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

IT'S THE TIME of year when anyone who likes the outdoors just has to have that Ernie Benders kind of enthusiasm. The "beautiful confines" of the upper Midwest is a great place to be.

The special season for hunting Teal opened last Saturday and runs through Sept. 26. The season, designated to take advantage of the early migrating blue-winged, green-winged and cinnamon teal, may be a little early this year... or it may be a little late. It all depends on where you were sitting on opening day.

Hunters in the Chain of Lakes refuge area of Grass Lake in northern Illinois found plenty of ducks, including mallards, wood ducks and bluebills, which won't be legal until Oct. 23. But they also had plenty of shooting for teal. If Chain of Lakes hunters have any serious problems, it is that often, and particularly early in the season the hunters often outnumber the ducks. Still, a hunter who knew what he was doing could harvest his four-bird limit of teal.

All-in-all, officials were pleased with the opening weekend of the early teal season. One ranger from the Chain state park reported that, to his knowledge, not one citation was issued for a hunter shooting a duck other than a teal. This is a long step upward from the first attempt at an early teal season several years ago when hunters didn't take the "teal only" regulation seriously and popped at everything that flew, mallards and wood ducks included.

Duck populations are good throughout northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin, but only a few geese have been sighted.

When the statewide goose and duck season opens on Oct. 2 in Wisconsin, however, pressure will be put on the waterfowl in no uncertain terms and the Illinois lakes and ponds should be full of birds for our opening day.

Oct. 2 will be a busy day for Wisconsin hunters. The cottontail and jackrabbit season opens in the northern part of the state (north of Highway 59) on that day; the ruffed grouse season opens, as do seasons for sharp-tail grouse, at noon; Wilson's snipe, at noon; Sora and Virginia rails; Gallinule; ducks, at noon; geese, except the Hottel refuge; and coot, at noon.

BUT YOU DON'T have to be a hunter to enjoy fall. Because the big fish seem to be everywhere too.

On the Chain of Lakes and in the inland lakes throughout northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin, the bass are starting to hit again. The big fish are in toward the shoreline, working the weeds and underwater bars and you can take them on an artificial worm. A slip-sinker ahead of the plastic worm is preferable to a fixed-weight jig-head, so you can work the weeds without hanging up. If there is a color preference at all, it is more toward the transparent, lighter colors of natural and red. Single-spinner baits, like the Raider and the Bass-Buster also work, but you have to be cranking when the lure hits the water so that it is flashing the instant it begins to sink.

Fishermen are also finding the Bomber an effective bait. This plug dives on the retrieve and is best worked on the deep side of weed beds and lily pads.

In lower Wisconsin, good bass and walleye catches have been reported from Powers, Shingila, Silver and Twin lakes. Again artificial silver crawlers and jigs are working, respectively. Fish the jigs right off the bottom over the walleye bars. Let it hit bottom, crank it a few inches off bottom, then jig it twice and... hopefully... set the hook!

On the Lake Michigan shoreline, the coho and brown trout are beginning to move in so that soon we will be catching them right off the piers and breakwaters.

Right now, however, the fish are schooling further out and if you want them, you have to go get them with silver lures. The most successful fishermen are using spoons like the Dardevil, Little Cleo and Sutton in the shallower waters. For deep running, use silver Spoonplugs, Rapalas in blue and silver and Hothed trolling flies, along with the Sutton and Red-eye spoons.

In the case of the Hothed fly, a relatively new development by Burke Fishing Lures, you have to do a little rigging. But you can rig the fly a variety of ways and sweep up coho, chinook and lake trout with it. For shallow running, you need a 2½ ounce keel singer six inches ahead of the fly and run the boat fast. To troll the fly deeper, rig a gang of shiners or a small "O" herring dodger with a 4½ ounce keel singer ahead of the fly.

The coho are schooling northeast of Waukegan anywhere from 20 to 30 feet down in 50 feet of water. The lake trout are nearly due east of Waukegan at 40 feet in 75 feet of water. The browns are schooling just east of the Commonwealth Edison warm water discharge canal north of Waukegan and they'll be moving into the mouth of the canal, as well as in toward the harbors and breakwaters in another week.

The coho haven't yet shown up anywhere around the stocking site at the Great Lakes Naval Station or further south in the Chicago area. And they probably can't be expected in either of those areas for shoreline fishermen for another two weeks, or until the weather conditions drive the shoreline water temperatures down some more. We want 53 degrees, please, Mr. Volkman.

And to make the fall activity complete, the Fox River in Racine County, Wisconsin is producing big catfish, while Lincoln and Vilas county lakes are producing even bigger muskies.

What a great place to live in the fall.

Archbold, Powell 1-2 In Grenadier Success

Damian Archbold and Brian Powell, shadowing each other through the cross country chute at Pioneer Park, gave Elk Grove the needed leadership to sweep hosting Arlington and Conant Monday afternoon.

The Grenadiers, helped by Archbold and Powell's 1-2 finish, defeated Arlington 25-32 and Conant 15-50 in the Mid-Suburban League opener on the Cardinals' three-mile course.

Archbold turned in a 15:32 with Powell just one second behind to get the Grove off and running toward its first harrier title ever. Taking the other three spots for the winners were Tom Ziffra (16:03) in fourth, Fred Klink in sixth (16:13) and Tom Boggs in 12th (16:52).

Scott Barnett, Arlington's top harrier, finished third with 15:55 in helping the Cards defeat Conant 15-50. The other Card finishers were Jim McGrath (16:16) in seventh, Neil Haseman (16:29) in eighth, Tom Holub (16:36) in ninth, Bill Schmid (16:42) in 10th and Rick Turner (16:48) in 11th.

Mark Lindberg and Tom Wadron cracked the top 20 list with 17th and 19th, respectively, for Conant.

The Cougars did well on the lower levels, however. They swept the sophomore meets with scores of 15-49 over Elk Grove and 25-34 over Arlington. Arlington also won with a 25-35 count over the Grove.

The Cardinals were the double winners on the freshman level by 24-34 over Conant and 15-50 over Elk Grove. Conant also romped past Elk Grove, 15-49.

McGovney Sets FV Record

Forest View's Scott McGovney set a new varsity school record while leading the Falcon cross country team to a pair of dual victories over Barrington and Fenton Monday on the winners' home course.

The Falcons stopped Barrington 15-45 and Fenton 25-33 for the fifth and sixth straight wins of the season over non-conference opponents.

McGovney, who placed third overall, cruised over the Falcon campus with a time of 14:28, four seconds better than Ted Francis' 14:52 which was the previous mark.

Finishing right behind him were Rich

Nilsson (14:32) in fourth, Bill Bates (14:24) in fifth, Francis (14:36) in sixth and Jim Wise (14:37) in seventh. Behind them were Steve Tyk in ninth (15:11) and Rick Sales in 12th (15:44).

Wise, only a sophomore, set a new mark for his class level.

Forest View dropped all of its lower level matches. In the sophomore meet, Barrington won 21-34 and Fenton by nearly the same score, 18-45. The Falcon freshmen lost by closer margins — 27-30 to Barrington and 22-33 to Fenton.

Fenton won both of its meetings with Barrington — 23-32 on the freshman level and 15-42 on the sophomore level.

Why Doctors Need Patients' Help

Being Frank Aids Diagnosis

Some people are inclined to look upon the doctor as a wonder-worker who can arrive at instant diagnosis and provide instant relief.

It's just not so. The doctor, in fact, needs YOUR help if he is going to be able to do a really good job for you. The intelligent and well-informed patient is the best kind of patient.

Here is a review of the patient's role, as the doctor would like to see it, and an explanation of the reasons why the doctor does certain things and asks certain questions:

Q—How can I help my doctor when I get sick?

A—You should expect to do more than merely deliver yourself to the doctor's office for treatment. You should participate actively in the procedure — particularly in the first interview. The doctor needs your whole-hearted cooperation in diagnosing your illness. What you tell him — and your manner in providing or not providing the information he needs — can make a significant difference in his evaluation of your problem.

Q—What does he usually want to know?

A—Be prepared to tell him everything. If you have a pain, try to recall as accurately as you can when it started and what you were doing at the time. Try to describe the pain: Is it sharp? Burning? Cramping? Crushing? If the pain is abdominal, he will want to know how it is affected by meals, by bowel movements, by urination.

Try to be an accurate observer. The doctor can't feel your pain, but he needs to know exactly where it is, whether it radiates to other areas, how long it lasts, what kind of activity aggravates it, and how it responds to coughing and deep breathing.

Q—Why does the doctor ask me a lot of unrelated questions?

A—Because your answers may present him with some important clues. For example, if you tell him you're concerned because you're putting on weight, he will want to know many different things: Whether your weight has fluctuated in the past, what your eating habits are, whether there have been bowel changes, increased need for sleep, intolerance to cold or menstrual irregularities. If your problem is weight loss, he will want to know not only what you eat and whether your bowel habits have changed, but whether you have bleeding from any source, night sweats, fever or chills, coughing, lumps or swelling, rapid heart beat, heat intolerance, increased thirst, or frequency of urination. Your job is to answer as fully and accurately as you can.

Q—Should I volunteer information or wait until the doctor asks me?

A—It is better to tell him too much than too little. Too often the doctor gets less information than he needs — and not always because the patient is unable to report in full, but because he is unwilling to. Embarrassment, fear, anxiety, even hostility create a barrier between doctor and patient. The most important contribution you can make is to take your doctor completely into your confidence. Trust him and share information with him fully.

Q—Why does the doctor want me to have a physical checkup each year even though I'm perfectly well?

A—Some illnesses progress without necessarily producing recognizable symptoms. The annual physical examination can reveal the beginning of high blood pressure, heart disease or cancer, for example — at a time when they can be treated the most effectively. Even when you emerge with a clean bill of health the annual checkup serves a useful purpose. It has decreased any possible worries you might have had about your health, and it has given your doctor a chance to keep informed of your current physical condition. Thus, he is better prepared to treat you should you get sick. But — if a new, unusual symptom should appear after this examination, do NOT wait for a year. Report it to your doctor.

Q—What should I expect during the annual checkup?

A—There are usually three parts — an interview with the doctor, a physical examination, and certain diagnostic tests at a medical laboratory.

Q—What will the doctor ask me in the interview?

A—He wants to know as much as you can tell him about the state of your health. He will ask whether you have any pains, whether your appetite is good, and whether you have headaches, for example. He will be particularly interested in any changes in your health since the last time he saw you.

Q—What takes place in the physical examination?

A—Your doctor listens to your heart and lungs, checks the condition of your skin, looks into your eyes, ears, nose and throat, takes your blood pressure, feels your abdomen, checks your sexual organs and rectum. In addition, the breasts of woman patients are examined.

Q—What laboratory tests should I expect?

A—The doctor almost always orders a blood test and an analysis of urine. He will sometimes have your chest X-rayed. In women the Papanicolaou smear test is performed for detection of cancer of the cervix.

Q—Outside of annual checkups, when should I or should I not call the doctor?

A—If everyone telephoned the doctor's office for advice about every little scratch or twinge, he would be so busy that he couldn't find time to take care of the major illnesses. However, there are four situations in which you should call him without delay.

• When a patient's complaint is too severe to be endured, for example sudden chest or abdominal pain.

• When an apparently minor symptom persists for more than a few days without an easily identified cause. For example, a nose bleed following a blow is one thing, but a nose that bleeds constantly in the absence of injury is quite a different matter.

• When a symptom or symptoms return repeatedly without readily recognizable cause. For example, digestive disturbances due to over-indulgence are one thing, but constant digestive distress despite moderation in eating and drinking is something else.

• Finally, when in doubt, it is safer to call the doctor rather than take a chance.

Q—How do I reach a doctor during an emergency?

A—Most physicians maintain a 24-hour telephone answering service after their normal office hours. If you do not have a personal physician, contact your county medical society, most of which have 24 hour emergency call systems. (Serving Cook County is the Chicago Medical Society, 922-0417; Emergency telephone 236-4200).

Q—When I do call the doctor in an emergency, what will I tell him?

A—Be prepared to tell him, briefly, the symptoms or the complaints of the patient, whether he has pain and where, whether there is difficulty in breathing, unconsciousness, mental confusion, severe bleeding, swelling, or vomiting.

Q—Supposing I have to be hospitalized? How is this done?

A—Your doctor usually is a member of one or more local hospital medical staffs and he will recommend the specific hospital which he finds suitable in your case. He will arrange for admission, and tell you how and when to go to the hospital.

Q—What should I take with me to the hospital?

A—Very little. You may take pajamas or nightgowns although the chances are you will wear hospital-issue gowns; a bathrobe, slippers, comb and brush, cosmetics or shaving equipment, toothbrush and toothpaste, reading material, and toys if the patient is a child. Bring only enough money for incidentals such as magazines or newspapers. Valuables, such as jewelry and watches should not be taken to the hospital, nor should medicines unless your doctor directs you to bring them. In the hospital, your medicines will be ordered by the doctor and given you by the nurse.

Q—Who will take care of me in the hospital?

A—Your own doctors of course. But you may also be attended by resident physicians and or interns in hospitals which have medical teaching programs.

An intern is a graduate physician completing his medical education. A resident is a member of the hospital's teaching staff, who has finished his internship, in many instances is preparing for a specialty, and is licensed to practice medicine.

Questions & Answers For Family Health

As a Public Service, The Herald offers its readers these answers to many common questions people have about health and medicine. All material has been approved by The Illinois Medical Association and The California Medical Association.

What to Expect in Annual Checkup

Q—Suppose I need surgery. How do I select a surgeon?

A—Your personal physician is in the best position to recommend a surgeon to you. It is his job to know the qualifications of the surgeons in various fields, to help you select the one whose skills best suit your problem, and to consult with the surgeon before he operates on you.

Q—Is modern surgery safe?

A—The scope and safety of surgery has increased remarkably during the past 50 years — dramatically so in the last decade. Death rates are very low even in major surgery, and because of improved anesthesia and operating room techniques, many persons now can undergo surgery though only a few years ago they would have been ruled out as "bad risks." We have seen some exciting breakthroughs during the past few years: Heart and other organ transplants, the replacement of damaged blood vessels with plastic substitutes, the replacement of heart valves with plastic valves, development of the artificial kidney and the heart-lung machine. In addition, the hospital stay after surgery has been shortened to as little as a week for most major operations, and many patients are out of bed on the day after surgery and may be back at work in two or three weeks.

Q—How can I budget for health care?

A—The average self-supporting family usually has no trouble meeting the costs of minor illnesses when they are provided for in the month-to-month household budget. However, physicians fully realize the implications of major, catastrophic illness which can require prolonged hospitalization and extensive medical and surgical procedures. For these more costly spells of illness, doctors recommend some form of private health insurance.

Q—What should I look for in obtaining health insurance?

A—Many persons today are protected against the costs of hospital, surgical or major medical expenses through group health plans provided by employers, union contracts or professional organizations. Medicare, of course, covers much of the expense for those over 65. However, individuals who are not covered should take steps to obtain insurance protection, since the costs of medical care have risen rapidly and a single spell of illness can involve a great deal of expense. The purchaser should familiarize himself with the costs, to make sure he will have adequate coverage. Other things to consider are the merits of first-dollar coverage versus a deductible policy, the reputation of the insurance company or health service plan, and the nature of the benefits for in-hospital or outpatient care. As with all other insurance policies, read the fine print.

Area Has Foreign Trade Impetus

by LEA TONKIN

Everything from parking meters produced in Elk Grove Village to temperature control systems, turned out in an Arlington Heights plant, and petroleum processing know-how perfected in a Des Plaines research facility is finding its way into foreign markets.

The diversity of Northwest suburban industry creates one of the best potential markets for exporting according to a local U.S. Department of Commerce representative. President Nixon's new economic package including moves to break down trade barriers and improve the U.S. balance of payments outlook may be a boon to these industries but the impetus for foreign trade is already here said Richard Bronwell, of Arlington Heights, chief of the international trade division in the Commerce Department's Chicago office.

"THIS AREA has the most heterogeneous mixture of any area in the world, creating extra trade possibilities," said Bronwell, speaking of the Northwest suburbs and other areas in northern Illinois peppered with industry. He ticked off a varied list of exports produced in area communities, adding electronics, tooling and marking systems.

"The presidential action could stimulate exports," Bronwell said of the recent imposition of a 10 per cent tariff on many imported goods and the decision to let the value of the dollar float in international markets. Commerce, Treasury and State Department officials are now meeting with foreign nations to work out future trade agreements he said.

New export markets are continually developing according to Bronwell. He added the President's recent removal of some trade restrictions in dealings with Red China could boost trade in certain areas as computers. It will take years for this market to develop he said.

Commerce Department surveys pinpoint product areas with the greatest export potential and the information is passed along to U.S. firms Bronwell said. Electronic data processing is a relatively new but expanding field for area exporters. Other good sellers in foreign markets include food processing; air conditioning and refrigeration; instrumentation, and pumps, valves and compressors.

"THIS AREA accounts for a substantial amount of exports from both large and small companies," Bronwell said. "The recent figures showing the U.S. balance of trade position slipping don't mean that exports are going down, but that imports are going up."

"We are trying to bring more companies into exporting by giving them the know how," Bronwell said. "This includes information on trade shows and foreign conventions, market surveys, names and addresses of potential overseas customers, trade missions and the permanent trade centers in several foreign countries where American manufacturers can exhibit merchandise."

The federal agency works closely with the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development's international marketing section. "Their programs are designed to take the fear out of shipping products overseas," said Frank Stewart, international sales manager of T&F Fluorocarbon Co. in Rolling Meadows. Until April of this year he was head of the Illinois export promotion program.

"THE STATE of Illinois is still expanding its services through an office in Brussels and may open others," according to Stewart. "Dollarwise we're still number two in exporting states, with only California exceeding us. We have a great advantage in the variety of products as well as the link with the St. Lawrence Seaway and other means of transportation."

The T&F firm has made a major commitment in exporting only within the past year, Stewart said. "They sampled the overseas market and found a great potential for their Teflon and silicone coated fibres," he said.

"We are breaking into new foreign markets through trade shows as well as foreign centers," he said. "Most of our efforts are concentrated on distributors of packaging, electrical, processing and general industrial use." Specific uses of T&F's coated fibres include conveyor belts and gaskets.

"Not everyone can export, but if a small company can take an imaginative look at its products, they will often find that they can do this," said Stewart. T&F got its start in a trade show held last November in Paris. Stewart said international airlines, foreign business organization associations as well as federal and state agencies can be of assistance.

WARREN FRANDSEN, T&F president, added a new exporter should be prepared to sink more money into the venture than it will gain until it builds an overseas market for its products. "If any small company thinks it can walk into a foreign market and use it as a dumping ground they soon find it doesn't work," he said. "Every country is different, and they must learn to gear products to their specifications."

President Nixon's new economic policies should be a temporary boon to T&F's exporting efforts, Stewart said. His decision to let the dollar float in world markets in effect dropped its value in relation to other currencies he said. "This somewhat drops our prices in relation to German and Japanese goods as a trade advantage," he said. "The President's imposition of a 10 per cent tariff on foreign goods is a temporary advantage." He believes that a tariff is detrimental mental in the long run however because it could bring retaliatory measures against U.S. exporters.

THE PROTECTIVE measures announced by the President are a mixed blessing said Robert Swift, vice president and director of international operations for Motorola, Inc., Communications Division. The Schaumburg-based division exports more than it imports so the effect is "generally good," he said.

"It remains to be seen what will happen," he said. "Inflation has made it difficult for us to compete in foreign markets and his moves could slow inflation."

"It does create some problems in dealing with Canada," Swift said. "They're a good customer of ours. It also makes it more difficult to import German goods into the U.S. to be sold by Motorola. The imported goods will cost us more, but we can't raise the price of our finished products."

Motorola is an old-timer in the exporting field. "We now operate in over 100 countries," Swift said. "Our overseas markets for communications systems are growing more rapidly than our U.S. markets." He declined to estimate the firm's annual overseas sales volume, but said it is a "multi-million dollar operation."

"EQUIPPING people with communications is one of the biggest growing areas," Swift said. "That's the exciting part — we used to just equip vehicles." Its foreign sales, largely to commercial, governmental and school security markets, range from a new four ounce FM radio pager to an entire police or governmental communications network.

"We either have our own personnel or a foreign liaison in each country where we work," said Swift. "We have to meet different specifications in each country and this means making the engineering changes and getting government approval."

"You have to hang loose in this business," he said. The strategy and planning are done here but we train personnel to work with overseas operations to maintain the overseas systems."

Swift said the Motorola division is making a gradual changeover to the metric system of measurement used by most foreign nations. It will probably take 10 years or more before this is completed he said.

"It's not a question of whether, but of when," said Bronwell of the metrication program recommended in August by the Commerce Department. U.S. exporters would benefit from its use he said.

Not Only "Looks"

by Ed Landwehr

A famous psychologist writes that you can't judge the contents of a man by the way he looks. Movies and TV plays give us the idea that people fit into certain types by appearance which is very untrue. A man may look like a banker and have all the qualifications of a bum. Another fellow looks like a movie villain, and he might be a visiting bishop.

So you can't judge from appearance as this psychologist says. You can see that Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights has nationally advertised, quality lines of stereo sets with substantial guarantees. But that is only part of the story. Our service and electronic equipment put real meaning into this equipment. This is what makes you satisfied with your purchase not only today but next month and next year. Ask your neighbor about us or call 255-0700.

Family Problems Can Hurt Social Growth Of Child

by the Staff of Forest Hospital

Ten-year-old Johnny has trouble sleeping at night. He can't concentrate in school and he won't eat regular meals.

His worried mother takes him to a doctor but the doctor finds no organic cause for Johnny's behavior and suggests a psychiatric evaluation.

After questioning Johnny's mother about family history the psychiatrist finds that Johnny's parents are in the process of getting a divorce.

"When a parent leaves the home," explains Dr. Max Sugar, clinical associate professor of psychiatry at Louisiana State University, "a child fantasizes that the parent is dead because he's gone."

"So, many children mourn," Dr. Sugar continues, and they become angry, hurt, rejected and develop a loss of concentration, loss of appetite, insomnia and they withdraw. All of this interferes with the child's academic and social growth."

Dr. Sugar, who specializes in child guidance and adolescent problems, said many children think they are responsible for the parent's divorce.

"A parent may become angry with his spouse and take his anger out on the child. He may hit the child and the child will then wish to get rid of his parent. When the child sees his parent leave he thinks he's responsible and the child feels guilty and tries to undo the parental problems. He then gets actively involved in his parents' marital problems."

DR. SUGAR thinks parents should try to keep anger and disappointment in each other from the child. "If a parent is angry, but not at the child," he said, "the parent should say 'I was upset when I yelled at you but I was really angry at something your mother and I were fussing about. I wasn't really angry at you.'"

Dr. Sugar adds that when a couple is getting a divorce the parents must tell the child why they are getting divorced and also tell the child that they were once very much in love but are not in love any longer.

"But they should tell that child 'we love you and we will always take care of you.' The child must be constantly reinforced with words and actions proving he is still loved."

"A parent must always remember," Dr. Sugar added, "that the younger the child is the more intense is his reaction to divorce or separation because the child is helpless and dependent on those people who are walking out on him."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — On a technical basis, the market's initial upthrust in response to President Nixon's new economic plan encountered an area of resistance early in September at a time when the list was in a moderately overbought condition, according to the Standard and Poors' Outlook.

"The Expectable correction was spurred by the fact that the President offered no specific replacement for the 90-day freeze," the Outlook says.

"In view of the steepness of the recent advance, some additional consolation would in any event appear to be in order. Assuming that the post-freeze mechanism finally adopted is received favorably, this could set the stage for a sustained upward move."

ONTARIO SQUARE
apartments in Hanover Park Beautiful Living ...
... Happy People

Far from the city's noise ... you enjoy the seasonal changes free of the responsibilities they involve. Delightful neighbors share your enjoyment of the varied recreation, and your spacious apartment is a home to which you'll proudly welcome guests.

These air conditioned studio one and two bedroom apartments are designed with maximum wall space to give you versatility in room arrangement. Bedrooms are deliberately isolated for privacy and quiet. Efficient, open-plan kitchen includes stove, refrigerator and disposal as well as fine wood cabinets with ample counter surfaces. Heat, gas and water included in your rent.

You'll find the quiet of the country right at home. Outdoor grills for barbecuing, watching the children romp on sturdy playground equipment. You'll enjoy everything more on the beautifully maintained grounds at Ontario Square.

ONTARIO SQUARE
apartments in Hanover Park
Ontario Square is the newest Vavrus complex located in Hanover Park. 1½ blocks from the Milwaukee Road RR. New studio, one and two bedroom apartments, some with one and one-half baths. Wall to wall shag carpeting and color co-ordinated kitchens.

Prices Start At $125
You pay less for more ... more atmosphere ... more recreation ... more leisure time ... more living space ... more all the good things of life! Ontario Square is easy to reach. Take Route 59 and turn east on Lake Street (Route 20) to Ontario Road and turn right.

For rental information call 437-2220 or 529-1408

IS ON, NURSE!!

You were a nurse — on RN, an LPN. You know how it is to bring your skills, your warmth, into the lives of others. Every time your light came on, you answered the ultimate challenge, you were needed.

Other people, other needs, took you from nursing. But now, more than before, someone else needs you. Your light is on, Nurse. Will you answer?

American Nursing Center knows how you can best help others. One full time and one part time staff position is now open.

Damaging Effects of Drug Abuse

How It Wrecks Minds, Bodies

Man — too often a perverse sort of animal — has insisted over the centuries on harming himself by using dangerous drugs.

The only new thing about marijuana, for example, is the name "pot." Cannabis was introduced to Europe almost 35 centuries ago — in 1500 B.C. — and has been used in Asia before that.

At the present time, hard-core narcotics addiction, as in the use of heroin, seems to be starting to decline. But, perversely again, more and more people, particularly young ones, are abusing a wide variety of drugs in this country and throughout the world. And not only the young are involved. So-called socially acceptable substances including alcohol and cigarettes are doing a great deal of harm in the adult world as well.

What happens to the mind and body when we become dependent on drugs? Here is a comprehensive review.

Q—What is drug abuse?

A—The State Department of Education has adopted this definition: "A drug is said to be abused when it is obtained illegally or self-administered to the possible detriment of the individual, or society, or both." To many, drug abuse means the use of any drug, in any amount, with adverse effect on physical and or emotional health.

Q—What causes a person to take drugs?

A—There is no one cause. Curiosity, "taking a dare," "everybody does it," stress — all sorts of environmental and behavioral influences — can be involved. Some persons are induced to try drugs by associates who actively recruit new users — for example by LSD cultists who preach the "virtues" of the drug, or by criminal pushers who deliberately seek new customers for heroin.

Q—Does everyone who tries these drugs get into trouble?

A—No. For example thousand of people have been given morphine to ease post-surgical pain, and never think of taking it again after they leave the hospital. Many have tried cigarettes, alcohol or marijuana out of curiosity, but have not become habituated.

Q—Then what constitutes drug "abuse?"

A—Unfortunately, some people are physically and or temperamentally susceptible, so that they do not stop with a first experiment, and continue smoking, drinking, or taking drugs. This can lead to three phases of abuse: tolerance, habituation and addiction.

Tolerance is the diminishing effect of doses of equal size; that is, the need to increase the size of the dose in order to get an effect similar to previous doses. The World Health Organization has provided these definitions of habituation and addiction:

"Habituation is a condition resulting from the repeated consumption of the drug. Its characteristics include: A desire (but not a compulsion) to continue taking the drug for the sense of improved well-being which it engenders; little or no tendency to increase the dose; some degree of psychic dependence on the effect of the drug but absence of physical dependence and hence absence of an abstinence syndrome; detrimental effects, if any, primarily on the individual.

"Addiction is a state of periodic or chronic intoxication produced by the repeated consumption of a drug (natural or synthetic). Its characteristics include: An overpowering desire or need to continue taking the drug and to obtain it by any means, a tendency to increase the dose, a psychic and generally a physical dependence on the effects of the drug, and detrimental effect on the individual and on society."

Q—What drugs are likely to be abused?

A—Adults abuse alcohol, tranquilizers, diet pills (amphetamines), barbiturates and tobacco, to name a few. Adolescents use "pot, acid, and speed" (marijuana, LSD and methedrine) plus any number of other compounds ranging from eye-washes to deodorants, aerosol can propellants, cleaning fluids, meat tenderizer, plastic cement and model airplane glue.

Q—Are there different classifications for dangerous drugs?

A—Yes. They can be grouped generally as depressants, stimulants, and hallucinogens.

Q—What is the most commonly used depressant?

A—Alcohol. Alcoholism is both a major chronic disease and a major social problem — perhaps the greatest of all drug problems.

Q—Why is alcoholism a major social problem?

A—It is estimated that there are more than 5.5 million alcoholics in the United States; the social and economic costs to society are estimated at $12 billion per year. Law enforcement officials estimate that 40 per cent of all arrests in the nation are for drunkenness, and that intoxication is a factor in half of all highway deaths.

Q—Does physical damage result from excessive drinking?

A—Yes. The alcoholic can suffer far-reaching physical and emotional injury, with severe and often fatal consequences. Among these effects are cirrhosis of the liver, gastritis, ulcers, stomach hemorrhage, inflammation of the pancreas, deterioration of the peripheral nerves, and damage to the brain and nervous system. Alcoholics are frequently victims of accidents and injury, and are a hazard to themselves and to others as drivers and pedestrians.

Q—What causes alcoholism?

A—A combination of factors including emotional stress and cultural and environmental influences.

Q—When can a person be called an alcoholic?

A—When he is not able to control his drinking or his abnormal reaction to alcohol. That it can be obtained legally by any adult in no way alters the gravity of its effects. Individual reactions at relatively early stages often give us clues. For example, a person whose character or personality changes after only a drink or two, who becomes unusually aggressive or argumentative and perhaps blatantly boisterous, would be well advised to stop drinking for several weeks and take stock of himself or herself. Often "black-ing out" after only a few drinks is a warning sign.

Q—Can alcoholics be helped?

A—Yes. Alcoholism was considered a "sin" until fairly recently, but it is now universally recognized that it is first and foremost a disease.

Treatment is available at alcoholism clinics, and can be successful particularly when it recognizes the patient's personality inadequacies.

Q—What is a barbiturate?

A—It is a drug which depresses the central nervous system and acts as a hypnotic, producing relaxation or sleep in persons who are plagued by anxiety or insomnia. Barbiturates are known as sleeping pills, "goof balls," or "downers." Barbiturate overdose is a leading cause of death by poisoning, taking more than 3,000 lives a year, nationally. The combination of alcohol and barbiturates produces an added danger, as their effect together is greater than when they are taken alone.

Q—What is a tranquilizer and how does it act on the body?

A—There are major and minor tranquilizers. The first are used medically to treat serious psychiatric disorders. Minor tranquilizers are used to alleviate anxiety and reduce minor nervous tension. The minor tranquilizers have demonstrated greater abuse potential than the major tranquilizers. Further, they enhance the effect of alcohol, producing poor coordination and slower-than-usual reaction time. American adults consume several billion tranquilizer pills annually.

Q—What is "hard core" drug addiction?

A—This involves use of such drugs as opium, heroin, morphine and synthetic compounds of similar nature. Users can become addicted in a relatively short time — and once "hooked," the habit is extremely difficult to break, if not impossible.

At first, the narcotics addict, unlike the alcoholic, is not likely to be obnoxious or bothersome. But when his habit becomes increasingly expensive as he needs more and more of the drug, he is likely to turn to crime to obtain the necessary funds.

Q—What do doctors consider one of today's major drug abuse problems?

A—Use of the stimulant drugs — amphetamines, popularly called "pep pills" — is a matter of serious concern, particularly among young people.

Q—What are amphetamines?

A—Amphetamines, called "Uppers" stimulate the central nervous system, suppress appetite, and prevent sleep. High doses can cause aggressiveness and hallucinations. Methedrine, sometimes called "speed," is one of the most commonly abused amphetamines. Prolonged use of this drug may cause acute toxic psychosis characterized by hallucinations, tremendous panic or fear reactions, and paranoia. If the drug is discontinued after prolonged usage, the individual lapses into a state of exhaustion and may sleep continuously for 24 to 48 hours, then eats ravenously, and sinks into a state of prolonged depression. Many "speed" users began by taking their mother's medically prescribed diet pills.

Q—What are hallucinogens?

A—These are the psychedelic or "mind altering" drugs — LSD and marijuana — which produce an altered state of perception in the user.

Q—What is LSD and what reactions does it produce?

A—The letters LSD stand for lysergic acid diethylamide, a colorless, odorless and tasteless liquid substance synthesized in 1938 at the Sandoz Research Laboratories in Switzerland. It is not physically addicting, nor has a lethal overdosage been reported in man but reactions to it are varied and powerful. Sensations become intensified and perceptions are distorted under the influence of LSD. Colors may appear more brilliant, and may move rhythmically. Sound and light sensations are intensified and become almost transposed.

Illusions are common and true hallucinations may occur. Faces often appear to be "melting." Time sense is distorted. Persons have been observed to stare at their fingers or some other object for hours after taking LSD.

Q—Is it dangerous to take LSD?

A—Yes, often there is great danger. There is no way to predict how an individual will react to the drug. The psychological reactions include the "bad trip" — hallucinations, depression, anxiety to the point of panic, and confusion, often with self-destructive results. Psychological reactions to LSD may recur months after the last dose of the drug; this is called "flashback." There is also some evidence that LSD may alter hereditary genes and could lead to the later birth of defective children although this has not yet been proven. The California Medical Association has declared: "In short, our professional medical opinion is that playing with LSD is a desperately dangerous form of drug roulette. The medical evidence is clear. Any person taking LSD runs the clear risk of psychotic breakdown and long-run physiological damage."

Q—Is it true that LSD changes one's values?

A—Yes. Quite frequently the user undergoes fundamental changes. For he or she may lose interest in normal routines, desert family and friends, and "drop out" of the everyday world, living for the "good trip," and preaching the "religion" of LSD.

Q—Is marijuana addicting?

A—No, but it may produce habituation, as can most of these drugs.

Q—What reactions does it produce?

A—It depends upon the dose, and the circumstances under which it is taken. If the user is alone he may be quiet and drowsy, or may sit and watch the passing parade of "technicolor" illusions which he may believe he is seeing. In company he may be talkative and hilarious. His awareness, coordination, touch and perception are considerably altered, particularly in relation to time and space. His basic personality is not appreciably changed, but his behavior and judgment may be modified while under the influence of "pot." He loses his inhibitions in varying degrees. At first he may feel relaxed and at ease, but later may become anxious, slightly paranoid and apprehensive. With increasing doses hallucinations may appear.

The Doctor Says:

Chest Pains May Not Be The Heart

by LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Is there anything besides heart disease that can cause chest pain? I am 43, female and have had chest pain and a great tightness after lifting, running or any real hard work for about three years. I have been tested by two doctors, had four electrocardiograms and blood tests. They find nothing and my blood pressure is normal.

The pain or tightness comes from one to several hours later. I am really worried not knowing if it is my heart or if I should be doing something about it. Am about 20 pounds overweight and just over the menopause. I do not get short of breath, but have pain quite often in my left arm and sort of a prickly, electric pain up my neck into my jaw. I also have a lot of stomach gas, bowel trouble and I cough a lot. X-rays have shown nothing in these areas either. There has never been any heart problem in my family. I do not know what to do. Can you enlighten me? I take no medication except an occasional aspirin. Two Master's electrocardiograms showed a slight irregularity but the doctor said he still didn't think it was my heart.

Dear Reader — Yes there are a number of things that can cause chest pain besides the heart. If I understand you correctly you mean your difficulty occurs several hours after exertion, not during it. I would be a bit more concerned about your problem if it occurred while you were exerting yourself. Gas trapped in the colon, where it makes a turn under the diaphragm can cause chest pain and also pain in the arm. Muscular "cramps" can also cause chest pain. One of the most troublesome causes is spasm of the esophagus which caused difficulty almost identical to heart pain. The X-rays will be negative in this condition, too, unless the spasm actually occurs while the examination is being done.

Your reference to Master's electrocardiogram tests tells me that you have been examined with exercise, and the usual criteria for changes because of heart disease were not found. This is of some importance in helping to rule out the possibility that your recurrent chest discomfort is from your heart.

It is less likely for a woman your age to be having heart pain from fatty deposits in the arteries, but certainly not impossible. You will, however, be having increased changes now that you have finished the menopause.

My best suggestion on the limited information available would be to stop all coffee, tea or cigarettes that you may be using immediately. These all contribute to gas and spasm in the digestive tract, aside from their relation to the heart. Start a reducing diet and stick to it. Begin walking a little at first and gradually increase it to one hour a day at a speed of three miles an hour. These measures may improve your condition a great deal and are also good in preventing future heart disease.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

When your suit is either spades or hearts, a five-club or five-diamond barrage bid, after your four no-trump, does not bother you at all if you are using DOP.

Take today's hand as an example. West puts in a five-club bid in order to interfere with Blackwood. North and South are doubling with no aces; passing with one ace and bidding with more than one ace. Thus West's five-club bid actually makes things easier for North. He can actually show two aces by a bid of five diamonds. Would a five-heart bid show three aces?

Not if North and South are advanced bidders. North would bid five diamonds to show two aces plus additional values.

Thus when he bids five spades he is showing three aces. He knows that he can afford this because without interference by West he would still have bid five spades with his hand.

The five spade call is all South needs to get him to a grand slam. South knows that his partner has opened the bidding and then given a jump raise in hearts with not more than one of the three top honors and without the king of his first bid suit. It is apparent to South what

Letter Received From Hospital Council

Hospital Will Be Needed In Schaumburg By 1980

A hospital will be needed in the Schaumburg area by 1980, but no facilities existing at nearby hospitals should be duplicated unnecessarily, according to a letter presented to the Schaumburg Village Board last night.

The letter from Hiram Sibley of the Metropolitan Hospital Planning Council, was part of evidence Paul Brandel showed board members explaining why a hospital site should be allowed on Schaumburg Road.

Brandel, a partner in the Brandel-Anderson development firm proposing a 20-acre hospital site as part of a 57-acre planned unit development (PUD) on the north side of Schaumburg Road between Pleasant Drive and Illinois Boulevard.

NO BOARD ACTION was taken at Herald deadline last night while Brandel continued to present evidence for approval of the plan, up for reconsideration by Schaumburg officials.

Sibley's letter said physicians offices and ambulatory care facilities will be needed by 1980 but he would not project the number of beds needed in any hospital then.

Mayor Robert Atcher, introducing Brandel, asked the crowd of Schaumburg residents to treat Brandel with courtesy despite antagonism some felt for his plan.

Brandel repeatedly made mention of the need to have a hospital site before any further planning can be done, indicating the time to select a site is now.

He offered exemplary credentials in hospital concerns including a former board chairmanship at Swedish Covenant Hospital in Chicago.

SIX RECOMMENDATIONS concerning the hospital site were made by Mrs. Carol Johnson, prior to Brandel's comments.

Mrs. Johnson, representing Tim-bercrest subdivision homeowners, said the decision on the proposed hospital and housing development should be postponed until a non-partisan hospital committee is functioning.

All possible land donors should be aware of Schaumburg's need for a hospital site and the tax advantage they would reap, she added.

A detailed analysis of the Brandel-Anderson site should be made and the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission should be consulted, she added.

Mrs. Johnson also told of a detailed report the Timbercrest Homeowners Association made on hospital planning at the village board's request. Only one trustee ever made use of the study, she added.

She asked the board to "stop and listen to the plea of a highly informed constituency."

Mercy Drive Mail Requests Are Coming

The mail request for Crusade of Mercy contributions should reach Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Hanover Park residents this week.

Mrs. Virginia Hayter, mail campaign head, said the effort to collect funds by the Schaumburg Township-Hanover Park United Fund is a part of the suburban Community Chest Council and one of three drive phases.

The fund drive also includes a business and door-to-door collection.

According to Ivo Mersmann, local United Fund president, the group's goal is to collect $15,000 locally. The 16 agencies supported by the Crusade of Mercy have expressed a need for $52,000. Part of the money comes from the Community Chest.

THE 16 PARTICIPATING agencies that provide services to the community are: Campfire Girls, Child and Family Services, Clearbrook Center, Community Concern for Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, Des Plaines Family Service, and Elgin Family Service, Hoffman Estates Boys Club, Northwest Suburban Boy Scouts, Northwest Suburban Girl Scouts, Northwest Mental Health, Subquoy Council of Girl Scouts, Two Rivers Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Twinbrook YMCA and the USO.

Although this week marks the beginning of the residential mail campaign, the business and professional campaigns have been conducted throughout the month.

In October, after mail responses are received, Mersmann plans to begin a door-to-door campaign.

Mersmann said his volunteers are working for 100 per cent participation from area residents, professional people, and businesses.

This year's drive is being organized by campaign chairmen Stan Kolman of Hanover Park, Diane Jensen of Hoffman Estates, John F. McGahey and Edward Degan of Schaumburg, Mrs. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates and Paul Munnich of Hanover Park.

Robert Rew, president of the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates, Ward Weaver, president of the Schaumburg State Bank and William Christensen, president of the First State Bank and Trust of Hanover Park are taking an active part in promoting the fund drive among local business and industry leaders.

The board of directors for the United Fund are Rudolph Cohn and James Kamradt of Hanover Park; Arlene Cryer and Grace Zabielski of Hoffman Estates; and Holly Innella and Paul Werther of Schaumburg.

Water Plant Gets 25% Fund

The Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant, to serve a portion of the Northwest suburbs, has been granted 25 per cent funding by the State of Illinois.

John E. Egan, president of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, announced yesterday the $10.9 million grant.

A total of $43.6 million is needed for construction of the plant, which will include a two-stage sludge process, chlorination facilities and other devices to treat the sewage.

The announcement came in the form of a letter from Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, who stated the offer was made under provisions of the Illinois Anti-Pollution Bond Act of 1970.

The grant is one of five received from the State of Illinois. Several weeks ago, the MSD received a grant of $7 million for similar projects.

THE RECLAMATION plant is slated to be constructed on a parcel of land north of Schaumburg Road between Meacham and Rohlwing roads in unincorporated Schaumburg Township.

Bids on the $43.6 million project will be opened Oct. 19, said John Varakojis, MSD engineer of process planning. He said it would then take a month for federal approval of the bids, and the project has a 37-month construction schedule.

The district will receive about 33 per cent of the funding from federal sources and the remaining 42 per cent from the district's bond fund, according to a spokesman.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher said he was pleased to hear the news of the grant. "Any step that'll bring this facility into being sooner is pleasing."

Atcher said persons east of the plant have faced basement flooding every time a heavy rain has fallen. The project will ease the flooding, he said.

THE STATE also agreed to help fund intercepting sewers and pumping stations throughout the Chicago metropolitan area. The Salt Creek plant grant is the largest grant in the package.

In July, the MSD reviewed a study report that revealed it would cost the district between $30 million and $50 million to purchase land for a sludge farm to treat processed sewage.

Members of the MSD staff are currently studying the feasibility of other methods of treatment, including the possibility of transporting the sludge to another location for further treatment.

Restrict Evergreen Drive Parking

Parking restrictions on Evergreen Drive in Hoffman Estates were approved by village officials Monday after a request from parents of children attending Churchill School, 1520 N. Jones Rd.

At last week's board meeting, Louis K. Gaffney, 184 Bedford Rd., acting as the parents' spokesman, asked the village to make Evergreen a one-way street, and to change its parking restriction.

Gaffney told how youngsters going home Sept. 7 from morning kindergarten at the school had nearly been struck by a car. He blamed several factors for the close call, among them improper parking along Evergreen. The driver could not see the children because cars parked in a restricted zone shielded them from her view, he said. Signs along Evergreen read "no parking on school days."

The board accepted a recommendation from Police Chief John O'Connell that signs be installed prohibiting parking on both sides of Evergreen between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The restrictions will be in effect from Jones Road to 113 Evergreen on the north side and to 118 Evergreen on the south side.

ALTHOUGH Hoffman Estates has no jurisdiction over Jones Road, Chief O'Connell said Schaumburg Police Chief

Martin Conroy agreed to take steps to have Jones Road posted with similar restrictions.

O'Connell said if parking restrictions are not sufficient to eliminate problems, it might be necessary to make Evergreen one-way westbound between Jones and Ashley roads.

Trustee Dyrle Rathman suggested the village survey traffic conditions around other schools, to see if similar action should be taken elsewhere.

Lt. William Freund, who delivered Chief O'Connell's report, told the board all school zones are posted, but parking restrictions have been established only where buses load and unload children. "The only other area that has come to our attention as a problem is Hillcrest School. There buses could not get in and out because of congestion in traffic," said Freund.

Trustee Bruce Lind asked why cars are allowed to "go over parkways, curbs and sodded property" to park on grass at Hillcrest School Saturdays and Sundays when Little League football is being played.

"There is a paved parking lot at the school that is not even being used, and there are hundreds of cars on sodded property," said Lind. Lt. FREUND reported neither the school or park district has objected to the cars parking on the grass, and they have control over the property. A police officer can issue a ticket only when cars are parked on public parkways, or if he sees the driver pull over the parkway to get to the private property, he said.

The village board agreed to discuss the question with the park district board at a joint meeting scheduled for Sept. 29.

Arrest 3 Teens In BB Shooting

Three Schaumburg teenagers, two of them juveniles, were arrested by Schaumburg police after a fourth boy accused them of shooting at him with a BB gun.

Tom Carey, 17, of 522 S. Dartmouth Ln., Schaumburg, told police Sunday afternoon he had left his job at the Jewel Food Store at Weathersfield Commons and was walking toward his car in the parking lot when the three young men approached him in their car.

One of them yelled, "Stop or I'll shoot," said Carey. When Carey continued to walk to his car, the gun was fired, he said.

Arrested by police were William E. Evers, 18, of 1700 Kingston Ln., Schaumburg, and two other local boys whose names were withheld because they both are 16. All three were referred to the department's juvenile division. Police said they found the youths still in the car with an unloaded air rifle in their possession.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Ending a bitter seven-month struggle, the Senate approved and sent to President Nixon legislation extending the draft for two years and raising military salaries across the board by a record $2.4 billion a year.

With U.S. delegation spokesmen optimistic that Washington's plan to provide seats for both Nationalist and Communist China, the United Nations General Assembly opened its 26th annual session. Diplomats from other countries, however, while predicting a close vote, did not share their confidence.

Following a 91-day declassification process, the Pentagon delivered to four congressional committees a censored version of its controversial study of the origins of the Vietnam War, intended for public distribution.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., urged President Nixon to nominate a woman to the Supreme Court to succeed retiring Justice Hugo Black. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., made a similar appeal Monday.

The War

Demonstrators in South Vietnam burned an effigy of President Nguyen Van Thieu and a bomb blast damaged headquarters of the pro-Thieu Confederation of Labor. The U.S. Command announced a new program for testing all U.S. servicemen in Vietnam every three months to find out whether they are using heroin or other narcotics.

The State

Prison officials believe the three prisoners who escaped from Stateville Penitentiary near Joliet during the weekend apparently had help from inside the prison. Officials said the civilian clothing worn by the convicts must have been smuggled to them from the prison store-room.

A gunman firing from an automatic rifle was killed and two policemen wounded in a shootout west of Marion, Ill., in Williamson County, after an attempted car theft alert.

James S. White, 42, purchasing agent for Paul Powell in 1964-70, pleaded innocent to charges of bribery, income tax evasion and signing false income tax returns. He faces a maximum 87 years in prison and a $190,000 fine if convicted on all three charges. His trial has been set for Dec. 20.

The World

The U.S. dollar plunged to new lows against the West German mark, the Belgian franc and the Dutch guilder in a new wave of speculation against the dollar in European money markets.

Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party and senior member of the ruling Moscow troika, visits Yugoslavia today, initiating three months of globetrotting to sell Soviet policy to statesmen from Canada to North Africa.

The Market

The stock market spent another listless day, the Dow Jones Industrial Average finishing with a loss of 1.75 at 903.40. Investors seemed uncertain as to what Phase Two of President Nixon's economic policies will entail, and were concerned about organized labor's attack on the program in general. Prices eased in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

FLOOR HOCKEY for children ages 9 through 11 is one of many classes offered in the Schaumburg Park District fall program. Registration for the classes is open until 4 p.m. Friday.

Some Homes To Get New Sidewalks, Curbs, Gutters

Some homeowners living south of the Higgins-Roselle roads intersection in Hoffman Estates soon will have new sidewalks, curbs and gutters along their property.

The village board Monday night approved spending $27,002.70 to replace those items where they are in the worst condition in segments of four streets. Estimates of the cost of the repaving had been in the range of $8,500, and the board transferred $1,500 from other accounts to pay for the sidewalk work.

Slated for repaving are sidewalks, curbs and gutters on Des Plaines Lane from Roselle Road to Kankakee Lane;

Kankakee from Illinois Boulevard to Lincoln Drive; Berkeley Lane from Roselle to Clarendon Street, and Carthage Lane from Clarendon to Columbia Street.

Not all the paving in those segments will be replaced. Sections in good condition will be left as they are.

THE CONTRACT for the work was

The Hoffman Estates village board declined to pay some of its bills Monday night, demanding an explanation of unexpected cost increases before taking action.

The board refused to pay almost $2,500 in new billing for insurance premiums. Trustee Dyrle Rathman said the village's policies had been updated just a month before, and asked why there were premium increases so soon after the revision.

Elmer Redker, treasurer, said the increases result from changes in personnel and equipment, and the amount is "not much" considering the number of vehicles and employees the village has.

The board also delayed payment of a bill for surveying work done at a proposed Frederick Street lift station. The bill was listed as payment for design of the lift station, and it is to be resubmitted under the proper category.

While the board did approve payment for approximately $900 worth of automotive parts, Trustee William Cowin objected to regular expenditures of about $2,000 monthly for vehicle repair parts.

"I still cannot see how we can justify month after month payments in the neighborhood of $1,000," said Cowin, later correcting his estimate to $1,000 every two weeks. "We get nicked twice a month," he said, adding that the parts billing does not include expenses for gas and oil for village equipment, and labor to install the parts purchased.

COWIN later said "forget about holding the parts bill, but I would like to get detailed information" on the reasons for such high bills. "What I'm asking for are some controls which we don't seem to have. Controls in the use and abuse of equipment, as well as in maintenance."

Trustee Virginia Hayter, public works committee chairman agreed to instruct employees to keep detailed records of parts purchased.

Cowin also questioned payment of $119.50 to reimburse George Longmeyer, administrative assistant, for expenses. Longmeyer explained the expenses were incurred as moving costs when he took the village post.

The board also approved a year's contract with Environmental Health Sanitarians, Inc., for $7,000. The firm provides a consultant sanitarian to the village. The contract had been deferred last week when attorney Edward Hofert questioned some provisions. He recommended approval Monday night.

IN OTHER financial matters, Trustee

Bruce Lind reported the board municipal committee was to meet Tuesday night to consider action to deter vandalism at the new municipal building. During the Sept. 12-13 weekend, vandals caused an estimated $1,050 in damage at the new building. The committee will consider hiring a night watchman for the site, said Lind.

Lind also agreed to have the committee consider a request for village sodding of a yard adjoining the municipal building site. Kenneth Dean, streets superintendent, reported the homeowner said the village agreed to resod the yard in return for permission to use part of the property during construction.

Trustee Diane Jensen reported the environmental committee will meet Oct. 6, and will tour the Multicon Construction area Oct. 2. The board approved guidelines presented by the committee. Trustee Edward Hennessy reported the zoning ordinance review committee will meet Tuesday for final work on a proposed ordinance to regulate planned unit developments. The ordinance then will be turned over to Hofert for review before presentation to the board.

Hassell Road Well Capacity To Be Triple Level Planned

The capacity of a well to be constructed in the Hassell Road development area of Hoffman Estates will be nearly three times the level originally planned.

The well is proposed for construction with partial funds from Kaufman and Broad and Multicon development firms. Financed as part of a $1.2 million bond issue, the well will have the capacity to pump 1.4 million gallons per day for residents of the western part of the village. It originally was intended to have a 500,000 gallon-per-day capacity.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert said Monday the well's capacity would be larger than originally contemplated for the sake of economy, and because the shallow well first considered is not feasible in the terrain at the site.

The village board had expected to approve a contract with the two developers at their Monday meeting. Instead they tabled the measure until Thursday night, when a special meeting will be held. While one of the developers has agreed to pay increased costs for the expanded well, the other has not yet been able to obtain approval from company headquarters, said Hofert.

BY THURSDAY night, the other developer should be prepared with a decision on the additional costs, said Hofert.

"Because of the urgency of the water question," said Hofert, he has solicited bids from several firms on the cost of digging the well. He also plans to seek bids on alternate plans for the well.

Trustee Edward Hennessy asked Hofert what alternatives the village will have if the developer "decides not to go along" with the increased cost.

"We have some options, and will ask for optional bids between now and then (Thursday)," said Hofert. "The options may not be as favorable to the developers," he added, declining to elaborate on what the alternatives would be.

While Hofert did not specify which developer still has not agreed to the increased cost, Trustee Virginia Hayter said the firm's headquarters are in Columbus, Ohio. Multicon's home office is in Columbus, while Kaufman and Broad's is in Hinsdale.

3 Cheers For The Conant High Cheerleaders

"Yeah Conant," the crowd hollers... and the fall team competition starts again on James B. Conant High School playing fields.

This year's teams are bolstered by student enthusiasm and cheered on by members of the Conant cheerleading squads; champs themselves, as the cheerleading record shows.

In competition at a recent National Cheerleading Camp held at Illinois State University in Normal, the cheerleaders won several ribbons.

THE VARSITY, junior varsity and sophomore squads performed cheers each night and won many recognitions. All except the junior varsity received a superior, excellent, outstanding and an honorable mention award. The junior varsity group earned a superior, excellent, and two outstanding awards.

A "Spirit Stick" was given to the Conant students for displaying the most spirit throughout the week-long workshop.

Faculty advisors, Mrs. Cheryl Carlson and Mrs. Corinne Feid, said "we are quite pleased with the girls' achievement at the workshop. With cheerleaders who are very enthusiastic and capable, school spirit should be stronger this year."

Squad members participating in the camp were Mary Koertgen, Sandy Paster, Nancy Brooks, Jane Kirby, Mary Kraemer, Marti Hendricks, Barbara Witt, Donna Vom Brach, Renee Grubbs, Karen Stefanski, Joni Pugh, Donna Patino, Kathy Kolvek, Cheryl Parker, and Maggie McCormack, all of Hoffman Estates.

Del Lago Villas To Benefit Firemen; Police

The police and fire departments in Schaumburg will benefit from construction of Del Lago Villas, a 40-acre six-story apartment project, approved in a 5-to-1 vote of the zoning board of appeals last week.

The planned unit development, expected to reach the village board for approval in October, would be constructed by Consumers Development and Construction Ltd.

The site is located along Higgins Road immediately west of Meacham Road. The PUD would contain 50 cluster units of six dwellings each.

Also included are three 10-story buildings termed "mid-rises" by the developer.

Zoning board approval stipulated the developer donate a fully equipped squad car to the police department and asked that an equivalent sum of cash be given to the fire department for firefighting equipment.

The developer also has agreed to give Dist. 54 a $78,000 cash donation.

For 296 units containing two bedrooms, the developer is contributing $100 per bedroom for a total of $59,200.

The remainder of the donation is a $200-per-bedroom contribution for those units having two bedrooms plus den.

THE DEVELOPER also is being required to pay the elementary school district a sum equaling the cost of one acre of land.

Adjustments in the original plan have been made to provide an east-west and north-south access route within the PUD.

In addition to the usual $100 per unit contribution to the villages proposed cultural center, the developer is being asked to donate approximately one-half acre for a well site.

The firm is planning to extend a 12-inch water main and build a shallow well to provide for future development at the south and west boundaries of the proposed PUD.

In the zoning board vote, only Chairman Russell Parker dissented with the remaining of the board approving the proposal.

Parker does not object to the condominium area but feels that density and ground cover in the rental areas are too high.

The developer also reduced a proposed commercial area from 10 to 8 acres and has not expressed much enthusiasm about planning a shopping center.

As of last week, the developer agreed to construct a separate swimming pool for the rental area so apartment dwellers will not share recreational space with condominium owners.

Anne Fox PTA Will Hear R. Kim Drigger

R. Kim Drigger, School Dist. 54 curriculum coordinator, will speak at the Anne Fox PTA meeting next Tuesday at 7 p.m. The meeting is at the school, 1015 Parkway Dr., Hanover Park.

His speech will be on the school's curriculum, changes in recent years, and Next PTA officers at Anne Fox are Mrs. John Steneel, president, Mrs. Secretary, Mrs. Richard Yuras, correspondent, Mrs. Sherwood Spatz, recording, Mrs. Dennis Pulla, second vice presiding secretary, and Mrs. Charles Thomas Pavate, first vice president; Cheryl Carlson, treasurer.

Funeral Home Tours Set

Residents of Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and surrounding areas can inspect the newly constructed Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home at 330 W. Golf Rd., Schaumburg, Saturday and Sunday.

The Ahlgrim family and associates will be present from 3 to 9 p.m. both days to guide visitors through the funeral home, open for inspection those days.

Ahlgrim and Sons Associates was established in 1927 by Arthur Ahlgrim, father and grandfather of the present owners, who also operate three other facilities. The Ahlgrim association holds membership in the National Funeral Directors Association, the Illinois Funeral Directors Association, the Funeral Directors Association of Greater Chicago, and the Order of the Golden Rule.

Resident manager of the facility is Hugh W. Gillon of Schaumburg and Managing director is James W. McTague of Schaumburg.

PRIVATE PARKING facilities are located in front of the handsome brick building of traditional design. The interior is designed to create a decor of traditional dignity and beauty that assures every modern convenience and comfort, a spokesman said.

Saturday and Sunday's invitation to visit the Funeral Home will afford people the opportunity to inspect the complete facility. The building houses a large chapel, family rooms, lounge areas, offices, preparation rooms and garages, all open for inspection.

The Ahlgrim association will present those in attendance with gifts and women who attend the open house will receive roses.

MacArthur PTA To Meet Monday

The MacArthur School PTA will meet Monday at 8 p.m. in the school's multipurpose room, 525 Chippendale St., Hoffman Estates, not Tuesday as originally announced.

There will be an open house for parents of first through third grade students from 7:30 to 8 p.m., and the PTA choral, "Les Mers de Chant," will perform under Mrs. Arnold Nikula's direction.

Refreshments will be served prior to the meeting.

Noonan told an assembly of 50 area policemen Friday in Rolling Meadows.

"The policeman tooting his whistle at a pretty girl and the browbeating traffic cop are images we must erase," Noonan added. "A policeman's contact with a citizen may be the way he (the citizen) will look at all policemen."

Noonan, a veteran of 21 years with the FBI, conducted the second in a series of weekly in-service training sessions Friday at Rolling Meadows City Hall. Attending the classes were members of the Cook County Forest Preserve and Cook County Police along with policemen from Mount Prospect, Palatine, Schaumburg and Rolling Meadows.

Noonan said he is one of 16 FBI agents who teach seminars funded by the Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1968 to provide FBI service to local law enforcement agencies.

"The classes will help local law officers understand the expanding police role today," he said. "These seminars are also held for some policemen who had not gone to the Northwest Police Academy in Arlington Heights."

NOONAN SAID the FBI has expanded its role in criminal investigation. The FBI now investigates 184 statutes ranging from bank robbery to the migratory bird act. Available to the FBI and local authorities through joint investigation are 200 million fingerprints, he said.

Fingerprinting is only one of the topics taught by Noonan and other agents during the Rolling Meadows seminars. Discussions include everything from arrest, crime scene search and preservation of evidence to bomb investigation.

The final session will include a practice problem focusing on the course material presented by the FBI.

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case said the classes still are open to any area police officer. There is no charge for the program.

Case, who set up the FBI seminars, said the purpose of the sessions is to show the changes in law enforcement. He said the FBI has become more involved with local officials in apprehending criminals.

He added that crimes today are complex and FBI techniques could help in solving them. Case said participants who satisfactorily complete the FBI training will receive certificates of completion.

Legislators Will Speak On Parochialism

Three State legislators will speak on parochialism during a public forum Saturday.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington State Rep. Eugene Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, will air their views on the controversial issue at a town meeting scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church, 1903 E. Euclid Ave., Arlington Heights.

Organizers of the meeting are also hoping to get a representative of the Illinois Catholic Conference to appear with the three lawmakers.

Schlickman, together with State Sen. Robert E. Cherry, D-Chicago, was a co-sponsor of the parochialism bill which was passed by the general assembly but vetoed by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

In addition to the position statements by the three legislators, the audience will be encouraged to ask questions and express its opinions.

THE GOVERNOR rejected the bill with an amendatory veto, a special power given him under the new state constitution.

He has since redrafted a parochialism proposal which he believes to be constitutional and sent it to the legislators. The bill is expected to be reconsidered by the general assembly this fall.

Mrs. Chapman has a mixed voting record on the parochialism issue. She voted against a 1969 bill, in favor of the 1970 purchase of services bill and against the 1971 proposal.

Graham has been a foe of aid to nonpublic schools.

The Illinois Catholic Conference has worked actively in support of parochialism.

IN A RECENT church letter to members of the First United Methodist Church, Rev. Charles S. Jarvis said the Illinois Council of Churches has called for a referendum on the constitutionality of parochialism. The referendum would be in the form of a vote on an amendment to the state constitution to lift the prohibition against tax support of church-sponsored schools.

"The current procedures of seeking evasive actions to do what our state constitution says is not to be done does harm to the people's confidence in our constitutional processes," Jarvis said.

Recent Supreme Court decisions striking down parochial bills in Pennsylvania and Rhode Island have posed a threat to other states' efforts to aid non-public schools.

Board Overrules Zoners, OKs Office Building

The Wheeling Village Board rejected a recommendation of the zoning board of appeals and unanimously voted to allow construction of an office building on the southeast corner of Redwood Trail and Dundee Road.

A group of residents of that area had successfully fought two other attempts to rezone the property.

At Monday's meeting Village trustees told members of the audience that a petition signed by area residents who favored the rezoning was one of the reasons they agreed to the rezoning request. Board members also said that the fact that School Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill favored the rezoning of the land, which is near Jack London Junior High School, and that it would not be economically sound to try to sell a single-family home built on the site.

On two earlier occasions the village board had refused office district zoning for the land. However board members explained the difference was that those times property owner George Harhan had wanted to build a real estate office on the property.

THE CURRENT PROPOSAL is for an insurance and executive type office building, according to Richard Calfa, the current property owner.

At Monday's meeting Calfa repeated promises that the building would only be two stories, that it would be screened with trees and shrubbery, and that the entrance would be on Dundee Road.

Several opponents of rezoning who had signed a petition presented to the zoning board tried to dissuade the village trustees from changing the zoning.

Sheldon Moss, 38 Willow Trail, told the board that the people who signed the original petition lived adjacent to the property but that the signers of the petition favoring the rezoning lived farther away.

"I object to a business within the area where I live. I don't want the traffic it will create," Moss said.

Calfa countered that eight to ten cars a day would enter the property and that the driveways would be on Dundee Road not Willow or Redwood trails.

MRS. JAMES WESTHOFF of 9 Redwood Trail questioned the board about the possible future use of the property. She pointed out that there was no law to keep future owners from building a three-story building on the land or from putting up an ambulance service, medical office, undertaking establishment or dance studio on the property.

"There are fears with every rezoning. We reach a point where we just have to trust him (Calfa)," Trustee Edward Berger replied.

"If there's a 'yes' vote (to rezone the land) that indicates it's the most advantageous use of the property," Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon told the audience.

"We can't allow this land to lie idle," Trustee Michael Valenza said.

Board members then instructed village building and zoning director William Bieber not to issue a permit for a building taller than two stories on the site.

The six trustees then unanimously approved the ordinance rezoning the property from single-family home zoning to office district zoning.

STEEL AND SKY COMBINE to create this dramatic pattern of overlapping triangles. The geometric interplay is the result of a look into the heart of a new FM radio tower recently constructed on Dundee Road one-half mile west of Arlington Heights Road in Arlington Heights. The tower will serve as the broadcast terminal for a new station with studio offices in Des Plaines.

12th Street Extension In The Works

Wheeling's village attorney is preparing an ordinance to permit the village to extend 12th Street north from Dundee Road to Strong Street.

The village board Monday directed attorney Paul Hamer to prepare the ordinances dedicating the new land for the road extension and removing the public use dedications from portions of the street that no longer will be needed.

Hamer said that the village now has all the necessary easements to complete the road extension. He said the property was donated to the village voluntarily.

The original plan to extend the road was designed to give the industrial plants on 12th Street an exit other than the one on Dundee Road.

However, the Martin Metals plant, which had originally requested the extension, is now closed.

U. N. Alloy Steel Corp. still has a plant on the road.

THE NEW CONNECTION will allow traffic to exit from the 12th street area down Strong Street to Wolf Road.

Last May a group of residents from the Strong Street area asked the village to postpone the road extension plans.

In a letter signed by 23 residents, they pointed out that increased traffic on the residential street would be a hazard to children in the area and that the poor condition of Strong street and the lack of sidewalks in the area also would add to the problem.

The residents seemed more willing to accept the street extension after village board members promised that Strong Street would be repaired, and that sewers would be installed in the area in the coming year.

Soo Line Rail Gates Completion In November

The installation of the railroad crossing gates at the Soo Line R.R. Crossing at Dundee Road in Wheeling may not be completed until mid November, Wheeling officials learned this week.

The Soo Line R.R. Company has asked the Illinois Commerce Commission for an extension in the required completion date for the gate installation at the crossing.

The ICC ordered the gates installed after Wheeling petitioned the ICC about the need for gates in early 1970.

The crossing has an abnormally high number of accidents, including a minor one last week, because of problems in seeing the flashing lights and because of insufficient circuitry in the existing flashing light systems.

CROSSING GATES are not normally installed at intersections with only one track. However, after holding a public hearing on the problem the ICC ordered the railroad to install the gates and to maintain them. The initial cost of the gates is being paid by the village and the state.

Vandalism Leads To Barbed Wire Fence Request

"Unbelievable vandalism" at the Denniston Chemical Co., 440 Denniston Ct., led to a request for village permission to build a barbed wire fence at the plant.

William Denniston of the firm described the vandalism to the village board Monday night.

Denniston told board members that the company is currently expanding its facilities and that before and during the construction period there has been a steady stream of vandalism to various machinery and buildings.

He told the board of an incident where vandals had smashed all the windows in a construction crane, pulled out wire connections and smashed all the instruments. "We lost a half day of work for the construction crews," he explained.

Other recent instances he cited included obscenities written in wet cement, and $1,600 worth of sod that was "half torn up" after it had been laid.

Denniston also told the board that windows at the plant have been broken, gravel and plastic pellets have been put in automobile gas tanks, and that 250 steel drums disappeared from the property.

OTHER EXAMPLES of vandalism Denniston listed in a letter to the board included obscenities painted on the building, holes broken in plastic smoke escape panels, a construction trailer broken into and all the portable tools stolen, and garbage dumped in the yard in back of the factory.

Garbage also has been dumped in the firm's incinerator by vandals, children have been caught stealing the empty steel drums, 20 feet of woven wire fence was cut down and stolen, floodlights have repeatedly been broken, and the company sign has been stolen twice, he wrote.

Keys and tools were stolen from an electrician's truck, and in the new building under construction heaters and air conditioners were chopped with a hatchet, he said. Vandals also knocked over freshly built block walls at the construction site, he said.

DENNISTON URGED board members to approve a request to allow his company to install a fence with the hardware for barbed wire in preparation for an expected change in village ordinances.

Board members agreed to the request after Denniston said he would submit a letter promising not to actually install the barbed wire until village ordinances are changed. Currently Wheeling has a law banning barbed wire fences but the village is considering changing that law.

In a letter to the board, he pointed out that two sides of the property are now fenced, but that he wants to fence all four sides.

The trial of two custodians, charged with assaulting students at James Fenimore Cooper Junior High School was continued yesterday by Judge David J. Shields in Arlington Heights Court.

The two custodians, Gregg Rodriguez, 35 of 814 Rand Rd., Palatine, and Elias Martinez, 26, of 29 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, were charged with several counts of assault, aggravated assault and battery.

The charges stem from alleged incidents at the Buffalo Grove school last spring.

The pair have since been transferred to Wheeling and Prospect Heights schools within Dist. 21, police said.

IN GRANTING THE continuance, Judge Shields told the complainants, a group of parents and their children, that he recognized the inconvenience to them, but the defense was entitled to a continuance because yesterday was the first time the case was heard in court.

Also during the proceedings, defense attorneys said they also intended to file petitions in Cook County Juvenile Court to have the students declared delinquent, in an apparent effort to discredit their testimony.

The custodians were originally charged with taking indecent liberties with the students. That case never came to trial and the charges have since been "incorporated" with the assault charges, according to Buffalo Grove police.

Drop Charges Against Biebers

Theft charges against William Bieber, Wheeling building and zoning director, and his wife, Miriam, have been dropped in Arlington Heights Court.

An intimidation charge against Mrs. Bieber also was dropped by Michael W. Johnson, 138 Center Ave., Wheeling.

Johnson had charged that the Biebers stole $24 worth of ice cream bars from him and that Mrs. Bieber had tried to prevent him from filing charges.

Johnson signed a complaint against the couple July 14 but withdrew his charges when the case went to court last week.

Park Chief Arndt Leaves Hospital

Ferd Arndt, Wheeling Park District superintendent and president of the Des Plaines Park District, was released from Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines yesterday.

Arndt, 65, had been in the hospital since Sept. 1 recovering from a severe heart attack.

Arndt, who lives at 1475 Oakwood Ave., Des Plaines, has been Wheeling Park District Superintendent since 1966. He has been affiliated with the Des Plaines District as an elected board member and as an employee since the 1930s.

C. Of C. To Question Village Officials

Members of the Wheeling Chamber of Commerce will question village officials at a meeting tonight in the Clayton House motel on Milwaukee Avenue.

The meeting begins with dinner at 6:30 p.m. The question period will begin at about 7:30 p.m. "It's our way of monitoring the village government," according to Chamber official Gene Sackett.

Ralph A. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Baker of 98 Glendale, Wheeling, has been promoted to airman first class in the U.S. Air Force.

the Wheeling Plan Commission tomorrow night.

Plans for the apartment portion of the development, which will be named Pleasant Run, are scheduled for discussion at the 7:30 p.m. meeting in the Wheeling Municipal Building.

The other portion of the land which will be developed as a shopping center is not included in the meeting.

The property is adjacent to John Muir School.

More than a year ago, Prospect Heights' residents lead strong opposition to the village's granting the rezoning to property owner Paul Horch and his partner Gus Stavros. The residents of the unincorporated community even threatened a suit to stop the rezoning.

The Wheeling Village Board approved the rezoning anyway. At tomorrow's meeting, actual plans for the land development will be discussed. Plan commission and village board approval for both preliminary and final plans for the property are necessary before building permits can be issued for the site.

Vegetable Stands Near Last Harvest

by WANDALYN RICE

The vegetable stands on the Busse property on Landmeier Road have just three years left. Then they will be displaced by factories.

But for Glenn and Marsha Busse, who operate one of the stands, at 1100 Landmeier Rd., Elk Grove Village, and their uncle up the road, this harvest season is much like the last, with corn, tomatoes, green peppers and eggplant stacked in baskets waiting for customers.

From 25 to 30 customers visit Glenn and Marsha's stand every day, with the rush coming when the nearby factories let out.

Besides about 35 varieties of home-grown vegetables, the Busses stock fruits and vegetables they don't grow for those who want them.

Most of the call, however, is for the homegrown vegetables. "Most people just can't wait for it to come on," Mrs. Busse said.

"THIS YEAR the tomatoes have been a little late because of the cold weather in August, but otherwise the vegetables have been doing well.

This is the second year the young couple has operated the stand, which opened right after the spring thaw and will close after Thanksgiving.

"Glenn used to be a produce manager and he just kind of got the idea he'd like to do this for himself," Mrs. Busse said.

Many of the women who come to the stand are those who do their own canning and, while some ask Mrs. Busse for recipes, she just as often asks them for ideas.

Right now she is planning to try one of the recipes she has been given for okra, a vegetable. "I'd never heard of until we opened the stand. People who like it really love it. I have several recipes but I haven't tried them yet."

One of the more entertaining customers, she said, is the hungry husband who stops at the stand on his way home from work.

"You can tell they're usually starving and everything looks good to them. They'll carry pounds and pounds of stuff away and I can just see their wives' faces when they see it," she said.

"USUALLY WHEN I'm working here I try to find out how big their families are so they don't buy too much," she said, laughing.

Glenn and Marsha just smile and nod when asked if they are related to "the Busses of Mount Prospect," a family that has been in the area for many years.

"Glenn's folks have been on this land for 45 years," Mrs. Busse said. "But it's been sold now and we have just three years left here."

The land was annexed to Elk Grove Village, zoned for industry and sold, she explained. Buildings from the new industrial park to the north and east already are beginning to encroach on the land.

"I'm going to be sorry to see it go," Mrs. Busse said, watching one of the cars pull away from the stand with a happy purchaser of fresh tomatoes doing the driving.

'Thirsty Burglars' Can Watch Color TV

Burglars stole more than $500 worth of items early Friday morning from Corbel's Restaurant and Lounge, 31 N. Wolf Rd., Wheeling.

A portable color television and 15 quarts of liquor were taken, police said. Restaurant Owner George Corbel of 9146 Home, Des Plaines, told police the burglary occurred between 2 a.m. and 1 p.m. Friday.

Police said the burglars entered the restaurant through the rear door either using a key or picking the lock.

Corbel said the 23 inch TV was worth approximately $400. The stolen liquor was valued at $114.31, police said, and included quarts of various brands of scotch, bourbon, and brandy.

Associated Planners Of Highland Park

Village Votes To Hire Firm To Prepare A Master Plan

Acting on a recommendation from a special committee, the village board Monday night voted to hire a Highland Park firm to prepare a master plan for Buffalo Grove at a cost of $17,700.

In an unanimous vote, the board approved the committee's choice of Associated Planners from among the five firms which had been considered.

Over the last year, the village plan commission has pressed for a master plan to use as a guide in decision making. The idea of a master plan has been an election issue dating to 1969.

TRUSTEE RANDALL RATHJEN, chairman of the special committee, told the trustees that Associated planners was selected because "we wanted a planner that could give us alternate sketch plans."

Rathjen said the firm would prepare plans based on alternate rates of growth.

According to the proposal submitted by the firm, alternate plans will be prepared based on the development of either a "strong commercial-industrial orientation," a balanced residential community with sufficient commercial-industrial area, or a primarily residential community based on an extension of present growth trends.

Work on the plan will be divided into two parts and should take about six months to complete.

The first phase of the plan is an "analysis of the major systems which affect the growth and development of the village." This phase consists of collecting information which will provide the "background for planning."

The second phase involved the actual preparation of a master plan with goals and objectives outlined.

According to the proposal, the completed plan "clearly identifies the most desirable patterns for future development, the facilities required to serve the estimated future population, and a program to accomplish plan objectives."

Nun Fights To Save Horses

by SUE JACOBSON

For more than 25 years, a frail nun has joined in battle with conservationists around the country in attempts to protect herds of wild horses in the western United States.

Sister Mary Bridget of Addolorata Villa in Wheeling feels her efforts and efforts of others like her, may finally yield results.

Sister Mary Bridget first became interested in the plight of America's wild horses in 1945, when she read magazine stories about how the horses were being slaughtered for use as pet food.

"That story aroused the public and the battle has been going on to this day," Sister Mary Bridget recalled.

"There used to be two million wild horses in the United States, from Canada to Mexico. There are only 16 or 17 thousand left now in 11 western states."

Sister Mary Bridget is an active member of the International Society for the Protection of Mustangs and Burros.

SHE HAS WRITTEN countless letters to Congressmen and other public officials over the years seeking better protection for the animals.

"It used to be that the horses could hide in the remote regions away from men. But then they started hunting them with airplanes. They drive them out of the mountains and onto the salt flats and the men round them up. The horses fight until they collapse.

"Once there was a very famous wild horse named 'Desert Dust.' He was a palomino and he was well-known because he had eluded capture for so long. But then the airplanes came and he was no match for them."

"There was a law passed in 1959 to prohibit rounding up wild horses with airplanes, but there's so much bootlegging that still goes on. You see, it's hard to enforce the law because the horses are in such remote areas."

Sister Mary Bridget corresponds regularly with Velma Johnston of Reno, Nev. Dubbed "Wild Horse Annie," Mrs. Johnston has been a leader in the 25-year fight to save the West's wild horses.

"What we all want is to establish refuges in the western states so these horses will be left alone and taken care of. The people with sheep and cattle interests are against it. They want the land for themselves," said Sister Bridget.

The nun feels the voices of those who want to save the wild horses will eventually be heard.

"WE'VE HAD GOOD publicity. The public is pretty well aroused. We've had show-downs with the Department of the Interior, but they're on our side now. Now it's up to Congress to act."

Although a native of the Midwest, Sister Mary Bridget has fought glimpses of the animals she has taught so long to protect on trips to the West.

"Once when I was going to Oregon on the train I saw a few on a mountain top. But I've never seen them up close. They've learned to hide from man. He has treated them so cruelly."

"I love horses more than anything else, and there should be a place where these can live at peace. They are an important part of our American heritage. The pioneers depended on them when they settled in the West, and the horses today have their stamina and courage."

"We have to do something for God's helpless creatures. Without someone to stand up and speak for them, they won't have a chance in this mechanized age."

THE EFFORTS by Sister Mary Bridget of Addolorata Villa in Wheeling to obtain better protection for wild horses of the western United States are mentioned in Marguerite Henry's book, "Mustangs, Wild Horses of the West."

R.R. Gates By November

The installation of the railroad crossing gates at the Soo Line R.R. Crossing at Dundee Road in Wheeling may not be completed until mid November, Wheeling officials learned this week.

The Soo Line R.R. Company has asked the Illinois Commerce Commission for an extension in the required completion date for the gate installation at the crossing.

The ICC ordered the gates installed after Wheeling petitioned the ICC about the need for gates in early 1970.

The crossing has an abnormally high number of accidents, including a minor one last week, because of problems in seeing the flashing lights and because of insufficient circuitry in the existing flashing light systems.

CROSSING GATES are not normally installed at intersections with only one track. However, after holding a public hearing on the problem the ICC ordered the railroad to install the gates and to maintain them. The initial cost of the gates is being paid by the village and the state.

In the request for the extension of the completion date, the railroad told the ICC the delay is necessitated because underground cables needed for the gates have been delayed in delivery.

The railroad asked for an extension of from Sept. 16 (the original completion date ordered) to Nov. 16.

Reward Offered For Fire Lead

A $500 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the fire that destroyed part of the Arlaj Stevenson High School press-box and athletic storage area. The offer was made by the Stevenson Sentry Club.

The fire Saturday night caused an estimated $4,000 damage to the two-story structure and to the track equipment stored in the building. The building was built by the Sentry Club, an athletic booster organization.

Information concerning the fire should be given to Stevenson school officials or to the Lake County Sheriff's Department, according to Glenn Miller, Dist. 125 school board member and president of the Sentry Club.

Stevenson High OKs Tax Levy Hike

Higher tax levies were authorized Monday by the Dist. 125 school board, but board members predicted the tax rate will go down next spring.

The board predicted that assessed valuation will increase at least $7 million and may jump as much as $12 million over the current assessed valuation of $83 million. This will allow the tax rate to drop, they said.

Dist. 125 Supt. Harold Banser told the board that even with a minimum increase in assessed valuation of $7 million, the tax rate will go down next spring from the current rate of $2.132 per $100 of assessed valuation.

The exact increase in assessed valuation in the district will not be known until March.

The school board Monday authorized a tax levy of $1,105,000 in the educational fund, which is $155,000 higher than last year's levy. The building operating fund levy was set at $250,000, up $55,000 over last year.

The transportation levy was boosted to $63,000, compared with last year's levy of $33,735. The transportation levy was reduced last year to use up a sizable balance which had accumulated over the last two years from unexpected increases in state transportation aid. The transportation fund tax levied next spring will still be below the amount levied in 1970, Banser said.

The junior college levy in Dist. 125 was boosted from $45,000 to $60,000. The Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund levy was raised from $15,000 to $19,000 and a special levy of $30,000 was authorized for the working cash fund.

In addition, the school board approved a two-cent levy for the building fund of the Special Education District of Lake County.

Personnel Discussed In Closed Session

Wheeling's village board met in closed session for an hour Monday night for a discussion of personnel.

At the end of the closed session, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon announced that "proper direction was given with further meetings to follow."

The trial of two custodians, charged with assaulting students at James Fenimore Cooper Junior High School was continued yesterday by Judge David J.

Shields in Arlington Heights Court. The two custodians, Gregg Rodriguez, 35 of 814 Rand Rd., Palatine, and Elias Martinez, 26, of 29 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, were charged with several counts of assault, aggravated assault and battery.

The charges stem from alleged incidents at the Buffalo Grove school last spring. The pair have since been transferred to Wheeling and Prospect Heights schools within Dist. 21, police said.

Last Day For Absentee Signup

Today is the final day Dist. 96 voters may apply to vote by absentee ballot in Saturday's school referendum.

All registered voters in the district who will be out of Dist. 96 or confined to home or a hospital Saturday may vote in the referendum by applying in person today at the Dist. 96 Administration Office at Kildeer School in Long Grove.

To be eligible to vote, persons must be at least 18 years old, a resident of Illinois for six months and of the district for 30 days.

In Buffalo Grove, persons may register to vote with the Buffalo Grove Village Clerk, Mrs. Verna Clayton, at the Buffalo Grove Municipal Building, 50 Raupp Blvd., or with Mrs. Pat Peterson at 410 Springside Ln., Buffalo Grove.

Further information on voting may be obtained from the Dist. 96 Administration Office at 634-3074. Saturday's referendum will ask voter approval to issue $335,000 in district bonds and to obtain a loan of $2.25 million from the Illinois School Building Commission to construct a third school.

Plans for the apartment portion of the development, which will be named Pleasant Run, are scheduled for discussion at the 7:30 p.m. meeting in the Wheeling Municipal Building.

The other portion of the land, which will be developed as a shopping center, is not included in the meeting.

The property is adjacent to John Muir School.

More than a year ago Prospect Heights residents led strong opposition to the village's granting the rezoning to property owner Paul Horch and his partner Gus Stavros. The residents of the unincorporated community even threatened a suit to stop the rezoning.

The Wheeling Village Board approved the rezoning anyway. At tomorrow's meeting, actual plans for the land development will be discussed. Plan commission and village board approval for both preliminary and final plans for the property are necessary before building permits can be issued for the site.

C. Of C. To Question Village Officials

Members of the Wheeling Chamber of Commerce will question village officials at a meeting tonight in the Clayton Hotel on Milwaukee Avenue.

The meeting begins with dinner at 6:30 p.m. The question period will begin at 8:30 p.m. It's out of town of monitoring the village government, according to Chamber official Gene Sackitt.

'Thirsty Burglars'

Can Watch Color TV

Burglars stole more than $500 worth of items early Friday morning from Corbel's Restaurant and Lounge, 31 N. Wolf Rd., Wheeling.

A portable color television and 15 quarts of liquor were taken, police said.

Restaurant Owner George Corbel of 9146 Home, Des Plaines, told police the burglary occurred between 2 a.m. and 1 p.m. Friday.

Police said the burglars entered the restaurant through the rear door either using a key or picking the lock.

Corbel said the 21-inch TV was worth approximately $400. The stolen liquor was valued at $114.31, police said, and included quarts of various brands of scotch, bourbon and brandy.

Charge 3 Youths With Burglary Of 15 Homes

Three Palatine youths were arrested Tuesday after being charged by Palatine police with burglarizing at least 15 homes.

Robert Moss, 17, of 44 S. Elmwood, and David Moss, 17, of 626 Eisenhower, are being held on $3,000 bond each. The third boy, a juvenile, was to appear in Family Court Tuesday afternoon.

Both Moss boys, who are not related are to appear in Arlington Heights District Court Oct. 28.

Palatine Police Chief Robert Centner, said there have been 28 burglaries in Palatine this year through the end of August, and the arrest of the three "should clear up at least 50 per cent of them."

Most of the burglaries, Centner said, occurred in July and August. More than half of the victims were on vacation when their homes were entered, he said.

The area most often victimized, Centner said, is bounded by Carpenter on the north, Lincoln on the south, Hicks on the west and Clark on the east. The police investigation centered there, he said, and included putting one car on patrol there at all times, and even having police detectives riding bicycles there at night.

HOWEVER, THREE burglaries also were reported in Hunting Ridge subdivision and the three youths also have been charged with those, Centner said.

The bicycles were used, he said, because they were a lot more inconspicuous than cars at night. "We got quite a few calls here saying there were suspicious characters riding around on bikes," Centner said.

Centner said informers gave the detectives the initial information, but that the suspects had given the police much information on the burglaries, filling in many of the details.

According to these statements, he said, the boys used a crowbar to break in through the back doors of the houses after noting whether lights were on inside, whether cars were in garages and ringing doorbells to see if anyone answered.

Some of the items stolen have been recovered by police, he said, and, as much as one-third of the stolen items might be recovered eventually. The stolen items include stereo tape recorders, radios and amplifiers and a .22-caliber target pistol.

Police are continuing their investigation to tie the boys in with other reported burglaries in the village. A final count on the number of warrants may not be available for some time, and their bonds could be raised if more complaints are signed.

Village Will Pay Crest Deficiency

The $45,000 deficiency in additional costs for the Arlington Crest special assessment project for sewer and water works in the subdivision will be paid by the village rather than Arlington Crest residents.

The Palatine Village Board committee of the whole voted Monday to make up the deficit by declaring the additional cost a public benefit. The full village board will vote on it at the next regular meeting.

Although the original cost of the project set at $277,362 was paid for completely through special assessments placed on the Arlington Crest residents, a similar assessment to make up the deficit was deemed uneconomical by the committee.

Mayor Jack Moodie told the board the process of respadding an assessment to cover the deficit "is like starting the whole process all over again." Any assessments made to cover the cost would be subject to public hearing, court proceedings, and bookkeeping, which are costly and lengthy.

By covering the $45,000 deficit through public benefit and taking the money from the village general fund to which all residents pay, Moodie asked the committee if they were "representing the interests of the public at large by doing this."

MOODIE SAID NO public benefit was declared previously on the project because no street work was involved, which would have benefited all residents who use the street.

"It may not all be public benefit, but the alternative would be too expensive in having to pay for administrative costs and court costs," Trustee Clay Brown said.

Kenneth Stonesifer, attorney for the Palatine Board of Local Improvements, previously told the board over $17,000 of the $45,000 could possibly be recovered later because it represented an interest reserve, in which case less money would be needed to cover the cost.

Village Mg. Berton Braun explained part of the deficiency may be due to interest charges not included in the original assessment for the project.

"THE INTEREST for the village doesn't stop until the bond is called in," Braun said. "This happens a while after the resident pays his assessment, causing interest costs to continue unabated over a period of time."

The four-year construction project in Arlington Crest involved the installation of about 11,700 feet of utility lines in an area between Northwest Highway and Olive Street on Warren, Williams and Wilke. The work was done to provide residents there with facilities to village water and sewer operations.

Library Board To View Objectives

A Committee of the Whole meeting of the Palatine Public Library Board of Directors will be held today at 7:30 p.m. in the library board room.

Although no action can be taken, the board will discuss a report on the objectives of the library board, authorized at the last board meeting.

Puppets Accompany Guidance Counselor

Duso Dolphin, Flopsie Flounder Attend School

by JOANN VANWYE

Duso the Dolphin and Flopsie the Flounder have become familiar classroom visitors at Pleasant Hill and Lincoln Elementary Schools.

The colorful puppets accompany Miss Barbara Barry, guidance coordinator for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, when she visits kindergarten through third grade classes at the two schools.

Miss Barry's frequent visits to each school are part of a pilot elementary guidance program instituted this fall.

Flopsie, whose eyes are on one side of her green and white spotted face, is always floundering around not knowing quite what to do. She is the perfect companion for Duso, who is quite intelligent.

Together, Duso and Flopsie introduce the students who eagerly sit in a circle around them to their underwater friends. There is Lefty the Octopus, Soupy the Turtle, Cloris the Clam and Sir Sidney Slicer III, who is nicknamed "Spike" and is really a swordfish.

WITH THE aid of a tape recorder, colorful illustrations and Miss Barry, Duso tells the youngsters one of several stories involving his underwater friends.

The first one students heard this year was about group discussions and how it is easier to solve problems if people think together.

With each of Duso's friends making a contribution, the five basic rules of group discussion were explained to the students, accompanied with funny anecdotes.

Lefty the Octopus' advice is to "raise your hand." Soupy the Turtle says "listen carefully." "Don't clam up" is the message of Cloris the Clam while Sir Sidney Slicer III says, "stick to the point." A final contribution is made by Duso who says "think together."

Following the story Miss Barry and the students talk about what each of Duso's friends said.

Duso's name stands for Developing Understanding of Self and Others. It is a program of activities with an accompanying kit of materials designed to stimulate social and emotional development.

THE PILOT guidance program at the elementary level was started this year as an extension of the guidance program that has been in operation at the junior high level for the last five years.

Miss Barry explained that the pilot program was started because of the belief in the district that "guidance is a continuous process and should begin when a child first starts school and follow him through the years."

The emphasis of the guidance program is preventive. Miss Barry explained that the program seeks to help each child develop a positive self-image and to make a successful adjustment to school.

"We are attempting to take the child from where he is at a certain point and guide him to a total contributing life in society," said Miss Barry.

In grades four through six, Focus is used. This is a multi-media system designed to promote both the cognitive and effective development of children.

The objectives of Focus are to "lead the child toward an understanding of self, an understanding of others and an understanding of the environment and its effects."

The students work with the books "Here I Am" and "I'm Not Alone" and talk about changes taking place around them.

ELEMENTARY TEACHERS and parents play a key role in guidance at the elementary level, said Miss Barry. For this reason workshops in guidance have been held for the teachers and Miss Barry has explained the program to several groups of parents.

Miss Barry, who assumed the newly created position of guidance coordinator in February, spends three days a week visiting schools and meeting with classes. In addition to Pleasant Hill and Lincoln Schools, she goes to the junior highs.

The approach to guidance at the junior high levels has changed this year. Teachers are meeting with each student individually to get to know him. At the end of October group guidance sessions with three to five students will start.

Due to the strong peer group influence at the junior high level, Miss Barry says it is felt the small groups will better be able to help the child learn to communicate. In the small group situation the teachers play a background role and direct conversations but do not offer opinions, said Miss Barry.

She stressed repeatedly that the approach to guidance in the district is a positive one, which means it does not focus on problems but rather on the natural maturation of the child. "We are trying to get away from the negative connotation that guidance equals a problem," she said.

Post officers to be installed are: commander, Richard Lucier; senior vice commander, Joe Wundsam; Junior vice commander, John Hiller; finance officer, Paul Magnuson; assistant finance officer, Andy Lembacher; sergeant-at-arms, Ray Novak; adjutant, Fred Guswelle; judge advocate, Wes Newbanks; historian, Jim Schwingel; service officer, Tony Dulatowski; and chaplain, John Geddes.

Auxiliary officers to be installed are: president, May Magnuson; treasurer, Donna Lawrence; recording secretary, Carol Lesviak; chaplain, Helen Frye; historian, Joan Ribar; and sergeant-at-arms, Vivian Berg.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Ending a bitter seven-month struggle, the Senate approved and sent to President Nixon legislation extending the draft for two years and raising military salaries across the board by a record $2.4 billion a year.

With U.S. delegation spokesmen optimistic that Washington's plan to provide seats for both Nationalist and Communist China, the United Nations General Assembly opened its 26th annual session. Diplomats from other countries, however, while predicting a close vote, did not share their confidence.

Following a 91-day declassification process, the Pentagon delivered to four congressional committees a censored version of its controversial study of the origins of the Vietnam War, intended for public distribution.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., urged President Nixon to nominate a woman to the Supreme Court to succeed retiring Justice Hugo Black. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., made a similar appeal Monday.

The War

Demonstrators in South Vietnam burned an effigy of President Nguyen Van Thieu and a bomb blast damaged headquarters of the pro-Thieu Confederation of Labor. The U.S. Command announced a new program for testing all U.S. servicemen in Vietnam every three months to find out whether they are using heroin or other narcotics.

The State

Prison officials believe the three prisoners who escaped from Stateville Penitentiary near Joliet during the weekend apparently had help from inside the prison. Officials said the civilian clothing worn by the convicts must have been smuggled to them from the prison storeroom.

A gunman firing from an automatic rifle was killed and two policemen wounded in a shootout west of Marion, Ill., in Williamson County, after an attempted car theft alert.

James S. White, 42, purchasing agent for Paul Powell in 1964-70, pleaded innocent to charges of bribery, income tax evasion and signing false income tax returns. He faces a maximum 87 years in prison and a $190,000 fine if convicted on all three charges. His trial has been set for Dec. 20.

The World

The U.S. dollar plunged to new lows against the West German mark, the Belgian franc and the Dutch guilder in a new wave of speculation against the dollar in European money markets.

Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party and senior member of the ruling Moscow troika, visits Yugoslavia today, initiating three months of globetrotting to sell Soviet policy to statesmen from Canada to North Africa.

The Market

The stock market spent another listless day, the Dow Jones Industrial Average finishing with a loss of 1.75 at 903.40. Investors seemed uncertain as to what Phase Two of President Nixon's economic policies will entail, and were concerned about organized labor's attack on the program in general. Prices eased in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

MSD Can't Halt Apartments Job

Construction of Ol' Madrid Apartments by Sellergren Inc. on the old Pebble Creek Golf Course in Palatine will not be stopped, despite a recent denial of a sewer permit for the project by the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

"There's no reason for construction revision at this time," James Sellergren, vice president of the developing firm, said yesterday. "If and when there is litigation over the permit, then we'd make a decision on a possible delay."

Sellergren said his firm has already invested over $5,000,000 on grading the 66-acre site and laying caissons for foundation. "Any delay would be extremely costly to us," he said. "We've gone too far already to stop." Sellergren will appeal the permit denial jointly with officials from the Village of Palatine before the MSD board. "We're in complete agreement to present a united front to the sanitary district," he said. "At least Palatine and I are on the same side."

Following the MSD permit denial made at a Sept. 9 board meeting, Palatine Village Mgr. Berton Braun mailed a letter to MSD objecting to the denial because it refuses to provide sewer services to a tax paying property owner.

According to MSD administrative procedures, Palatine has 20 days after the time of permit denial to request reconsideration, Braun said. He asked to appear before the MSD board at its next meeting Sept. 30. In his letter, Braun also explained he felt the matter could be resolved between the engineers representing Sellergren, MSD and Palatine. He said a meeting between the three groups will be set up to work out the problem.

"There are good sound engineering reasons for the permit not to be rejected by MSD," Braun said. Although MSD denied the permit because the board anticipated an overloaded sewer main as a result of the Sellergren project, Braun said village engineers disagreed. If such appeal procedures have no effect in reversing the MSD decision, Sellergren said the case may be taken to the courts.

"If it means a law suit, then that's what we'll do," he said. Besides seeking a sewer permit for his project, Sellergren said the appeal before the MSD board will bring out a larger question involving MSD Operations. "We feel very strongly the sanitary district will be put into a position that it will have to make a decision on whether it can legally reserve sewer permits for developers on property that hasn't even been zoned," he said.

HE POINTED OUT a proposal to construct a 2,500 unit development in Palatine Township north of Pinehurst Manor that is still pending zoning by the county has received a reservation for a sewer permit.

Sellergren's project, which was annexed to the Village of Palatine in January, involves the construction of 1,090 units in four high-rise buildings. Construction schedules call for occupancy of the first building by spring, which would require Sellergren to temporarily tie sewer lines into the sewer main in Rohlwing Road until completion of the large interceptor being constructed on Hicks Road.

FROM THE RUBBLE of 42 wooden stables in the backstretch of Arlington Park Race Track will rise 16 steel and concrete barns and six new dormitories for backstretch workers. Work has begun on a $5 million construction project in the track's stable area designed to eliminate all the frame barns within five years. Track officials say three of the new barns will be completed by November and as many as half the old stables could be bulldozed by the start of the 1972 racing season.

Water Reclamation Plant Gets 25% State Funding

The Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant, to serve a portion of the Northwest suburbs, has been granted 25 per cent funding by the State of Illinois.

John E. Egan, president of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, announced yesterday the $10.9 million grant.

A total of $43.6 million is needed for construction of the plant, which will include a two-stage sludge process, chlorination facilities and other devices to treat the sewage.

The announcement came in the form of a letter from Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, who stated the offer was made under provisions of the Illinois Anti-Pollution Bond Act of 1970.

The grant is one of five received from the State of Illinois. Several weeks ago, the MSD received a grant of $7 million for similar projects.

THE RECLAMATION plant is slated to be constructed on a parcel of land north of Schaumburg Road between Meacham and Rohlwing roads in unincorporated Schaumburg Township.

Bids on the $43.6 million project will be opened Oct. 19, said John Varakojis, MSD engineer of process planning. He said it would then take a month for federal approval of the bids, and the project has a 37-month construction schedule.

The district will receive about 33 per cent of the funding from federal sources and the remaining 42 per cent from the district's bond fund, according to a spokesman.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher said he was pleased to hear the news of the grant. "Any step that'll bring this facility into being sooner is pleasing."

Atcher said persons east of the plant have faced basement flooding every time a heavy rain has fallen. The project will ease the flooding, he said.

THE STATE also agreed to help fund intercepting sewers and pumping stations throughout the Chicago metropolitan area. The Salt Creek plant grant is the largest grant in the package.

In July, the MSD reviewed a study report that revealed it would cost the district between $30 million and $50 million to purchase land for a sludge farm to treat processed sewage.

Members of the MSD staff are currently studying the feasibility of other methods of treatment, including the possibility of transporting the sludge to another location for further treatment.

by KURT BAER

Arlington Park Race Track has embarked on a five-year, $5 million construction program designed to replace the track's 42 wooden stables with 16 fireproof concrete and steel barns.

Three of the new barns will be completed by November, a track spokesman said, and as many as half the wooden stables could be razed by the opening of the racing season next spring.

In addition to the 16 new barns, which will contain 138 stalls each, six dormitories will be put up to house backstretch workers, the spokesman said.

At least one of the new dormitories, and perhaps as many as three, will be open by the spring, although work on them has not yet begun.

According to track officials, all of the backstretch workers will eventually be housed in the new dormitories, with none of the men living in the barns as was the case with the wooden stables.

Several of the wooden barns, which were built around 1927, and a long stretch of stables and tackrooms as shed row have already been bulldozed.

Track officials said work would continue through the winter. When the construction is finished, Arlington Park will have stabling facilities for 2,000 horses and dormitory rooms for 700 backstretch workers.

IN RELATED WORK, track officials said $45,000 worth of landfill has been trucked into the backstretch area to build up the land along Salt Creek and eliminate runoff drainage into the stream.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency has charges that runoff from the backstretch was polluting the stream which flows south into Rolling Meadows.

A June 3 fire in a barn killing 33 horses and causing about $500,000 in damage focused the attention of the Illinois Racing Board on conditions in the backstretch.

At a June 8 meeting the Racing Board ordered improved safety in the stable area. A later inspection by Arlington Heights Fire Chief Harvey Carothers disclosed that none of the then existing buildings conformed to the village fire code.

The new barns are all concrete and steel with the exception of plywood kickboards which line the inside of the stalls to prevent horses injuring themselves.

Track officials said that the larger barns allow them to reduce the total number of stables by almost two-thirds. They believe the closer quarters will allow for improved security in the backstretch.

APPROXIMATELY 25 security guards patrol the area during the racing season.

The building is being done by the track's own construction workers, the spokesman said, although some of the work has been subcontracted with other companies.

Wooden forms laid out on the ground are used to mold the steel-reinforced concrete walls. The walls are set into place with a crane and then welded together. A steel roof covers each barn.

Track officials said the buildings, though costly, are virtually 100 per cent fireproof and should be relatively maintenance free.

More than $2 million will have been spent on the new buildings before the 1972 racing season opens.

Salt Creek Bike Path Studied

The feasibility of constructing a pedestrian walkway and bicycle path in the underpass where Rte. 53 crosses Salt Creek is under study by the Illinois Division of Highways.

The study is being made at the request of residents in Plum Grove Estates and the board of deacons at Bethel Lutheran Church, both in Rolling Meadows.

Proposed is the straightening of the creek, elevating the grade of the land and construction of a sidewalk for both pedestrian and bicycle traffic.

Rolling Meadows City Mgr. James Watson said a survey of Plum Grove Estates showed there are 42 children from the subdivision enrolled in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 who attend school on the east side of Rte. 53 at Central Road Elementary School, 3800 Central Rd.

In addition to Central Road School, there also are children in the subdivision attending Rolling Meadows High School and Sacred Heart of Mary High School who must cross Rte. 53.

Rte. 53 also divides the congregations of Bethel Lutheran Church and St. Colette Catholic Church.

AT PRESENT, residents in Plum Grove Estates must walk or bike to the underpasses at Kirchhoff or Algonquin roads in order to get across the six lane divided highway that is still under construction.

Attempts to have an overpass built, at a location between the current underpasses was found to be too expensive.

The existing underpass is approximately 60 feet wide by 14 feet high. Salt Creek is less than six feet wide and one foot deep at this point, said Frederick N. Lowe, chairman of the board of deacons at Bethel Lutheran Church.

Although Salt Creek snakes through the underpass, Lowe feels the creek could easily be straightened and confined to the southern portion of the underpass. This plan would require installation of two culverts under the proposed path to carry water discharged from two elevated pipes on the north wall of the underpass.

A bridge across the creek at both ends of the underpass also is being requested. Watson said highway officials have acknowledged receipt of information concerning the path but no decision has been made or meeting set with city officials.

If the state does construct the path, Watson said the city probably would be responsible for maintaining it.

Village Board Grips About MSD Regulations

New storm retention regulations issued by the Metropolitan Sanitary District launched the Palatine Village Board Monday into a tirade against the operations of the district.

MSD rules requiring developments of more than 10 acres to provide storm retention on the property have been in effect in Palatine long before the sanitary district came up with them, Mayor Jack Moodie told the board.

In making recommendations for the village's compliance with the new regulations, Walter Hodel, village engineer, said Palatine "has been working toward this goal conscientiously over many years."

He pointed out four areas of undeveloped land in the Palatine area that would be affected by the new MSD regulations:

—land in the Salt Creek Watershed area adjacent to Virginia Lake and Lake Louise subdivisions.

—future expansion areas of the Countryside apartment complex on Northwest Highway west of Quentin Road;

—north of Palatine Road between Roselle and Quentin roads.

—tracts east of Harper College, which would require at least retention facility.

RATHER THAN recommend the board comply with the regulations, which go into effect Jan. 1, Hodel suggested the board seek more information about what is involved in the new regulations and how binding a completion schedule would be.

Mrs. Cumberland Is Leisure Club Leader

Mrs. Marian Chamberland has been elected president of the Palatine Leisure Club.

The leisure club meets the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month in the Committee Room, 100 W. Palatine Road, from 10:30 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Fee for members is $1 per year, plus 25 cents at each meeting to cover expenses. Most members bring a sack lunch, and coffee and dessert are furnished. The program, sponsored by the Palatine Park District, is for anyone 50 years old or older.

City To Collect Apartment, Plant Refuse In Month

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer announced yesterday the city public works department may begin refuse collection at industries and apartment complexes in three or four months.

"I would estimate in three or four months we could pick up everybody's garbage," Meyer said. Presently the city public works department collects garbage at single family residences free of charge.

Meyer said industries and apartment complexes will be charged for the garbage service but estimated a 20 to 25 percent savings to the owners when the city begins collecting the refuse. The Rolling Meadows industries and apartment buildings owners hire private scavenger services to collect refuse.

The city now picks up garbage at the Rolling Meadows High School, Crawford's Department Store, Meadows Pharmacy and Maxi-Vac Manufacturing Co. Meyer said these collections are being made "to test the equipment" for the expanded collection system throughout the city.

Supt. of Public Works James McFeggan said containers are already on the trucks which will allow the pick up of industrial garbage. "We are now also in a position to pick up multi-family garbage," he said.

McFeggan said he did not know how billing to the apartments and industries would be handled. "Each establishment has different requirements," he added.

McFeggan told city council last week that the collection of industrial and apartment complex refuse will pay for itself. However, city council wanted a detailed cost analysis before any more funds were spent to expand the system. The council turned down a request to purchase an additional garbage truck to be used in the expanded collection system.

Consideration of the expanded garbage collection is possible due to the large sales tax surplus accumulated by the city. The sales tax funds allowed the purchase of a garbage compactor to be used in the process.

The garbage compactor is expected to save the city $25,000 a year on scavenger service. The city previously hauled refuse to area dumps after the garbage was collected from city homes.

By emptying the garbage into a compactor, the refuse will be compressed to about one half its volume before it is transported to the dump. McFeggan said the compactor not only reduces dumping costs which are based on volume, but also frees pick up trucks for more work on the streets.

The garbage compactor cost the city about $103,000 and is expected to be paid for in five years.

Although city officials estimate the industrial and apartment refuse collection will "be a break even proposition," the single family collection is subsidized through sales tax monies.

Each month the city subsidizes the cost of single family garbage collection from the general corporate funds composed primarily of sales tax surplus money.

LIGHTS WENT UP on the Rolling Meadows High School football field yesterday. Donated by the City of Rolling Meadows, the lights cost $30,000.

State Studying Possible Walkway At 53-Salt Creek

The feasibility of constructing a pedestrian walkway and bicycle path in the underpass where Rte 53 crosses Salt Creek is under study by the Illinois Division of Highways.

The study is being made at the request of residents in Plum Grove Estates and the board of deacons at Bethel Lutheran Church, both in Rolling Meadows.

Proposed is the straightening of the creek, elevating the grade of the land and construction of a sidewalk for both pedestrian and bicycle traffic.

Rolling Meadows City Mgr. James Watson said a survey of Plum Grove Estates showed there are 42 children from the subdivision enrolled in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist 15 who attend school on the east side of Rte 53 at Central Road Elementary School, 3800 Central Rd.

In addition to Central Road School, there also are children in the subdivision attending Rolling Meadows High School and Sacred Heart of Mary High School who must cross Rte 53.

Rte 53 also divides the congregations of Bethel Lutheran Church and St. Colette Catholic Church.

AT PRESENT, residents in Plum

Grove Estates must walk or bike to the underpasses at Kirchhoff or Algonquin roads in order to get across the six lane divided highway that is still under construction.

Attempts to have an overpass built, at a location between the current underpasses was found to be too expensive.

The existing underpass is approximately 60 feet wide by 14 feet high. Salt Creek is less than six feet wide and one foot deep at this point, said Frederick N. Lowe, chairman of the board of deacons at Bethel Lutheran Church.

Although Salt Creek snakes through the underpass, Lowe feels the creek could easily be straightened and confined to the southern portion of the underpass. This plan would require installation of two culverts under the proposed path to carry water discharged from two elevated pipes on the north wall of the underpass.

A bridge across the creek at both ends of the underpass also is being requested.

Watson said highway officials have acknowledged receipt of information concerning the path but no decision has been made or meeting set with city officials.

Hallerud Faces Two Counts

Dean Hallerud, director of the Rolling Meadows Park District, was charged with battery yesterday, after a Friday night incident behind the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

Mrs. Geonne Anderson, 3603 Wilke Rd., signed a battery complaint in Arlington Heights Circuit Court yesterday morning, alleging her 14-year-old son was assaulted by Hallerud at 9:35 p.m. Friday.

According to Rolling Meadows police, the youth alleges that Hallerud grabbed him from among a group of juveniles and pushed him against Salt Creek bridge located behind the sports complex. City police said Hallerud accused the youth of damaging the bridge.

Bond was set at $500 and a Nov. 23 court date has been set.

At 7:45 p.m. Friday, Hallerud was arrested by Rolling Meadows police for driving while under the influence of liquor. Police said the arrest was made at the intersection of Jay Lane and Fuller Street.

Hallerud was released on $200 cash bond and will appear in court Nov. 23 to answer the driving while intoxicated charge.

$10.9 Million Grant

Salt Creek Water Plant Gets Funds

The Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant, to serve a portion of the Northwest suburbs, has been granted 25 percent funding by the State of Illinois.

John E. Egan, president of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, announced yesterday the $10.9 million grant.

A total of $43.6 million is needed for construction of the plant, which will include a two-stage sludge process, chlorination facilities and other devices to treat the sewage.

The announcement came in the form of a letter from Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, who stated the offer was made under provisions of the Illinois Anti-Pollution Bond Act of 1970.

The grant is one of five received from the State of Illinois. Several weeks ago, the MSD received a grant of $7 million for similar projects.

THE RECLAMATION plant is slated to be constructed on a parcel of land north of Schaumburg Road between Meacham and Rohlfing roads in unincorporated Schaumburg Township.

Bids on the $43.6 million project will be opened Oct. 19, said John Varakojis, MSD engineer of process planning. He said it would then take a month for federal approval of the bids, and the project has a 37-month construction schedule.

The district will receive about 33 percent of the funding from federal sources and the remaining 42 percent from the district's bond fund, according to a spokesman.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher said he was pleased to hear the news of the grant. "Any step that'll bring this facility into being sooner is pleasing."

Atcher said persons east of the plant have faced basement flooding every time a heavy rain has fallen. The project will ease the flooding, he said.

THE STATE also agreed to help fund intercepting sewers and pumping stations throughout the Chicago metropolitan area. The Salt Creek plant grant is the largest grant in the package.

In July, the MSD reviewed a study report that revealed it would cost the district between $30 million and $50 million to purchase land for a sludge farm to treat processed sewage.

Members of the MSD staff are currently studying the feasibility of other methods of treatment, including the possibility of transporting the sludge to another location for further treatment.

$5 Million Race Track Construction Under Way

by KURT BAER

Arlington Park Race Track has embarked on a five-year, $5 million construction program designed to replace the track's 42 wooden stables with 16 fireproof concrete and steel barns.

Three of the new barns will be completed by November, a track spokesman said, and as many as half the wooden stables could be razed by the opening of the racing season next spring.

In addition to the 16 new barns, which will contain 138 stalls each, six dormitories will be put up to house backstretch workers, the spokesman said.

At least one of the new dormitories, and perhaps as many as three, will be open by the spring, although work on them has not yet begun.

According to track officials, all of the backstretch workers will eventually be housed in the new dormitories, with none of the men living in the barns as was the case with the wooden stables.

Several of the wooden barns, which were built around 1927, and a long stretch of stables and tackrooms known as shed row have already been bulldozed.

Track officials said work would continue through the winter. When the construction is finished, Arlington Park will have stabling facilities for 2,000 horses and dormitory rooms for 700 backstretch workers.

IN RELATED WORK, track officials said $45,000 worth of landfill has been trucked into the backstretch area to build up the land along Salt Creek and eliminate runoff drainage into the stream.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency has charges that runoff from the backstretch was polluting the stream which flows south into Rolling Meadows.

A June 3 fire in a barn killing 33 horses and causing about $500,000 in damage focused the attention of the Illinois Racing Board on conditions in the backstretch.

At a June 8 meeting the Racing Board ordered improved safety in the stable area. A later inspection by Arlington Heights Fire Chief Harvey Carothers disclosed that none of the then existing buildings conformed to the village fire code.

The new barns are all concrete and steel with the exception of plywood kickboards which line the inside of the stalls to prevent horses injuring themselves.

Track officials said that the larger barns allow them to reduce the total number of stables by almost two-thirds. They believe the closer quarters will allow for improved security in the backstretch.

APPROXIMATELY 25 security guards patrol the area during the racing season.

The building is being done by the track's own construction workers, the spokesman said, although some of the work has been subcontracted with other companies.

Wooden forms laid out on the ground are used to mold the steel-reinforced concrete walls. The walls are set into place with a crane and then welded together. A steel roof covers each barn.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Ending a bitter seven-month struggle, the Senate approved and sent to President Nixon legislation extending the draft for two years and raising military salaries across the board by a record $2.4 billion a year.

With U.S. delegation spokesmen optimistic that Washington's plan to provide seats for both Nationalist and Communist China, the United Nations General Assembly opened its 26th annual session. Diplomats from other countries, however, while predicting a close vote, did not share their confidence.

Following a 91-day declassification process, the Pentagon delivered to four congressional committees a censored version of its controversial study of the origins of the Vietnam War, intended for public distribution.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., urged President Nixon to nominate a woman to the Supreme Court to succeed retiring Justice Hugo Black. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., made a similar appeal Monday.

The War

Demonstrators in South Vietnam burned an effigy of President Nguyen Van Thieu and a bomb blast damaged headquarters of the pro-Thieu Confederation of Labor . . . The U.S. Command announced a new program for testing all U.S. servicemen in Vietnam every three months to find out whether they are using heroin or other narcotics.

The State

Prison officials believe the three prisoners who escaped from Stateville Penitentiary near Joliet during the weekend apparently had help from inside the prison. Officials said the civilian clothing worn by the convicts must have been smuggled to them from the prison store-room.

A gunman firing from an automatic rifle was killed and two policemen wounded in a shootout west of Marion, Ill., in Williamson County, after an attempted car theft alert.

James S. White, 42, purchasing agent for Paul Powell in 1964-70, pleaded innocent to charges of bribery, income tax evasion and signing false income tax returns. He faces a maximum 87 years in prison and a $150,000 fine if convicted on all three charges. His trial has been set for Dec. 20.

The World

The U.S. dollar plunged to new lows against the West German mark, the Belgian franc and the Dutch guilder in a new wave of speculation against the dollar in European money markets.

Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party and senior member of the ruling Moscow troika, visits Yugoslavia today, initiating three months of globetrotting to sell Soviet policy to statesmen from Canada to North Africa.

The Market

The stock market spent another listless day, the Dow Jones Industrial Average finishing with a loss of 1.75 at 903.40. Investors seemed uncertain as to what Phase Two of President Nixon's economic policies will entail, and were concerned about organized labor's attack on the program in general. Prices eased in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Ecology Move To Be Tested

by DOUG RAY

Just how involved Rolling Meadows residents have become in the ecology movement will be determined Saturday.

At about 5 p.m. all the cans, bottles and papers hauled to the city garage by residents will be accumulated, culminating the city council sponsored Ecology Day.

Ecology Day is a pilot project of the newly formed Recycling, Ecology and Beautification (REB) committee which was established by city council after urging by local environmentalists who testified recycling projects such as the one this Saturday can be successful.

Whether the large dumpsters at the city garage are overflowing with recyclables may determine the future direction the city will take in environmental protection. Aid Daniel Weber is calling Ecology Day a test. He said the turnout will determine the will of the residents for further city-sponsored anti-pollution drives.

There are many questions that will be answered before dark Saturday.

The city public works department may undertake recycling collection as a part of the garbage collection service, city officials have predicted.

City officials have said, if this project goes well, a monthly recycling drive may be held. It is also expected that recycling drop-off points will be set up in the city, if Saturday's recycling project is deemed a success.

IF LARGE AMOUNTS of recyclables are collected, public works trucks are expected to haul the refuse to the recycling plants. The $100,000 refuse compactor may also be used in the project.

More important, Saturday's Ecology Day will tell city council whether a budget should be established for REB next year to expand the programs to areas besides recycling.

Garbage bags in homes in Rolling Meadows should be bulging by now to make the pilot project as successful as the environmentalist predicted. Saturday's results will reveal Rolling Meadows residents enthusiasm for environmental protection.

OTHER MUNICIPALITIES must envy the financial position of Rolling Meadows as sales tax revenues mount each month.

One alderman commented: "I don't know what we would do with any more money."

WHAT IS A "motor mom"? What is the motor facilitation program in our school district? How will jumping, hopping, skipping and throwing help your kindergarten in his school work?

These are just a few of the questions that will be answered at the Motor Facilitation Organization tea at Kimball Hill School this afternoon. The tea will be held in the library of the school and will begin at 3:15 p.m. All mothers interested in the program are invited to attend this meeting where Motor Facilitation Chairman Mrs. Isabel Hill will explain the program.

According to Isabel, the primary purpose of the motor facilitation program is to help each child develop perceptual motor abilities. Improvement in motor ability will aid the child to function better socially and at the same time, will contribute directly to certain components of classroom learning.

The child should be able to maintain good balance for periods of time and in various positions. Locomotor skills such as crawling, walking, hopping, jumping, skipping, and galloping are presented to the students.

Among some of the many instructional objectives for the children are to teach them to identify body parts, to be able to crawl under, step over, or jump over a rope, or stand on a line. This helps teach him the concept of up, down, over, under, left, right, behind, besides, etc.

Also the children are asked to listen to, think through and respond. This provides essential training in self-discipline.

This program is of benefit to children whose full learning potential is not being utilized and it is felt that this program will enable these students to perform or achieve at a higher level. There's a lot to being a "motor mom." For more information, please call Isabel Hill at 392-3388.

"WE CARE Enough to Care More About Teacher-Parent Cooperation" is the title of the PTA meeting this evening at Central Road School, at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria. There will be a short business meeting conducted by Mrs. Maureen Welch, PTA president, at which time Robert Anderson, principal, will introduce the faculty to parents.

Refreshments will be served by the kindergarten mothers during the social time when parents and faculty become better acquainted.

'Brotherhood Midi Day' Set For Sunday

"Brotherhood Midi Day" will be held Sunday from 2 to 5:30 p.m. at the Twelve Oaks Apartments Pavilion in Arlington Heights.

Sponsored by the Brotherhood Committee of St. Colette's Parish Council, everyone between 15 and 30 is invited to attend.

The events will include Bible study, group discussion involving an eye-to-eye contact game, refreshments and a volleyball or softball game.

Dedication Honors Victims Of Fire

Informal dedication of a flagpole and plaque in memory of the Terry Garcia family was held Sunday at the Rolling Meadows Ice Arena.

The flagpole and plaque were donated to the Rolling Meadows Park District by friends of the Garcia family. Garcia, his wife and infant daughter died last year in a fire in their trailer home.

Duso Dolphin Returns To School

by JOANN VANWYE

Duso the Dolphin and Flopsie the Flounder have become familiar classroom visitors at Pleasant Hill and Lincoln Elementary Schools.

The colorful puppets accompany Miss Barbara Barry, guidance coordinator for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, when she visits kindergarten through third grade classes at the two schools.

Miss Barry's frequent visits to each school are part of a pilot elementary guidance program instituted this fall.

Flopsie, whose eyes are on one side of her green and white spotted face, is always floundering around not knowing quite what to do. She is the perfect companion for Duso, who is quite intelligent.

Together, Duso and Flopsie introduce the students who eagerly sit in a circle around them to their underwater friends. There is Lefty the Octopus, Soupy the Turtle, Clorisa the Clam and Sir Sidney Slicer III, who is nicknamed "Spike" and is really a swordfish.

WITH THE aid of a tape recorder, colorful illustrations and Miss Barry, Duso tells the youngsters one of several stories involving his underwater friends.

The first one students heard this year was about group discussions and how it is easier to solve problems if people think together.

With each of Duso's friends making a contribution, the five basic rules of group discussion were explained to the students, accompanied with funny anecdotes.

Lefty the Octopus' advice is to "raise your hand." Soupy the Turtle says "listen carefully." "Don't clam up" is the message of Clorisa the Clam while Sir Sidney Slicer III says, "stick to the point." A final contribution is made by Duso who says "think together."

Following the story Miss Barry and the students talk about what each of Duso's friends said.

Duso's name stands for Developing Understanding of Self and Others. It is a program of activities with an accompanying kit of materials designed to stimulate social and emotional development.

THE PILOT guidance program at the elementary level was started this year as an extension of the guidance program that has been in operation at the junior high level for the last five years.

Miss Barry explained that the pilot program was started because of the belief in the district that "guidance is a continuous process and should begin when a child first starts school and follow him through the years."

The emphasis of the guidance program is preventive. Miss Barry explained that the program seeks to help each child develop a positive self-image and to make a successful adjustment to school.

"We are attempting to take the child from where he is at a certain point and guide him to a total contributing life in society," said Miss Barry.

In grades four through six, Focus is used. This is a multi-media system designed to promote both the cognitive and effective development of children.

The objectives of Focus are to "lead the child toward an understanding of self, an understanding of others and an understanding of the environment and its effects."

The students work with the books

"Here I Am" and "I'm Not Alone" and talk about changes taking place around them.

ELEMENTARY TEACHERS and parents play a key role in guidance at the elementary level, said Miss Barry. For this reason workshops in guidance have been held for the teachers and Miss Barry has explained the program to several groups of parents.

Miss Barry, who assumed the newly created position of guidance coordinator in February, spends three days a week visiting schools and meeting with classes. In addition to Pleasant Hill and Lincoln Schools, she goes to the junior highs.

The approach to guidance at the junior high levels has changed this year. Teachers are meeting with each student individually to get to know him. At the end of October group guidance sessions with three to five students will start.

DUSO THE DOLPHIN and his underwater friends have become familiar faces at Pleasant Hill and Lincoln Schools. Above, Duso and guidance coordinator Miss Barbara Barry, right, meet with Miss Kathy Brown's first grade class at Pleasant Hill School as part of a pilot guidance program.

High IQ 'Mensa' Top Honor

Nobody can call Charlene Diedrich a "dumb broad" anymore and really mean it.

For someone who's never been to college, Mrs. Charlene Diedrich, 425 S. Cedar, Palatine, has proven that a person's intellect does not depend on years of schooling.

Mrs. Diedrich recently was granted membership in Mensa an international intelligentsia organization with members whose IQs represent the top two per cent of the minds in the world.

Her score of 148 on an IQ exam ranked her high enough for membership. She now belongs to an exclusive club that includes university professors, construction workers, advertising executives and Truman Capote.

"I filled out a quiz in Cosmopolitan Magazine in June on 'How Smart are You?' when I was feeling down," Mrs. Diedrich said. She did so well on it she sent for a preliminary exam for Mensa.

She took the 1 1/2-hour exam at home, testing her ability to reason and her vocabulary. After waiting a few weeks, she found out she scored four points under the minimum level for possible membership.

A date was set up for her to take a qualifying exam to make up the four missing points. This one was three hours long and taken amid the academic atmosphere of the University of Chicago.

"When the letter from Mensa came a few weeks later, I was afraid to open it," she said. But her second test made up for what she lacked on the first.

MRS. DIEDRICH, 28, was educated in her home town of Woodstock but "never felt scholastically inclined in high school." Although her grades were always above average, no one in school counseled her about college or pushed her into thinking about continuing her education.

Now, she'd like to work for a degree and has enrolled in an American Government course at Harper College.

Mensa was created in 1945 in Britain and remained entirely British until 1960 when American Mensa was formed. Canadians also formed their own national group in 1967, increasing the number of Mensa members.

The term Mensa is a triple pun in Latin from Mensa-table, Mens-mind, Mensis-Month; hence, minds meet monthly around a table.

Her acceptance into one of the most exclusive clubs in the country hasn't caused any changes in her relationships with family and friends, but has prompted a lot of jokes. In her job as secretary for Harry Benstein and Associates Insurance firm, her boss now thinks there can be no excuses of typing errors or misfiled records, which somehow still occasionally crop up.

ALTHOUGH SHE says her husband is proud of her newly recognized level of intelligence, he refuses to take a test for Mensa himself. She also figures that if and when a conflict might arise between the two of them, her husband will just throw up his hands and tell her, "If you're so smart, do it yourself."

Being so new to Mensa, she's not quite sure to what extent she'll get involved in the group's activities. Local chapters have regular meetings and social gatherings, which she plans to attend.

But right now, she's still getting over the initial shock of adjusting to a new self-image.

"My mother has more respect for me now," she quipped. So, too, must a lot of other people in town.

Because Of Phone Survey Hangup

Chamber's Transit Study Almost 3 Months Overdue

Results of a transportation study undertaken late last spring by the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce are almost three months overdue because of problems with the telephone survey on which the project is based.

The survey called for the polling of residents by phone to find out what their needs and preferences for public transportation were.

The survey, sponsored by the Chamber, was performed at no charge by marketing students at Harper Junior College. Plans last May had called for 1,000 Mount Prospect households to be contacted.

But those involved in the survey found out soon after it started that it would take more time than was anticipated. The project was extended for a month.

Finally, late in July, Richard Hughes, chairman of the Chamber's transportation committee, said the survey had ended with about 600 of the expected 1,000 inquiries made. He said the lack of volunteer manpower was the reason the goal of 1,000 calls was not met.

THE PROBLEMS in recruiting students for the project occurred, Hughes said, "because of summer vacations and students getting off for the summer. This of course was a volunteer project. No one at Harper got paid for their work."

Plans at that point called for the results to be turned over to the Chamber's executive board in early August.

But the survey ran into another problem. "We found it (the random sample of households contacted) wasn't quite accurate, so additional surveying had to be done," Hughes said. The additional survey work was completed last week.

A report on the survey with a recommendation concerning public transportation in the village will be turned over to the Chamber's executive board within the next two weeks. "The executive board rather than the whole membership will make a decision on the matter," Hughes said.

What that board will be deciding is, first, whether public transportation is warranted in Mount Prospect, and second, if it is, how to get it. If the survey shows there is enough interest in a service to support a money-making bus operation, he said Chamber officials would approach a transportation firm with their findings. Another alternative, he said, was "subsidizing from one of several sources — village merchants or large manufacturers, or federal funds through a transit district." Hughes points out, however, that the formation of a transit district would be on an area-wide basis rather than in Mount Prospect only.

Successful Bus Service Would Expand

If a bus service proved successful in Mount Prospect, neighboring Prospect Heights would be one of the first areas considered for expansion of the service, according to Richard Hughes, chairman of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce transportation committee.

Hughes' committee is working on a transportation survey in Mount Prospect which, depending on the results, could result in a new bus service in Mount Prospect. Hughes made his comments last May at the outset of the survey.

Pointing out many Prospect Heights residents shop at the Randhurst Shopping Center and used the Mount Prospect Chicago and North Western Railway station, he said "Prospect Heights would be a 'natural' for expansion."

After expansion into Prospect Heights, he said, "We would consider Wheeling."

GLENN AND MARSHA Busse operate their vegetable stand on Landmeier Road in Elk Grove Village every day from the spring thaw through fall. But in three years their land will have factories on it.

The trial of two custodians, charged with assaulting students at James Fenimore Cooper Junior High School was continued yesterday by Judge David J. Shields in Arlington Heights Court.

The two custodians, Gregg Rodriguez, 35 of 814 Rand Rd., Palatine, and Elias Martinez, 26, of 29 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, were charged with several counts of assault, aggravated assault and battery.

The charges stem from alleged incidents at the Buffalo Grove school last spring.

The pair have since been transferred to Wheeling and Prospect Heights schools within Dist. 21, police said.

IN GRANTING THE continuance,

Judge Shields told the complainants, a group of parents and their children, that he recognized the inconvenience to them, but the defense was entitled to a continuance because yesterday was the first time the case was heard in court.

Also during the proceedings, defense attorneys said they also intended to file petitions in Cook County Juvenile Court to have the students declared delinquent, in an apparent effort to discredit their testimony.

The custodians were originally charged with taking undue liberties with the students. That case never came to trial and the charges have since been "incorporated" with the assault charges, according to Buffalo Grove police.

Victimized Firm Asks Wire Fencing

"Unbelievable vandalism" at the Denniston Chemical Co., 440 Denniston Ct., led to a request for village permission to build a barbed wire fence at the plant.

William Denniston of the firm described the vandalism to the village board Monday night.

Denniston told board members that the company is currently expanding its facilities and that before and during the construction period there has been a steady stream of vandalism to various machinery and buildings.

He told the board of an incident where vandals had smashed all the windows in a construction crane, pulled out wire connections and smashed all the instruments. "We lost a half day of work for the construction crews," he explained.

Other recent instances he cited included obscenities written in wet cement, and $1,600 worth of sod that was "half torn up" after it had been laid.

Denniston also told the board that windows at the plant have been broken, gravel and plastic pellets have been put in automobile gas tanks, and that 250 steel drums disappeared from the property.

OTHER EXAMPLES of vandalism Denniston listed in a letter to the board included obscenities painted on the building, holes broken in plastic smoke escape panels, a construction trailer broken into and all the portable tools stolen, and garbage dumped in the yard in back of the factory.

Garbage also has been dumped in the firm's incinerator by vandals, children have been caught stealing the empty steel drums, 20 feet of woven wire fence was cut down and stolen, floodlights have repeatedly been broken, and the company sign has been stolen twice, he wrote.

Keys and tools were stolen from an electrician's truck, and in the new building under construction heaters and air conditioners were chopped with a hatchet, he said. Vandals also knocked over freshly built block walls at the construction site, he said.

DENNISTON URGED board members to approve a request to allow his company to install a fence with the hardware for barbed wire in preparation for an expected change in village ordinances.

Board members agreed to the request after Denniston said he would submit a letter promising not to actually install the barbed wire until village ordinances are changed. Currently Wheeling has a law banning barbed wire fences but the village is considering changing that law.

In a letter to the board, he pointed out that two sides of the property are now fenced, but that he wants to fence all four sides.

Arrested After Scuffle In Bar

Reynolds J. Tague, 22, of 206 Tully Pl., Prospect Heights, was arrested about 7:15 p.m. Saturday by Mount Prospect Police for battery and resisting arrest after an incident at Butch McGuire's, 300 E. Rand Rd.

According to police, Tague was allegedly using profane language to a waitress and the restaurant manager, Richard Alexenburg, 29. Police said that when Alexenburg asked Tague to leave, a scuffle resulted. Tague allegedly struck Alexenburg in the chest and face.

When police arrived, Tague began pushing and showing the arresting officers, police reported.

Tague was released on $2,000 bond and will appear in court Nov. 18.

Consider Drake Terrace Area Land

Plans for the development of half of a 19 acre site on Elmhurst Road just south of Drake Terrace will be considered by the Wheeling Plan Commission tomorrow night.

Plans for the apartment portion of the development, which will be named Pleasant Run, are scheduled for discussion at the 7:30 p.m. meeting in the Wheeling Municipal Building.

The other portion of the land which will be developed as a shopping center is not included in the meeting.

The property is adjacent to John Muir School.

More than a year ago, Prospect Heights' residents lead strong opposition to the village's granting the rezoning to property owner Paul Horsch and his partner Gus Stavros. The residents of the unincorporated community even threatened a suit to stop the rezoning.

The Wheeling Village Board approved the rezoning anyway. At tomorrow's meeting, actual plans for the land development will be discussed. Plan commission and village board approval for both preliminary and final plans for the property are necessary before building permits can be issued for the site.

Free-Lunch Plan Now In Effect

A free and reduced-price lunch policy is now in effect in School Dist. 21. The program will allow school children who are unable to pay the full price for a school lunch to pay a reduced price or receive the lunches free.

To be eligible to participate, a family of two may have an annual gross income no higher than $2,670; a family of three $3,310.

A family of four, $3,940; five, $4,530; six, $5,110; seven, $5,640; eight, $6,170; nine $6,650; 10, $7,130; 11, $7,600; 12, $8,060; for families with more than 12 members, an additional annual gross income of $480 per person will be allowed.

Families falling within these economic guidelines or facing unusual hardships may participate in the free and reduced-price lunch program by filling out the application form sent to parents.

Additional copies are available from the principal in each Dist. 21 school. Applications may be submitted at any time during the school year.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Ending a bitter seven-month struggle, the Senate approved and sent to President Nixon legislation extending the draft for two years and raising military salaries across the board by a record $2.4 billion a year.

With U.S. delegation spokesmen optimistic that Washington's plan to provide seats for both Nationalist and Communist China, the United Nations General Assembly opened its 26th annual session. Diplomats from other countries, however, while predicting a close vote, did not share their confidence.

Following a 91-day declassification process, the Pentagon delivered to four congressional committees a censored version of its controversial study of the origins of the Vietnam War, intended for public distribution.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., urged President Nixon to nominate a woman to the Supreme Court to succeed retiring Justice Hugo Black. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., made a similar appeal Monday.

The War

Demonstrators in South Vietnam burned an effigy of President Nguyen Van Thieu and a bomb blast damaged headquarters of the pro-Thieu Confederation of Labor. The U.S. Command announced a new program for testing all U.S. servicemen in Vietnam every three months to find out whether they are using heroin or other narcotics.

The State

Prison officials believe the three prisoners who escaped from Stateville Penitentiary near Joliet during the weekend apparently had help from inside the prison. Officials said the civilian clothing worn by the convicts must have been smuggled to them from the prison store-room.

A gunman firing from an automatic rifle was killed and two policemen wounded in a shootout west of Marion, Ill., in Williamson County, after an attempted car theft alert.

The World

Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party and senior member of the ruling Moscow troika, visits Yugoslavia today, initiating three months of globetrotting to sell Soviet policy to statesmen from Canada to North Africa.

The Market

The stock market spent another listless day, the Dow Jones Industrial Average finishing with a loss of 1.75 at 903.40. Investors seemed uncertain as to what Phase Two of President Nixon's economic policies will entail, and were concerned about organized labor's attack on the program in general. Prices eased in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Sunday is football day in Mount Prospect. Each Sunday afternoon during September and October, hundreds of parents, grandparents, and youngsters of all ages gather at Lions Park to cheer for their special halfback, linebacker, or punter.

Loyal fans who might be lukewarm about Notre Dame, the Chicago Bears, and the Super Bowl willingly slog along muddy sidelines in a cold drizzle to watch their favorite midget football team in action. So many 8-to-14-year-old boys play, that three Sunday games are scheduled for each of the park's five football fields.

As a spectator you might see a tiny tackle lightning up the bearded Indian belt holding up his official football pants... a coach ordering his pint-sized quarterback to "GET TOUGH!"... pony-tailed, bubble gum chewing cheerleaders screaming, "Go, Big Blue!"... a 67-pound halfback happily dashing into the end zone... and the victorious team celebrating with a round of Good Humors. Mostly what you'd see is everyone having a very good time.

SPENDING MORE Sunday hours at Lions Park than most families are Betty and Tony Wertz of 206 N. Russell St. They have three boys playing football this season. Mark plays for the Colts, Tracy for the Rams, and Scott for the Hoosiers. Each week they run up a family total of three football games and nine practice sessions. When the boys are involved in two separate games at the same time on different fields, things get a little hectic.

Although dinner-hour practices play havoc with the family meal schedule, their mother is enthusiastic about the boys playing football.

"Sports are good for boys," says Betty. "They help the boys develop and help their mental attitude. I really think it's great." Right now Mark is looking forward to getting back into action after suffering a sprained ankle in Sunday's game.

TUNA FISH. A sack of flour, tomato soup, and a green bell pepper were several of the unusual gifts Judy Kreitzman received at a bridal shower this week. Each ingredient was accompanied by one of the guest's favorite recipes. The miscellaneous shower was given by Judy's next door neighbor, Mrs. Lowell Ackmann, 308 N. Dale Ave. On Oct. 2 Judy will become Mrs. Dan Cerny. The couple is planning to move into a new home in Schaumburg.

ON CAMPUS. Donald Foster of 401 S. George St. is currently serving as "Pop" to 400 freshman students at Wheaton (Ill.) College. He and the other three members of the college's "official family" help acquaint incoming students with campus life through summer correspondence and orientation week activities. He will also help coordinate homecoming activities this fall.

Deborah Anderson, 1105 Hemlock Ln., has been named president of the Western Illinois University Student Alumni Foundation for the 1971-72 academic year. This new organization gives students a chance to participate in alumni and fund raising programs. Deborah is a junior majoring in home economics education.

With The Factories Coming...

by WANDALYN RICE
The vegetable stands on the Busse property on Landmeier Road have just three years left. Then they will be displaced by factories.

But for Glenn and Marsha Busse, who operate one of the stands, at 1100 Landmeier Rd, Elk Grove Village, and their uncle up the road, this harvest season is much like the last, with corn, tomatoes, green peppers and eggplant stacked in baskets waiting for customers.

From 25 to 30 customers visit Glenn and Marsha's stand every day, with the rush coming when the nearby factories let out.

Besides about 35 varieties of homegrown vegetables, the Busses stock fruits and vegetables they don't grow for those who want them.

Most of the call, however, is for the homegrown vegetables. "Most people just can't wait for it to come on," Mrs. Busse said.

"THIS YEAR the tomatoes have been a little late because of the cold weather in August, but otherwise the vegetables have been doing well."

This is the second year the young couple has operated the stand, which opened right after the spring thaw and will close after Thanksgiving.

"Glenn used to be a produce manager and he just kind of got the idea he'd like to do this for himself," Mrs. Busse said.

Many of the women who come to the stand are those who do their own canning and, while some ask Mrs. Busse for recipes, she just as often asks them for ideas.

Right now she is planning to try one of the recipes she has been given for okra, a vegetable. "I'd never heard of until we opened the stand. People who like it really love it. I have several recipes but I haven't tried them yet."

One of the more entertaining customers, she said, is the hungry husband who

"You can tell they're usually starving and everything looks good to them. They'll carry pounds and pounds of stuff away and I can just see their wives' faces when they see it," she said.

"USUALLY WHEN I'm working here I try to find out how big their families are so they don't buy too much," she said, laughing.

Glenn and Marsha just smile and not when asked if they are related to "the Busses of Mount Prospect," a family that has been in the area for many years.

"Glenn's folks have been on this land for 45 years," Mrs. Busse said. "But it's been sold now and we have just three years left here."

The land was annexed to Elk Grove Village, zoned for industry and sold, she explained. Buildings from the new industrial park to the north and east already are beginning to encroach on the land.

"I'm going to be sorry to see it go," Mrs. Busse said, watching one of the cars pull away from the stand with a happy purchaser of fresh tomatoes doing the driving.

Secretaries, Clerks Declare Pay Impasse

Secretaries and clerks have declared an impasse in their salary negotiations with Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59.

Representatives of the Secretary's Association, which has been bargaining with the administration on salaries for the approximately 135 secretaries and clerks in the district, appeared before the board of education Monday night to ask the board to join the negotiations.

The secretaries have been negotiating since last spring with Albeon Waltman, assistant superintendent for personnel, and have reached an impasse, the representatives said.

In a letter presented to the board and signed by most of the secretaries, the association asked that a board member be present at the next negotiation session. The board did not immediately respond to the request.

THE MAIN ISSUE in the talks is salaries, although other issues also are being discussed, according to Ann Buchanan, secretary to Supt. James Ervitt and a member of the negotiating team.

"We didn't seem to be getting any place, so we thought we'd go to the board," she said. "Basically, negotiations are at a standstill on money."

The secretaries and clerks in the district work either for a full calendar year or for a school year and either full or part-time. Included in the group are the library-learning center clerks who man the libraries in the district's 20 schools.

Pay scale for all the employees ranges from $1.69 an hour to $4.01 an hour, according to Waltman. The pay increases are granted as an employee gains seniority.

All secretaries and clerks in the district now are being paid under last year's salaries because of the wage-price freeze.

Negotiations are also continuing between the district and the other major group of non-certificated personnel, custodians. These talks were also under way when the wage freeze took effect.

This year is the first secretaries and clerks have negotiated with the administration on salaries.

For 1971-'72 Fiscal Year

School District Facing $280,000 Budget Deficit

An estimated budget deficit of about $280,000 is facing Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 in the 1971-'72 fiscal year.

The tentative deficit figure is included in the $4.25 million budget approved by the district for the 1971-'72 school year.

Approval of the budget came at a public hearing Monday. Although several persons were present, none questioned the district's proposed expenditures.

The written budget shows potential deficits in the education and building funds. The approximately $3.2 million education fund, which makes up approximately three-fourths of the district's total budget, shows a potential deficit of $384,183.

The $462,900 building fund, which includes a $150,000 expenditure for a proposed expansion of facilities at Fairview School, shows a deficit of $54,000. However, school officials stressed that the $308,900 estimated revenue for that fund does not include at least $150,000 the district plans to obtain for the expansion by selling 11 acres of land.

School officials have said they will not expand Fairview until the land is sold. Once they do, the building fund would show an excess of at least $96,000 which could be borrowed from the building fund to decrease the potential deficit in the education fund, according to J. C. Busenhart, business manager. He said the budget would then be balanced by borrowing tax anticipation warrants (TAW's).

BUSENHART STRESSED that the budget and potential deficits are only estimates. He said that last year's budget, which showed a potential deficit of nearly $180,000, showed an approximate $90,000 deficit at the close of the fiscal year on June 30.

The education fund, which shows an approximate $200,000 increase over last year's fund, is composed primarily of instructional supplies and staff salaries. The 1971-'72 education fund includes a 5 per cent increase for all instructional salaries. However, Busenhart pointed out that the amount budgeted for salaries could "go up or down" depending on the outcome of current negotiations between teachers and the school board.

The education fund also includes a proposed expenditure of $112,000 for special education, a $71,000 increase over last year. Custodial salaries, which total approximately $192,000 and last year were paid out of the building fund, will also be paid out of the 1971-'72 education fund.

Payment of the salaries was moved to the education fund to eliminate an actual deficit in the building fund. Earlier this month, Harrison Hanson board president, suggested making the move because "there's not a snowball's chance in the hot place" of passing a building referendum. He said Monday, referring to the potential deficit in the education fund: "It indicates to me that we're going to be talking to the voters before too long."

PART OF THE budget deficit is due to decreasing revenue. The estimated 1971-'72 valuation in the district totals $99,000,000. The slight increase over last year's figure coupled with decreasing enrollment will cause a reduction in state aid, according to Busenhart. Estimates in tax and state aid revenue, which supplies money for most of the education fund, show a $30,000 drop from last year's figure.

Nine teacher salaries, which were not included in the projected 1971-'72 enrollment plan, will also have to be paid out of the education fund. Because of decreasing enrollment, the school board approved a reduction of 25 teaching positions than last year. However, not enough teachers resigned to meet the reduction.

Other funds in the total budgets included: bond and interest $346,800; transportation, $91,000; municipal retirement, $50,000; site and construction, $10,187; and working cash, $58,000.

Taxpayers Cost To Be Less

Taxpayers in Dist. 57 next spring will be paying at least one cent per $100 assessed valuation less for the operation of the school district.

The Dist. 57 school board Monday night adopted a tax levy with a tax rate of $2.62 per $100 assessed valuation as compared to the 1970-'71 rate of $2.83. School officials said that while the district cannot exceed the approved said tax rate, the rate may be less depending on the district's assessed valuation.

J. C. Busenhart, business manager, said the slight decrease in the tax rate is due to decreases in the tax rates for several of the district's funds.

The tax rate for the education fund was set at the current rate of $1.67. The rate cannot exceed that amount unless Dist. 57 voters approve an increase through a referendum.

The district also will levy a tax for fire protection at a rate of 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The district did not levy such a tax last year and is able to do so because of a $4,000 deficit shown in the building fund.

Other tax rates per $100 assessed valuation that were adopted by the board are 37½ cents for the building fund; 6 cents for the municipal retirement fund; 4 cents for the transportation fund; 5 cents for the working cash fund; 37 cents for the bond and interest funds; and .7 cents for liability insurance.

ONE OF THE FRINGE benefits to traveling with a circus is getting to ride an elephant. Rev. Richard Lehman of Mount Prospect's St. John

Episcopal Church, got to ride this one during a stay with the Mills Brothers Circus.

Clergyman Recalls Circus The Way It Used To Be

by TOM VON MALDER

John Ringling, the famed circus impresario, once said that everyone is a child when it comes to the circus.

So it is not too surprising to discover that Richard Lehman, of 205 N. Wille St., Mount Prospect, has spent three summers traveling with the Mills Brothers Circus. Unless one recalls that the 48-year-old Lehman has been the rector at St. John's Episcopal Church, 200 N. Main St., Mount Prospect, for 8½ years.

His great love of the tent circus, which began — "I can't even remember the start" — back in the days when he would ride his bike 50 miles to stay with friends when the circus was in their town, led Rev. Lehman to take his wife and two sons to join the circus during his month-long summer vacation. He traveled with the Mills Brothers as a general helper for three successive summers, 1965-1967, until the Mills retired after 29 years in the business.

"My particular love is the tent circus, of which there are only some 20 remaining now," he said. "The Golden Age of the Circuses was in the '30s when I was a youth. Today they are disappearing."

THE TENT circuses and their entourage are the nomads of the circus world. They arrive at their site (and it must be fairly large) early in the morning and pull up stakes late that same day.

"The circus we traveled with was proud of its ability to put up and take down. They were there with sun-up, 5:30 or so. At 9:30, we were ready to start the first show.

"The evening show would begin about 9 p.m. They would start taking down as soon as the show started. By 11 p.m. everything would be down and on its way. The tent circus moves in sections — not as a caravan."

The tent circuses are threatened, even today when the wave for nostalgia is re-creating interest and enriching coffers, because of urbanization and labor problems, Rev. Lehman said.

The reasonably flat, large areas close to the people are getting harder to find due to urban sprawl, he explained. "This is one of the problems. There have been no parades through the towns for a number of years. The circuses just can't get the help, the permits, and then there is the traffic problem."

The labor problem is that there is just not enough of it. "It takes so much time and effort to set up the tent circus," Rev. Lehman said. "And the laborers' jobs are so unglamorous."

An additional drawback is how circus folk are treated.

"CIRCUS PEOPLE are so mistreated and misjudged by people. People who aren't in the circus are so discourteous and hateful of circus members. Why the only time I couldn't cash an American Express Traveler's Check was when I was with the circus, and it was at a place that issued them," Rev. Lehman said.

"As a result, circus people are really very shy about meeting strangers. But once they've met you they are very friendly."

Rev. Lehman said he believes the anti-circus people attitude arises because "people think of the carnival and the circus as one bag. The carnival has a bad image as a dishonest, undesirable influence coming into the community for a time."

Circus people, he said, think of themselves as akin to the theater, rather than the carnival. "Many belong to the Actor's Guild," Rev. Lehman said.

A tent circus is like a traveling city of some 300 inhabitants. "It's a very close-knit little village," Rev. Lehman said. "You have the normal little irritations. But no children run loose. Any adult with the circus can discipline the children. As a result, while I was with the Mills Brothers, there were about 15 very well-disciplined children."

"The Mills Brothers ran a very right show. They wouldn't let anyone fool around with alcohol. It would be too dangerous. As it is most of the risks come, not in the performances, but in moving constantly and just the manner of life they lead."

REV. LEHMAN feels circus life is exciting: "Every day something exciting happened. The first day we were with them they were trying to build on a lot which they weren't sure was going to be big enough. Another time a tornado was approaching and the performances had to be shortened so that everything could be well tied down. Luckily, we never saw a funnel."

One can add to the risks of circus life the fact that the performers are not highly paid, the minister said. "Usually, they are paid by the act and the value of an act can vary from circus to circus. Most end up with a modest income. Even a star in a circus would not pull the money a star in a (stage) show would make."

It certainly is different from the old days when circus stars were able to grab lucrative Hollywood contracts.

Rev. Lehman, while with the circus, tried to document the life through comprehensive slides and tape recordings. He now presents these materials to various organizations and schools on request.

He also is a member of the Circus

Transit Study Three Months Late

Results of a transportation study undertaken late last spring by the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce are almost three months overdue because of problems with the telephone survey on which the project is based.

The survey called for the polling of residents by phone to find out what their needs and preferences for public transportation were.

The survey, sponsored by the Chamber, was performed at no charge by marketing students at Harper Junior College. Plans last May had called for 1,000 Mount Prospect households to be contacted.

But those involved in the survey found out soon after it started that it would take more time than was anticipated. The project was extended for a month.

Finally, late in July, Richard Hughes, chairman of the Chamber's transportation committee, said the survey had ended with about 600 of the expected 1,000 inquiries made. He said the lack of volunteer manpower was the reason the goal of 1,000 calls was not met.

THE PROBLEMS in recruiting students for the project occurred, Hughes said, "because of summer vacations and students getting off for the summer. This of course was a volunteer project. No one at Harper got paid for their work."

Plans at that point called for the results to be turned over to the Chamber's executive board in early August.

But the survey ran into another problem. "We found it (the random sample of households contacted) wasn't quite accurate, so additional surveying had to be done," Hughes said. The additional survey work was completed last week.

A report on the survey with a recommendation concerning public transportation in the village will be turned over to the Chamber's executive board within the next two weeks. "The executive board rather than the whole membership will make a decision on the matter," Hughes said.

What that board will be deciding is, first, whether public transportation is warranted in Mount Prospect, and second, if it is, how to get it. If the survey shows there is enough interest in a service to support a money-making bus operation, he said Chamber officials would approach a transportation firm with their findings. Another alternative, he said was "subsidizing from one of several sources — village merchants or large manufacturers, or federal funds through a transit district." Hughes points out, however, that the formation of a transit district would be on an area-wide basis rather than in Mount Prospect only.

Flea Market Booths Open At 10 Saturday

Booths at the Fairview School PTA Flea Market will open at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The market will be held in the parking lot of the school, 300 N. Fairview Ave., until 3:30 p.m. PTA members will sell hot dogs, coffee, soft drinks, taffy apples and candy. The PTA will also hold a bake sale.

In case of rain, the flea market will be postponed to Oct. 2. Funds from the project will be used for cultural arts programs and other school related activities.

Sunday is football day in Mount Prospect. Each Sunday afternoon during September and October, hundreds of parents, grandparents, and youngsters of all ages gather at Lions Park to cheer for their special halfback, linebacker, or punter.

Loyal fans who might be lukewarm about Notre Dame, the Chicago Bears, and the Super Bowl willingly slog along muddy sidelines in a cold drizzle to watch their favorite midget football team in action. So many 8-to-14-year-old boys play, that three Sunday games are scheduled for each of the park's five football fields.

As a spectator you might see a tiny tackle tightening up the beaded Indian belt holding up his official football pants... a coach ordering his pint-sized quarterback to "GET TOUGH!"... pony-tailed, bubble gum chewing cheerleaders screaming, "Go, Big Blue!"... a 67-pound halfback happily dashing into the end zone... and the victorious team celebrating with a round of Good Humors. Mostly what you'd see is everyone having a very good time.

SPENDING MORE Sunday hours at Lions Park than most families are Betty and Tony Wertz of 206 N. Russell St. They have three boys playing football this season. Mark plays for the Colts, Tracy for the Rams, and Scott for the Hoosiers. Each week they run up a family total of three football games and nine practice sessions. When the boys are involved in two separate games at the same time on different fields, things get a little hectic.

Although dinner-hour practices play havoc with the family meal schedule, their mother is enthusiastic about the boys playing football.

"Sports are good for boys," says Betty. "They help the boys develop and help their mental attitude. I really think it's great." Right now Mark is looking forward to getting back into action after suffering a sprained ankle in Sunday's game.

TUNA FISH. a sack of flour, tomato soup, and a green bell pepper were several of the unusual gifts Judy Kreitzman received at a bridal shower this week. Each ingredient was accompanied by one of the guest's favorite recipes. The miscellaneous shower was given by Judy's next door neighbor, Mrs. Lowell Ackmann, 308 N. Dale Ave. On Oct. 2 Judy will become Mrs. Dan Cerny. The couple is planning to move into a new home in Schaumburg.

He will also help coordinate homecoming activities this fall.

With The Factories Coming...

by WANDALYN RICE

The vegetable stands on the Busse property on Landmeier Road have just three years left. Then they will be displaced by factories.

But for Glenn and Marsha Busse, who operate one of the stands, at 1100 Landmeier Rd., Elk Grove Village, and their uncle up the road, this harvest season is much like the last, with corn, tomatoes, green peppers and eggplant stacked in baskets waiting for customers.

From 25 to 30 customers visit Glenn and Marsha's stand every day, with the rush coming when the nearby factories let out.

Besides about 35 varieties of home-grown vegetables, the Busses stock fruits and vegetables they don't grow for those who want them.

Most of the call, however, is for the homegrown vegetables. "Most people just can't wait for it to come on," Mrs. Busse said.

"THIS YEAR the tomatoes have been a little late because of the cold weather in August, but otherwise the vegetables have been doing well."

This is the second year the young couple has operated the stand, which opened right after the spring thaw and will close after Thanksgiving.

"Glenn used to be a produce manager and he just kind of got the idea he'd like to do this for himself," Mrs. Busse said.

Many of the women who come to the stand are those who do their own canning and, while some ask Mrs. Busse for recipes, she just as often asks them for ideas.

Right now she is planning to try one of the recipes she has been given for okra, a vegetable. "I'd never heard of until we opened the stand. People who like it really love it. I have several recipes but I haven't tried them yet."

One of the more entertaining customers, she said, is the hungry husband who

"You can tell they're usually starving and everything looks good to them. They'll carry pounds and pounds of stuff away and I can just see their wives' faces when they see it," she said.

"USUALLY WHEN I'm working here I try to find out how big their families are so they don't buy too much," she said, laughing.

Glenn and Marsha just smile and not when asked if they are related to "the Busses of Mount Prospect," a family that has been in the area for many years.

"Glenn's folks have been on this land for 45 years," Mrs. Busse said. "But it's been sold now and we have just three years left here."

The land was annexed to Elk Grove Village, zoned for industry and sold, she explained. Buildings from the new industrial park to the north and east already are beginning to encroach on the land.

"I'm going to be sorry to see it go," Mrs. Busse said, watching one of the cars pull away from the stand with a happy purchaser of fresh tomatoes doing the driving.

Secretaries, Clerks Declare Pay Impasse

Secretaries and clerks have declared an impasse in their salary negotiations with Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59.

Representatives of the Secretary's Association, which has been bargaining with the administration on salaries for the approximately 135 secretaries and clerks in the district, appeared before the board of education Monday night to ask the board to join the negotiations.

The secretaries have been negotiating since last spring with Albeon Waltman, assistant superintendent for personnel, and have reached an impasse, the representatives said.

In a letter presented to the board and signed by most of the secretaries, the association asked that a board member be present at the next negotiation session. The board did not immediately respond to the request.

THE MAIN ISSUE in the talks is salaries, although other issues also are being discussed, according to Ann Buchanan, secretary to Supt. James Erviti and a member of the negotiating team.

"We didn't seem to be getting any place, so we thought we'd go to the board," she said. "Basically, negotiations are at a standstill on money."

The secretaries and clerks in the district work either for a full calendar year or for a school year and either full or part-time. Included in the group are the library-learning center clerks who man the libraries in the district's 20 schools.

Pay scale for all the employees ranges from $1.89 an hour to $4.01 an hour, according to Waltman. The pay increases are granted as an employee gains seniority.

All secretaries and clerks in the district now are being paid under last year's salaries because of the wage-price freeze.

Negotiations are also continuing between the district and the other major group of non-certificated personnel, custodians. These talks were also under way when the wage freeze took effect.

This year is the first secretaries and clerks have negotiated with the administration on salaries.

Board Withholds Rand Study For More Discussion

Apparently anticipating objections, the Arlington Heights Village Board withheld approval Monday night of the Rand Road Study until a series of public meetings are held to discuss the report.

The study, which includes proposals for future developments on 800 acres along Rand from Rte 53 to Euclid, was prepared by Village Planner Joe Kesler.

After a short discussion of the study, Trustee Dwight Walton suggested the village board hold three meetings "right there where it is." He proposed one meeting be held at a church or school in the southeastern portion covered by the report, one in the central area and one in the northwestern area, citing proposed specific locations. Homeowner groups in the areas and adjacent areas would be invited to the meetings.

Walton's idea was greeted with no opposition nor surprise by fellow board members. Trustee Frank Palmatier commented that the meetings would be a "commendable way to handle this report and give it the study it deserves."

KESLER SAID very few residents attended the two plan commission public hearings called to discuss the report. After the hearings, the plan commission recommended the village board adopt the plan.

The village board directed the administration to set up the three meetings in the near future and asked that Kesler and the village attorney attend the meetings. In addition, "as many village board members as possible" will attend. The dates and locations will be announced after arrangements are made.

The Rand Road study includes recommendations for future developments including land which fronts on Rand Road and, at some points, extends back from the highway almost 2,000 feet. The study included about 600 acres within the village boundaries and 600 acres outside the boundaries.

The village planner stressed the study is a proposal which can be implemented only when a developer or property owner requests annexation to the village. If no developments are proposed, the area will remain in the same state as it is now.

The area of the study was divided into several planning parcels with each parcel being treated individually in the report and listed with specific suggested uses. These uses included commercial development, multi-family complexes and some single-family homes.

AFTER WALTON'S suggestion for the series of meetings, Alfred Lindsey of 1819 E. Robinhood Ln., said there was "considerable interest" in the report on "the residents of the village should be given a chance to digest it."

As a resident of the Arlington Terrace subdivision in northeastern Arlington Heights, Lindsey said residents in that area were "looking to the village board for protection of our property values."

FROM THE RUBBLE of 42 wooden stables in the backstretch of Arlington Park Race Track will rise 16 steel and concrete barns and six new dormitories for backstretch workers. Work has begun on a $5 million construction project in the track's stable area designed to eliminate all the frame barns within five year. Track officials say three of the new barns will be completed by November and as many as half the old stables could be bulldozed by the start of the 1972 racing season.

Start $5 Million Track Stable Work

by KURT BAER

Arlington Park Race Track has embarked on a five-year, $5 million construction program designed to replace the track's 42 wooden stables with 16 fireproof concrete and steel barns.

Three of the new barns will be completed by November, a track spokesman said, and as many as half the wooden stables could be razed by the opening of the racing season next spring.

In addition to the 16 new barns, which will contain 138 stalls each, six dormitories will be put up to house backstretch workers, the spokesman said.

At least one of the new dormitories, and perhaps as many as three, will be open by the spring, although work on them has not yet begun.

According to track officials, all of the backstretch workers will eventually be housed in the new dormitories, with none of the men living in the barns as was the case with the wooden stables.

Several of the wooden barns, which were built around 1927, and a long stretch of stables and tackrooms known as shed row have already been bulldozed.

Track officials said work would continue through the winter. When the construction is finished, Arlington Park will have stabling facilities for 2,000 horses and dormitory rooms for 700 backstretch workers.

IN RELATED WORK, track officials said $45,000 worth of landfill has been trucked into the backstretch area to build up the land along Salt Creek and eliminate runoff drainage into the stream.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency has charges that runoff from the backstretch was polluting the stream which flows south into Rolling Meadows.

A June 3 fire in a barn killing 33 horses and causing about $500,000 in damage focused the attention of the Illinois Racing Board on conditions in the backstretch.

At a June 8 meeting the Racing Board ordered improved safety in the stable area. A later inspection by Arlington Heights Fire Chief Harvey Carothers disclosed that none of the then existing buildings conformed to the village fire code.

The new barns are all concrete and steel with the exception of plywood kickboards which line the inside of the stalls to prevent horses injuring themselves.

Track officials said that the larger barns allow them to reduce the total number of stables by almost two-thirds.

They believe the closer quarters will allow for improved security in the backstretch.

APPROXIMATELY 25 security guards patrol the area during the racing season.

Wooden forms laid out on the ground are used to mold the steel-reinforced concrete walls. The walls are set into place with a crane and then welded together. A steel roof covers each barn.

Track officials said the buildings, though costly, are virtually 100 per cent fireproof and should be relatively maintenance free.

More than $2 million will have been spent on the new buildings before the 1972 racing season opens.

Senior Citizens Here Get 'Breaks'

Senior citizens in Arlington Heights now are eligible for two "breaks" that will help them beat the rising cost of inflation.

The Arlington Heights Village Board approved an ordinance Monday night that will allow a cut rate for vehicle stickers purchased for cars owned by residents who are 65 years old or older.

Under the new ordinance, senior citizens may purchase their vehicle stickers for half the price paid by other residents. The normal fees are $10 for a full year.

Senior citizens will receive the discount only on the first vehicle sticker and stickers for additional vehicles will cost $10. Drivers' licenses will serve as proof of age.

SENIOR CITIZENS also may qualify for the "Gold Key" pass offered by the Arlington Heights Park District. The first pass of this type was presented last week by the Park Board to Roger Burke, 65, the park district's treasurer.

Residents who are 65 years old or older may now apply for the pass at the park district's administration offices in Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave., during regular office hours.

The pass will allow residents free admission to all parks and programs within the park district. By using the pass, a resident may register for various classes and workshops for no charge and may also use it for admission to the park district's swimming pools.

The Gold Key will apply only to programs offered within the park district. For activities such as trips outside the park district, reduced rates will be offered to senior citizens whenever possible.

The front of the card will carry the senior citizens' picture and name and the back will carry the statement that the pass is presented "in recognition of long and continued support of parks and recreation."

Drivers' licenses or any other identification carrying the residents' age will be used in determining if an applicant is qualified for the Gold Key.

ALICIA SMITH, recreation supervisor for the park district, said Gold Key passes will be issued and pictures taken from 10 a.m. to noon at Thursday's meeting of the Over 50 Club of Arlington Heights. The club is sponsored by the park district and meets at Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave.

In addition to these new policies, older residents also may apply for a lower rate for garbage collection.

The reduced rate of $2.50 per month, which includes garbage pickup only once a week, is available to couples with one member being 65 or over and no one else living in the household. Residents may also qualify if the head of the household has no income other than social security payments.

Application forms for the reduced rate are available at the village's health department offices in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

After the application is returned to the health department and the resident determined to be eligible for reduced rates, the department will notify Laseke Disposal Co., a private refuse collector. The village negotiates a rate contract with Laseke and the normal fee for twice-a-week pick up is $4.45.

'Name The Mustang' Contest Under Way

A contest is underway to come up with a name for Rolling Meadows High School mascot, the Mustang.

Winner of the "Name the Mustang" contest will receive free use of a 1972 Ford Mustang from George Poole Ford Co. of Arlington Heights for the week of Sept. 25 to Oct. 2.

Entries for the contest must be turned in at the Rolling Meadows High School office no later than 4 p.m. Wednesday.

The winner of the contest will be announced at half time of Saturday night's junior varsity game.

The only stipulation is that the winner must be 21 years of age and a licensed driver.

Early-Morning Fire Hits Home

A fire that broke out during the early morning hours Tuesday did extensive damage to the home of Douglas V. Steinoen, 104 Canterbury Dr., Arlington Heights.

About 40 men and three engines from the Arlington Heights Fire Department responded to the fire call, turned in at 2:53 a.m. by a neighbor.

No one was seriously injured in the blaze, although Steinoen was overcome by smoke. He was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, treated and released.

Firemen are not yet sure of the cause of the fire, but they believe it started in the kitchen. The entire first floor of the large two-story house was gutted and there was water damage to the basement.

There was no immediate estimate to the damage.

Evanston Joins Towns Suing On State Remap

The Evanston City Council Monday night voted unanimously to file suit against the new state redistricting map that already has been challenged by Arlington Heights and Oak Park.

Jack Siegel, Evanston's corporation counsel and village attorney for Arlington Heights, said the Evanston suit is similar to that filed by the village Sept. 8.

He said that it is reasonable to assume that the two suits would be consolidated at some future time, but for the moment they would file as separate actions.

The Evanston suit does differ from Arlington Heights' in that it also names the Republican and Democratic committee members for Evanston as plaintiffs against the state.

Siegel said he plans to go into federal court sometime next week to ask that a hearing date be set on the Arlington Heights suit.

Under the new redistricting map, Arlington Heights and Evanston both are part of the 1st state legislative district, which stretches from the lakefront west to Buffalo Grove.

Rand Road Study Approval Withheld For More Talks

Association read a letter which he said he had delivered to Village President Jack Walsh. The letter represented the association's viewpoint and asked for a delay in approval so members could study the report.

Another resident objected to the suggested multi-family zoning proposed in the report for just west of John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St. This area, commonly known as the Schroeder property, is bordered on the east by the high school, on the west by the Candlewood Trace apartments at Rand Road and Windsor Drive and on the south by Thomas Street.

The comment caused Walsh to say people had a "great deal of lack of understanding of the plan." He said the Rand Road study goes far beyond just one piece of property in one area.

WALSH SAID IT was "not realistic" to think that the Schroeder property and others would remain single family zoned if they were developed in the county. This land and other parcels which are not presently within the village's boundaries could be developed under county laws for density, height and other regulations.

The village president pointed out that adoption of the report would help the village in legally objecting to high-density zoning which can be obtained under county laws. "This is not a commitment or an adamant position in favor of multi-family zoning," Walsh said.

State laws allow villages to develop master plans including areas which are within 1 1/2 miles outside the village's boundaries. If the village does have a recorded and planned use for a certain portion of property, it helps the village's chances of winning court cases involving proposed developments which do not fit in with the plan, Walsh said.

Trustee Alice Harms pointed out that adoption of the Rand Road Study would provide a framework within which each specific proposed development would be judged. She said adoption did not grant automatic rezoning of the land involved and all proposals for developments would still be judged on "their own merits."

WALTON SAID HE thought the study was one of the items on which the village board should take the initiative and "carry the story out to the people." He said he was not as concerned about people now living in the areas studied as he was about the property owners in land adjacent to these areas.

Discussion of the goals and purposes of the plan and two-way communication between the village board and homeowners would help prevent "fears" and rumors which somehow get started, Walton said.

Walton said he hoped residents who attend the meetings would come with an open mind, not thinking that single family homes were the only way to develop vacant land. "I hope they will listen because there are a lot of complex problems. Some things can be realistically done and some cannot."

Village To Make Up $45,000 In Arlington Crest Deficits

The $45,000 deficiency in additional costs for the Arlington Crest special assessment project for sewer and water works in the subdivision will be paid by the village rather than Arlington Crest residents.

The Palatine Village Board committee of the whole voted Monday to make up the deficit by declaring the additional cost a public benefit. The full village board will vote on it at the next regular meeting.

Although the original cost of the project set at $277,362 was paid for completely through special assessments placed on the Arlington Crest residents, a similar assessment to make up the deficit was deemed uneconomical by the committee.

Mayor Jack Moodie told the board the process of respraying an assessment to cover the deficit "is like starting the whole process all over again." Any assessments made to cover the cost would be subject to public hearing, court proceedings, and bookkeeping, which are costly and lengthy.

By covering the $45,000 deficit through public benefit and taking the money from the village general fund to which all residents pay, Moodie asked the committee if they were "representing the interests of the public at large by doing this."

MOODIE SAID NO public benefit was declared previously on the project because no street work was involved, which would have benefited all residents who use the street.

"It may not all be public benefit, but the alternative would be too expensive in having to pay for administrative costs and court costs," Trustee Clay Brown said.

Kenneth Stonesifer, attorney for the Palatine Board of Local Improvements, previously told the board over $17,000 of the $45,000 could possibly be recovered later because it represented an interest reserve, in which case less money would be needed to cover the cost.

Village Mg. Berton Braun explained part of the deficiency may be due to interest charges not included in the original assessment for the project.

"THE INTEREST for the village doesn't stop until the bond is called in," Braun said. "This happens a while after the resident pays his assessment, causing interest costs to continue unabated over a period of time."

Board, Teacher Unit OKs 5% Salary Raises

A new 1971-72 salary package providing 5 per cent raises for Maine Township High School teachers has been agreed upon by the Dist. 207 Board of Education and the executive committee of the Teachers' Association.

However, the new pay scale which has been sent to the teachers for approval, will depend on provisions set forth in Phase Two of President Nixon's wage-price freeze. Dist. 207 Board President William Wuehrmann said at Monday night's board meeting.

Increases will range between $400 and $890 per teacher but will not take effect until after the wage price freeze ends.

Under the new agreement beginning teachers with a bachelor's degree and no teaching experience will start at $8,400 per year, compared to $8,000 last year. Inexperienced teachers with a master's degree will start at $9,080 compared with last year's $8,650.

The top of the scale for teachers with master's degrees has been raised from $15,400 to $16,170. Teachers with a master's degree plus an additional 64 graduate hours will receive a top salary of $18,690. Last year's top salary was $17,800.

According to the agreement the district's present hospital and medical benefits program plus its group life insurance program and income protection program for employees will be continued. The district pays for group life insurance and income protection programs and contributes two-thirds of the cost of the hospital and medical benefits program.

Wuehrmann said the new salary package "reflects nine months of discussion" between the Teachers' Association and the professional relations committee of the board of education.

In neighboring High School Dist. 211 and 214, where new 1971-72 salary packages were adopted earlier, beginning teachers with a bachelor's degree and no teaching experience will start at $8,300 per year, compared with $8,000 last year.

Thus represents a 3.75 per cent increase in both districts over the 1970-71 scale.

Earlier in the summer, teachers turned down a package offered May 24 by the Dist. 207 board that would have raised starting salaries by 2.5 per cent, from $8,000 to $8,200, and given raises ranging from $533 to $870 for experienced teachers.

THE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION'S 20-member executive board said teachers rejected the earlier wage package because they felt it did not cover increased living costs or compare favorably with wage settlements in neighboring districts.

The teacher negotiation team had requested a 6 per cent raise at that time, to match what they said was a 5.9 per cent cost of living increase over the last year.

Dist. 207 board members at that time said the rejected wage package—which would have given raises of about 5 per cent, including the 2.5 per cent increase and the regular increase for one more year of experience—would meet the costs of living. Wuehrmann said then that Maine schools would have remained in a competitive wage position in seeking qualified teachers.

Between 1967 and the 1970-71 school year, the cost of living rose by 18.2 per cent, while starting teacher salaries increased by 36.6 per cent, according to Dist. 207 officials.

CHICAGO AND NORTH Western Railway construction workers break up cement to prepare the center platform at the downtown Des Plaines station for widening. A C&NW spokesman said the new platform will serve both tracks normally used for westbound trains. Also planned is the resurfacing of the eastbound platform, new shelter canopies and mercury vapor lamps. The work should be finished in several weeks.

Open Campus Hearings Will Be Tonight

The first of four public hearings on an "open campus" proposal for the Maine Township High Schools will be held from 8 to 10 tonight in the auditorium at Maine East High School, 2601 Dempster St., Park Ridge. Dist. 207 board member Roy Makela will preside.

The three other public hearings will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. Sept. 23, 29, and 30.

Tomorrow's hearing will be held in the lecture hall at Maine North High School, 9511 Harrison St., Des Plaines, with board member Wesley Hartzell presiding.

The hearing at Maine South High School, 1111 S. Dee Rd., Park Ridge, will be held Sept. 29 in the auditorium, with board member Leonard Grazian presiding.

Board member Michael Bartos will chair the final hearing Sept. 30 in the first floor lecture hall of Maine West High School, 1755 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines.

Persons who would like to make prepared statements about "open campus" are asked to contact Michael Myers, administrative assistant to the superintendent of schools, at the district's Administration Center, 1131 S. Dee Rd., Park Ridge. The telephone number is 696-3600.

Presentations will be limited to five minutes each. Comments from the floor will be allowed after the requested presentations have been made.

"We hope all concerned citizens and especially parents of township students will attend these hearings and let us hear their views on whether high school students should be allowed to leave the school buildings and grounds during their free periods and at lunchtime," board member Bartos said at Monday night's Dist. 207 board meeting.

New Place For People To Open Soon

The Des Plaines Place for People Youth Center, serving about 300 teenagers will open its new headquarters early next month in downtown Des Plaines.

Place for People trustees and board members decided Sunday to sign a two-year lease for the second floor of a building at 1415 Ellinwood, according to the Rev. David Russell, center director.

The lease will be signed later this week, Russell said, and the teenagers will probably open the center in early October. The present headquarters is at Rand Park Fieldhouse, 2025 Miner St., east of downtown Des Plaines.

Russell said the new headquarters will be more centrally located and more accessible by public transportation than the Rand Park Fieldhouse.

THE TEENAGERS are enthusiastic about the move, Russell said. "They are eager to have their own place which they can call their own fix up paint and decorate," he said.

A group of teens, under the supervision of Mark Matson, an art teacher at Maine West High School, will decide how to decorate the headquarters, Russell said.

The Ellinwood headquarters also will provide more space for increased activities, he said.

The new headquarters includes 23,000 square feet of space—including a large meeting room with a hardwood dance floor, two offices, and a smaller meeting room.

The teenagers are seeking furniture, including couches, tables and chairs. The main meeting room will have a ping-pong table, and the teens also hope to get a pool table, Russell said.

Rent for the new headquarters will be $300 a month with approximately $60 a month for utilities, Russell said.

Funds for rent, staff salaries and programs will continue to be raised from center activities, or from Des Plaines service and church organizations.

This summer the teens raised money through a marathon volleyball game and a steak and lobster picnic, Russell said.

THE NEXT FUND raising activity will be a rock concert Oct. 22, at Maine West. The Place for People also hopes to apply this year for state grants.

The new headquarters will allow more space for counseling, according to Russell. The center now has nine adult volunteers who help counsel the teenagers.

Professional staff will include Russell, former youth minister at the first Congregational Church, associate director Dean Niles, who will serve part time while attending the Chicago Theological Seminary, and Ester Culp, a public health nurse who has been assigned part-time to the center by the Cook County Public Health Service.

The Place for People board hopes to expand center hours to seven days a week, instead of five nights a week.

The center will offer Saturday night coffeehouse activities, with entertainment, including folk singers and improvisational theater, Russell said.

The Place for People Center, opened in June 1970, provides activities for teens who felt they did not fit into activities offered by the Des Plaines Park District and schools, center officials have said.

Place for People board members include Anne Evans, former Con Con representative, Ald. Spencer Chase (3rd), the Rev. Donald Hughes, chairman of the Des Plaines Youth Commission, Dan Socha, an attorney, Dr. Edward Bara-nowski, director of the Maine Township Mental Health Center, 1032 Lee and Eldon Burke of Maine West High School.

Other board members are Irwin Roschke, Des Plaines Zoning Board member, Mrs. Eleanor Rohrbach, city clerk, G. Rex Wilson, Des Plaines Park Board member, and Des Plaines residents, Robert Ayers and Richard Rosenberg.

Publicity Clinic Is Tonight At 8

Reservations can still be made for the publicity clinic being conducted tonight by members of The Herald staff for presidents and publicity chairmen of local PTA's and community organizations.

The clinic, which will begin at 8 p.m., will be held in the Community Room at Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, in downtown Des Plaines. For reservations, please call 297-6633 before 5 p.m. today.

Poverty Fund Abuse Unit Meets Tonight

The Special Des Plaines City Council Committee investigating poverty fund abuse will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight in city hall to discuss recommendations it will make to the city council.

The committee, which includes five aldermen, has met four times since its appointment Aug. 16 to determine how five ineligible Des Plaines teenagers were approved for antipoverty jobs. Four of the five working for the city this summer were sons of present or former city officials.

Almost 300 pages of sworn testimony have been received by the committee from the youths, their parents, the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity and the Illinois Employment Service.

Aldermen serving on the committee are Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd), chairman, Ald. Alan Abrams (8th), Ald. Robert Michaels (8th), Ald. Kenneth Kehe (2nd) and Ald. Lois Czubakowski (5th).

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Ending a bitter seven-month struggle, the Senate approved and sent to President Nixon legislation extending the draft for two years and raising military salaries across the board by a record $2.4 billion a year.

With U.S. delegation spokesmen optimistic that Washington's plan to provide seats for both Nationalist and Communist China, the United Nations General Assembly opened its 26th annual session. Diplomats from other countries, however, while predicting a close vote, did not share their confidence.

Following a 91-day declassification process the Pentagon delivered to four congressional committees a censored version of its controversial study of the origins of the Vietnam War, intended for public distribution.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okl., urged President Nixon to nominate a woman to the Supreme Court to succeed retiring Justice Hugo Black. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., made a similar appeal Monday.

The War

Demonstrators in South Vietnam burned an effigy of President Nguyen Van Thieu and a bomb blast damaged headquarters of the pro-Thieu Confederation of Labor. The U.S. command announced a new program for testing all U.S. servicemen in Vietnam every three months to find out whether they are using heroin or other narcotics.

The State

Prison officials believe the three prisoners who escaped from Stateville Penitentiary near Joliet during the week end apparently had help from inside the prison. Officials said the civilian clothing worn by the convicts must have been smuggled to them from the prison store-room.

A gunman firing from an automatic rifle was killed and two policemen wounded in a shootout west of Marion, Ill., in Williamson County, after an attempted car theft alert.

The World

Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party and senior member of the ruling Moscow troika, visits Yugoslavia to lay, initiating three months of globetrotting to sell Soviet policy to statesmen from Canada to North Africa.

The Market

The stock market spent another listless day, the Dow Jones Industrial Average finishing with a loss of 1.75 at 903.40. Investors seemed uncertain as to what Phase Two of President Nixon's economic policies will entail, and were concerned about organized labor's attack on the program in general. Prices eased in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Alcoholics Are Offered A Route Back To Society

by VICKI HAMENDE

First of Two Articles

A recovering alcoholic cannot jump back into the life he left when he started drinking. He must first cross a long bridge — a bridge leading back to his family, his friends, his employer, society and himself.

The Rehabilitation Center at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge offers the in-patient alcoholic a chance to start across that bridge while he is still being treated, a chance to come face to face with the reality of living a sober life.

Through "Bridge Group," a weekly meeting held for the center's 70 patients and their families, friends and employers, recovering alcoholics get a look at "the world out there" and members of that world have the opportunity to communicate with the patients while they are still being treated.

"Bridge Group was born at Lutheran General Hospital early in 1967 out of a need to get closer to the whole, real problems and environment of the patients," said James McInerney, chief counselor at the Rehabilitation Center and Bridge Group founder.

"It seems reasonable enough to treat each alcoholic individually because of his uniqueness, but not in a vacuum. It appears that certain aspects of alcoholism must be included which go beyond the alcoholic, which are a part of his problems and a part of his world," McInerney said.

"WITH THE INVOLVEMENT and commitment of both the alcoholic and those with whom he relates, there is apt to be greater benefit in the treatment process," he said. "We've found that 70 to 75 per cent of alcoholics recover if their families are involved and 35 per cent recover without their families involved," he said.

In addition to friends, family members and employers, the Bridge Group makes important use of former alcoholics and center patients, as well as psychiatrists, clergymen, social workers and members of Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) and Al-Anon, an organization of persons concerned about alcoholism.

Bridge Group sessions are held from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Fridays at the Rehabilitation Center. There are usually enough participants to make up six sections, each meeting in a separate room.

Patients are assigned to a group with their relatives and employers. Staff members, students, trainees, and former patients also sit in on the group sessions.

Staff members at the center, themselves recovered alcoholics, act as chairmen, getting conversations started and steering them toward topics that will help the patients to recover.

Though the groups are only a part of the treatment program, McInerney said they are unique because they first begin involving the patient with the world in which he must live once he leaves Lutheran General.

It works out in practice that the recently discharged patients are apt to be at Bridge Group in larger numbers than patients who have been out longer. Many of our patients are able to identify more easily and quickly with the newer ex-patient whose level of enthusiasm is high," McInerney said.

"PART OF THE ex-patient's coming back to Bridge Group is dependence. Because Bridge Group is once a week and the opportunity for AA is daily, there is an inevitable transfer from Bridge Group to AA," he said.

For spouses and friends who come to Bridge Group, there is the opportunity to "learn something about alcoholism," said McInerney, who recently was invited to present a paper on the Bridge Group program to the annual convention of the North American Association of Alcoholism Programs in Hartford, Conn.

"They may find that 'their alcoholic' is not much different than other patients. They may see some that are a lot worse off and some that look better. But they most certainly discover how the alcoholic mind operates and perhaps realize for the first time that all the alibis and lies and broken promises are a part of his illness," he said.

"It has also happened that the frustrated spouse will reveal what the patient is really like when he is drunk and thus, in his presence, confront him with this reality. They may see that their alcoholic is not doing much in the (rehabilitation) program and confront him with that," McInerney said.

"For the most part, having spouse, friends and relatives present is therapeutic for the patient as he realizes that they are interested in him and tend to support him," he said.

"Initially, many patients are apprehensive about having their employers present at bridge group," McInerney said. It can be a "threatening experience" for a patient, he said, "but it has been the experience of most that when the meetings have ended there is a deeper understanding on the part of both patient and employer."

McInerney added, "It has happened that an employer will confront the patient with how his drinking interfered with his job."

"It may be made clear to him that he is more than welcome to come back to work but that he will have to remain dry and perform responsibly, if he expects to keep his job," he said.

"This certainly lets the patient know where he stands and not only motivates him to take the program seriously, but also assures him that he has a job waiting for him.

"A particular purpose of having the employer at Bridge Group is to have him learn something about alcoholism. The position and attitude toward the alcoholic can be examined in a way in Bridge Group that can't be done back on the job or in the office. It's explained by living it a little," McInerney said.

A sense of hope is given to patients when they see former patients and other recovering alcoholics who are staying sober and seem to be functioning well, he said. "Of great benefit is the ability to discuss and hear discussed fears and apprehensions that are 'outside,'" he said.

"An important side benefit of this whole process is the education which takes place on the subject of alcoholism. The ex-patients once again see the confused, fuzzy thinking and shakiness which is so obvious in the newly admitted alcoholic patient. They are reminded that 'not too long ago, that's what I was like.' It encourages them to stay sober, and they usually find that by helping the patients look ahead to the outside world they in turn help themselves,"

McInerney said.

PATIENTS HAVE the experience of "therapy group" during treatment, but, he said, "Bridge Group is often the first opportunity for nonpatients to take an honest look at their own position, motives and behavior as they relate to the patient's problems."

McInerney said, "Role plays are often a part of the Bridge Group as we try to explore ways in which a patient might face a difficult problem on his return home. Many times they worry about how they should respond when a friend asks them, 'Where have you been?' or 'Come on, I'll buy you a drink.'"

"It would be ridiculous to say that Bridge Group is going to make the difference between a patient's success or failure in recovery. However, it most certainly can be of benefit and help to him as he leaves treatment and returns to his home and job. If the spouse, friends and employer can gain in understanding his situation, it makes his return much easier," he said.

Feedback from former patients who participate in Bridge Group shows this is true.

"I UNDERSTAND the reluctance of those who don't want to surrender their bottles, can't comprehend what this 'new way of life' means, how it feels to be at the bottom of the heap, to be lost or to be arrogant and rebellious because I have been there," said one former patient at the rehabilitation center.

"Bridge Group is part of the caring and sharing I feel for the still suffering alcoholic," she added.

Tomorrow: What happens at a Bridge Group session.

Seek Computer Center OKs

Des Plaines city officials will seek an agreement with three other Northwest suburbs to create a combined computer system.

In action after Herald deadline Monday night, the city council authorized Mayor Herbert Behrel, City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi, and City Comptroller Duane Blizet to meet with Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Park Ridge officials, and to work out a contract for council consideration and study.

The council acted after hearing a favorable recommendation for a combined computer plan from its finance committee. Ald. Robert Hinde (4th), finance chairman, said a combined system would be more efficient and less expensive than separate systems for each municipality.

Governments in the four municipalities are now studying a report by Touche, Ross and Co., an accounting firm, which recommended sharing a computer and the cost of salaries for computer operators, Ald. Hinde said.

The accounting firm reported that the yearly cost of the proposed system would be $40,000 for Des Plaines; $19,000 for Arlington Heights; $20,000 for Mount Prospect; and $22,000 for Park Ridge. Cost would be based on the amount of time the computer would be used by each municipality, according to the report.

Des Plaines would pay more because it is expected that the city would have a greater volume of police information work for the computer, the report states.

The arrangement would cost less than the present data processing systems, over the next 10 years. Operating costs would be $15,000 less for Des Plaines; $3,000 less for Arlington Heights; $1,000 less for Mount Prospect, and $4,000 less for Park Ridge, according to the report.

Parks May Get Set Hours

Parks in the Mount Prospect Park District may soon have opening and closing hours.

Last week the park board told its attorney to prepare an ordinance calling for the parks to be opened at 5 a.m. daily. They would be closed at 11 p.m. Approved park district programs would be exempt from the policy.

Park commissioners want the ordinance ready in time for their Oct. 11 meeting, so they can consider it then. The proposal is not without its critics. Robert Jackson said Monday he was against any policy that set up hours of operation for the parks.

Thomas Cooper, park district director, said the park district has been asked to set up the opening and closing hours by the Mount Prospect Police Department.

"They have been after us for a long time for the curfew so they have rules to enforce when people congregate in the parks up until midnight," Cooper said. The village curfew, for anyone under 18, is 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday and Sunday and midnight on Friday and Saturday.

"The problem we have now is with the people who don't make enough noise for disorderly conduct, but who are a nuisance to their neighbors," Cooper said. He said the parks, located in a major portion of Mount Prospect and the Eighth ward of Des Plaines, have never been closed in the past.

Legion Can Help Fight Drug Abuse: Geiger

A Des Plaines engineer recently elected national commander of the American Legion has suggested that legion facilities in the country be used as centers to rehabilitate veterans and fight the drug problem.

The engineer, John H. Geiger, 758 Laurel Ave., Des Plaines, was elected head of the 27 million-member organization Sept. 2 during a national convention in Houston.

Geiger said he made the suggestion to use the legion facilities during a conference Friday with President Richard Nixon in Washington.

The 46-year-old United Air Lines executive said legion facilities will be used in the coming year "as local storefronts to assist veterans and others in relation to the drug problem. We feel people with this kind of problem may come to us before approaching a governmental agency such as the Veterans' Administration or police."

He said the goal of the Legion will be to find people who can relate to the young veterans and attempt to channel their lives away from escapist routes.

One main priority will be the rehabilitation of veterans and the direction of the entire young generation, he said.

JOHN GEIGER

"Let's not scorn our own government because we've had success. We have something going here."

GEIGER SAID participation — both by the individuals and the community — will be needed in the program and said it is a job for the entire community.

The national commander said the drug problem among veterans, a problem he stressed as not a Vietnam or military problem but a national concern, is just part of the legion's special program for the coming year.

The theme for the legion this year is "Reach Out — It's Action Time," Geiger said, and in addition to its basic programs the veteran organization will work to assist returning veterans in rehabilitating to civilian life. He said other priorities will be to find jobs for veterans, to provide vocational and educational guidance, to obtain educational benefits and to assist where medical service is needed.

Geiger estimated about 50,000 men are released from active duty each month. "The average returnee is about 23 years old and many have only a high school education or less. They have little or no job skill and really have nothing to sell an employer. In addition to that, there are few job openings currently," he said.

GEIGER SAID he has worked for the Republican Party for years but has voted for some Democrats in the past. He said he personally supports Nixon's withdrawal and Vietnamization programs.

"Let's not forget, the military was sent in. They didn't go on their own initiative. They were given a mission by the politicians and they accomplished that mission. They defended that country and established a self defense posture."

Geiger continued, "The position of the Fulbrights and the McGovern is not realistic. It's interesting to note that you never hear of the neighbors of Vietnam like Cambodia calling for withdrawal. It's always some guy in South Dakota."

Geiger said he campaigned for two years to get himself elected national commander, after he was endorsed by the Illinois state convention in August 1969. He said he has no plans to seek political office when his one year term expires, but will return to his post as vice president of facilities and properties with United Air Lines.

Marine Corps Band Sets Two Concerts

The U. S. Marine Corps Band will present two concerts Oct. 17 at Maine East High School Auditorium, Dempster and Potter roads, in Park Ridge.

The Marine Band, on a nationwide concert tour, has traditionally been assigned to the President and plays at many White House functions. Its 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. concerts will be sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Detachment of the Marine Corps League.

Tickets for the matinee are $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children. Adult tickets for the evening performance are $4 and $3 and evening student tickets are $2.

Tickets can be obtained by mail from O'Hare National Bank, Marine Band Concert, P.O. Box 700, Park Ridge, Ill. Checks should be made payable to Marine Band Concert.

A Helping Hand For Youth

Young, energetic and new to the area is JoAnn Eckmann, 23, recently employed youth worker in Elk Grove Township.

JoAnn's job is to be of help to troubled youths. She began about a month ago at the town board of auditors, who represent the portions of Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines in the township. Her salary is $7,300 a year.

Originally from Buffalo, N.Y., she learned of the job through the son of Charles Hoffmann, town assessor. She applied, was interviewed, and got the job this summer.

MRS. ECKMANN is a graduate of Florida Atlantic University at Boca Raton near Fort Lauderdale where she worked for one year with the state's public aid recipients.

Though she majored in history, Mrs. Eckmann became interested in social work while attending college. She became active in community and student government affairs helping to change the image of her sorority, Delta Gamma, from one of a 'rah rah' type to one interested in community work, as she put it.

There's time for fun and frolic but there's also time for serious involvement, said the former sorority president.

Mrs. Eckmann, who makes her home in Des Plaines, has spent her first few weeks on the job familiarizing herself with the various agencies that deal with youth. This includes meeting police, school and other officials whom she will be in contact with as she learns her job. She is usually accompanied by Florence Anderson, the newly hired youth worker for Community Service, the Elk Grove Village funded social service agency under whose direction and supervision Mrs. Eckmann performs.

Mrs. Eckmann has supervised the Listening Post Hotline operated by Community Service youths but has not yet done any counseling.

Right now I'm finding where I'm needed, she said.

ONE OF THE AREAS she believes a youth worker is needed in is the mobile home parks. There are eight of them in the township.

She has set as her personal goal, the development of a working relationship with the park area youth.

The trailer parks are isolated, she said, with most of them located in unincorporated areas on the outskirts of the municipalities.

Most offer little recreation for youth, she said.

There's no place to go, she added, for a youth who lives there and there is no way for them to get anywhere if they don't have a car.

Mrs. Eckmann uses the Community Service trailer, 100 Landmeier Rd., Elk Grove Village, as a base of operation. However, her Fridays are spent at the town hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, assisting with the general assistance (welfare) program.

MRS. ECKMANN said there is no comparison between her work here and that of her work in Fort Lauderdale where she dealt with problems of drugs, truancy, employment, child care, and unwed mothers. They were all public aid cases and most of those she worked with were black.

"It was very frustrating being from the North and seeing all this," she said. "People there were worse off."

Public aid payments were low there with no provisions for dental or medical care, she said. "You'd see condominiums on the beaches and shacks not very far away from them," she recalled.

The problem of people there was survival. Poverty is not that common here, she said, but the youth still have their problems.

It's hard being a youth today trying to find yourself, she said.

Maine W. Band To Play At N.U. Game

The Maine West High School Marching Band will play at Northwestern University's 16th High School Band Day on the Evanston campus this Saturday. The band will join more than 6,000 teenage musicians from 80 Illinois high schools to present a spectacular and colorful half-time show at the Northwestern game against Syracuse University before an anticipated crowd of 40,000.

Maine To Mark Yom Kippur

Yom Kippur, the holiest day of the Jewish New Year, will commence at Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 100 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, with the Kol Nidre Service Tuesday evening, Sept. 28, at 6:15 p.m. Rabbi Jay Katzen and Cantor Harry Solowinich will officiate at the service.

Day long prayers on Wednesday will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude with the blast of the shofar at 7 p.m. A highlight of the Yom Kippur ritual is the Yizkor Memorial Service at 11:00 a.m. The synagogue invites the community to join with it for this segment of the service. No tickets are required for this special section of the service.

The Sabbath of Return — traditionally considered the holiest sabbath of the year, coming before the high holidays — will be observed this weekend with several major services. Early sunset services will be recited on Friday evening, Sept. 24, with a Hebrew-English family service scheduled for 8:00 p.m.

Concert Choir Slated On TV

Maine North High School's Concert Choir will sing at the opening 65th season of WTTW's Chicago Evening Club at 6 p.m. Oct. 3 on Channel 11.

The color television broadcast will feature the 66 choir members and their director, Jack Olander.

The Chicago Evening Club, which has been on WTTW television since 1955, was founded in 1907. It is a nonsectarian club which brings religious speakers into the Chicago area.

Maine North's choir will sing Deo Dignus Gratias by Homilius, Psalm 100 by Zimmerman and In Heaven Above by a Swedish folk song writer.

The choir caroled to Christmas shop this last year at Golf Mill Shopping Center and sang at Maine North's dedication in February. It also toured Boone County, Ill., schools for two days last spring.

Future performances for the choir this year include the Maine West Invitational Sing in October and Maine North's musical "Anything Goes" in November.

Lecturer To Speak

Roger K. Gragstad, lecturer and Channel 26 television personality, will address the Des Plaines Park District Golden Agers Club Oct. 1 at 8 p.m. in the South Park field house, 1600 Howard St.

Historical Society To Meet Tonight

The Des Plaines Historical Society will hold its first meeting of the fall season tonight at 7:30 p.m. in The First Federal Savings and Loan community room, 749 Lee St. Members and guests are invited.

Area Has Foreign Trade Impetus

by LEA TONKIN

Everything from parking meters produced in Elk Grove Village to temperature control systems, turned out in an Arlington Heights plant, and petroleum processing know-how perfected in a Des Plaines research facility is finding its way into foreign markets.

The diversity of Northwest suburban industry creates one of the best potential markets for exporting according to a local U.S. Department of Commerce representative. President Nixon's new economic package including moves to break down trade barriers and improve the U.S. balance of payments outlook may be a boon to these industries but the impetus for foreign trade is already here, said Richard Bronwell, of Arlington Heights, chief of the international trade division in the Commerce Department's Chicago office.

"THIS AREA has the most heterogeneous mixture of any area in the world, creating extra trade possibilities," said Bronwell, speaking of the Northwest suburbs and other areas in northern Illinois peppered with industry. He ticked off a varied list of exports produced in area communities, adding electronics, tooling and marking systems.

"The presidential action could stimulate exports," Bronwell said of the recent imposition of a 10 per cent tariff on many imported goods and the decision to let the value of the dollar float in international markets. Commerce, Treasury and State Department officials are now meeting with foreign nations to work out future trade agreements he said.

New export markets are continually developing according to Bronwell. He added the President's recent removal of some trade restrictions in dealings with Red China could boost trade in certain areas as computers. It will take years for this market to develop he said.

Commerce Department surveys pinpoint product areas with the greatest export potential and the information is passed along to U.S. firms Bronwell said. Electronic data processing is a relatively new but expanding field for area exporters. Other good sellers in foreign markets include food processing; air conditioning and refrigeration; instrumentation; and pumps, valves and compressors.

"THIS AREA accounts for a substantial amount of exports from both large and small companies," Bronwell said. "The recent figures showing the U.S. balance of trade position slipping don't mean that exports are going down, but that imports are going up."

"We are trying to bring more companies into exporting by giving them the know how," Bronwell said. "This includes information on trade shows and foreign conventions, market surveys, names and addresses of potential overseas customers, trade missions and the permanent trade centers in several foreign countries where American manufacturers can exhibit merchandise."

The federal agency works closely with the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development's international marketing section. "Their programs are designed to take the fear out of shipping products overseas," said Frank Stewart, international sales manager of T&F Fluorocarbon Co. in Rolling Meadows. Until April of this year he was head of the Illinois export promotion program.

"THE STATE of Illinois is still expanding its services through an office in Brussels and may open others," according to Stewart. "Dollarwise we're still number two in exporting states, with only California exceeding us. We have a great advantage in the variety of products as well as the link with the St. Lawrence Seaway and other means of transportation."

The T&F firm has made a major commitment in exporting only within the past year, Stewart said. "They sampled the overseas market and found a great potential for their Teflon and silicone coated fibres," he said.

"We are breaking into new foreign markets through trade shows as well as foreign centers," he said. "Most of our efforts are concentrated on distributors of packaging, electrical, processing and general industrial use." Specific uses of T&F's coated fibres include conveyor belts and gaskets.

"Not everyone can export, but if a small company can take an imaginative look at its products, they will often find that they can do this," said Stewart. T&F got its start in a trade show held last November in Paris. Stewart said international airlines, foreign business organization associations as well as federal and state agencies can be of assistance.

WARREN FRANDSEN, T&F president, added a new exporter should be prepared to sink more money into the venture than it will gain until it builds an overseas market for its products. "If any small company thinks it can walk into a foreign market and use it as a dumping ground they soon find it doesn't work," he said. "Every country is different, and they must learn to gear products to their specifications."

President Nixon's new economic policies should be a temporary boon to T&F's exporting efforts, Stewart said. His decision to let the dollar float in world markets in effect dropped its value in relation to other currencies he said. "This somewhat drops our prices in relation to German and Japanese goods as a trade advantage," he said. "The President's imposition of a 10 per cent tariff on foreign goods is a temporary advantage." He believes that a tariff is detrimental in the long run however because it could bring retaliatory measures against U.S. exporters.

THE PROTECTIVE measures announced by the President are a mixed blessing said Robert Swift, vice president and director of international operations for Motorola, Inc., Communications Division. The Schaumburg-based division exports more than it imports so the effect is "generally good," he said.

"It remains to be seen what will happen," he said. "Inflation has made it difficult for us to compete in foreign markets and his moves could slow inflation."

"It does create some problems in dealing with Canada," Swift said. "They're a good customer of ours. It also makes it more difficult to import German goods into the U.S. to be sold by Motorola. The imported goods will cost us more, but we can't raise the price of our finished products."

Motorola is an old-timer in the exporting field. "We now operate in over 100 countries," Swift said. "Our overseas markets for communications systems are growing more rapidly than our U.S. markets." He declined to estimate the firm's annual overseas sales volume, but said it is a "multi-million dollar operation."

"EQUIPPING people with communications is one of the biggest growing areas," Swift said. "That's the exciting part — we used to just equip vehicles." Its foreign sales, largely to commercial, governmental and school security markets, range from a new four ounce FM radio pager to an entire police or governmental communications network.

"We either have our own personnel or a foreign liaison in each country where we work," said Swift. "We have to meet different specifications in each country and this means making the engineering changes and getting government approval."

"You have to hang loose in this business," he said. The strategy and planning are done here but we train personnel to work with overseas operations to maintain the overseas systems."

Swift said the Motorola division is making a gradual changeover to the metric system of measurement used by most foreign nations. It will probably take 10 years or more before this is completed he said.

"It's not a question of whether, but of when," said Bronwell of the metrication program recommended in August by the Commerce Department. U.S. exporters would benefit from its use he said.

WEAPON AGAINST time, the tiny produced by the Schaumburg-based Pageboy II FM radio pager keeps a Motorola, Inc. Communications Division, a large area exporter.

Maine East Speech, Debate Students Cited

Several speech and debate students from Maine East High School in Park Ridge won awards for their work at study institutes and in tournaments during the summer.

Seniors Dave Novak and Cathy Karp, both from Morton Grove, attended the five-week Northwestern University National High School Institute in speech. Dave received the Robinson Award, the highest award presented during the summer course, for his work in the program's extensive training in drama.

Seven Maine East debaters attended the two-week summer debate institute at Baylor University in Waco, Tex. A national tournament concluded the institute and Neil Blumenfeld of Morton Grove won the varsity competition. Lynn Hofmeister of Park Ridge won second place and third place was shared by Bob Feldhake of Des Plaines and Harvey Morris of Morton Grove.

MAINE EAST ALSO won a first in the novice division of the tournament through the efforts of Keith Gershon of Morton Grove.

Blumenfeld, Feldhake and Morris tied in gaining points for the highest speaker award at the Baylor institute.

A two-week National Champion Debate Institute was held at Elmhurst College this summer and 11 Maine East debaters attended. According to debate coach Robert Swanson, it is the third largest debate institute in the world.

Out of 71 students from across the country who attended, Blumenfeld won first place in the final tournament. Maureen Arnold of Morton Grove placed third and Feldhake was the top speaker, gathering the most total points

Name 43 National Merit Semi-Finalists In Area

Winners of four-year Merit Scholarships may receive up to $1,500 a year for four college years, depending on their individual need. Winners of the National Merit $1000 Scholarships will receive their nonrenewable one-time awards upon enrollment as full-time students in accredited U.S. colleges or universities.

High school grades, accomplishments, leadership qualities, and extracurricular activities of the finalists are evaluated, along with test scores, in selecting Merit Scholarship winners.

Names of the winners in the 1971-72 Merit Scholarship Program will be announced in the spring of 1972. Some 28,000 students have received Merit Scholarships in the sixteen annual programs to date. About $81 million in financial assistance to Merit Scholars and their colleges has been expended or committed through the Merit Program.

Stroll Through The Halls Of Des Plaines History

by ELEANOR RIVES

Let's take an old-fashioned walk through an old-fashioned house. The year is 1907. This is the home of the Kinder family, pioneer Des Plaines merchants. The golden oak woodwork, the sparkling beveled glass windows, the guided radiators, all spelled home to the Kinders. Doors had transoms then. Electric fixtures, new and not completely dependable, kept their gas attachment . . . just in case.

Now, in 1971, the Kinder home is the home of the Des Plaines Historical Society. Some of its rooms are being painstakingly restored to represent home life of that era. Some rooms house special historical exhibits. And some guard the records and artifacts of the history of Des Plaines.

HEAVY PLUSH portieres separate the ample reception hall from the front parlor, the most elegant room in the house. Here the important formal events of family life took place — from marriage ceremonies to wakes. When the minister called, he may have been seated in the beige settee or the large brown wicker rocker with its patchwork pillow. Perhaps the Edison cylinder phonograph was rasping out "The Rosary" from its flaring red tulip-shaped horn.

Completing the look of "company elegance" are the lace curtained windows, pictures suspended from the lowered moldings of the 9½-foot high room, the Victorian wallpaper abounding in brown medallions and gold stripes.

The "parlor desk," a combination secretary-bookcase, adds dignity to the room, its imposing exterior mellowed by the glow of an orange and green Tiffany-type lamp. No children's toys strayed into this room. No children, either.

BUT THE BACK PARLOR — ah, that was a different story. Adjoining the front parlor and usually shut off by closed doors, it was the early 1900 version of today's family room.

The Des Plaines Historical Society uses this room for temporary exhibits, an ever-changing panorama of historical artifacts. The current exhibit by the First Chicago Bottle Club includes old bottles from the Des Plaines Dairy and Walton's Pharmacy, old "inks," canning jars dating from 1854, bitters, sodas, beer and whiskey bottles, figurals and food and cosmetic bottles.

On to the dining room where the heavy oak table with its massive legs is dressed up with a hand-crocheted tablecloth. Sets of dishes and glassware line the shelves of both the built-in cupboard with leaded glass doors and the golden oak china cupboard with its handcarved gargoyles and huge claw feet.

PAUSING IN THE pantry as we proceed to the kitchen, any housewife can easily slip back 70 years as she notes the incredibly large flour bin, the old cabbage shredder, lard press and wooden potato masher, the sausage press, the dough mixer for bread — even the mortar and pestle used by Socrates Rand's mother, Dolly Rice Rand, to grind her spices.

The kitchen table, covered in red gingham oilcloth, brings warmth to a kitchen that would have been warm anyway, what with the coal cookstove constantly in use for baking, warming water, cooking meals and roasting coffee beans. Does it work today? Indeed it does. Mrs. Donald L. Robbins of Des Plaines proved it by baking bread — and it was delicious!

THE OLD ICEBOX against the wall would frustrate any woman of today for much of its small interior was taken up by the block of ice, brought in the tongs of the iceman when the "Ice" sign appeared in the window. A "window icebox," cooled only by outdoor temperatures, supplemented the regular icebox in the winter months.

Milady of the early 1900s had lovely soft water for washing her hair, for example, and her water softener was Mother Nature. Rain water, collected in a cistern in the attic, could be turned on at a third faucet in the kitchen sink.

Up we now go to the second floor on the narrow rear staircase, each stair protected by metal "dust corners." Whoops! Who is that woman primping in the bathroom at the head of the stairs? Just a model of an old-fashioned housewife dressed in long sheer cotton skirt and lacy cotton blouse. A clawfoot tub, huge wicker hamper, a drying rack, tie press and fat massager add 1900 atmosphere to this room which still has its original linoleum floor.

THE WAR MEMORIAL Room is a showcase for exhibits by local school children, such as the World War I battlefield made by Darrick Vorman or the Fort Dearborn replica made by Mark Romanowski. Uniforms, medals, firearms, swords, an intricate ship model, Civil War drums — they're all there in the War Room.

The next bedroom is used for general displays. The present spinning and quilting exhibit is centered around a patchwork coverlet being quilted on a quilting frame. Other unusual quilts drape the room. Raw wool, flax comb, spinning wheel and wool winder tell their stories, as does the sideboard display telling how onion skins, cochineal beetles, alum, turmeric, marigolds, oak leaves and other materials were used to produce certain dyes.

In the Municipal Room, signs shout "Peter M. Hoffman for Sheriff," "Kinder for Mayor," above the odds-and-ends assortment of pictures and documents from Des Plaines history. At one end of the room sedately stands an 18-pigeonhole post office — Des Plaines' first — that originally sat in the town's general store.

THE FRONT BEDROOM has been designated the "Women's and Children's Room." Would you like to buy a genuine wristwatch for 59 cents? Or temple spectacles? Or a nutmeg grinder? They are all listed in the mail order catalog there.

Old-fashioned wedding gowns are displayed on dress forms; old dolls, doll buggies, cradles and cribs furnish the room.

Descending the wide, formal, bannistered front stairway, we arrive back where we started, in the reception hall. It was a fascinating old-fashioned walk. But don't take my word for it — see for yourself. There's more — much more — to be seen and absorbed and there are Park District Golden Agers to serve as your guide.

As the stitched sampler on the kitchen wall says, "Peace Be Unto This House," for it is a treasury of the tranquility of a bygone age.

Museum Guides Needed

The Des Plaines Historical Society at 777 Lee St. is open for your pleasure Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays from 2 to 4 p.m. Admittance fees are 25 cents per person or 50 cents per family. Group tours, arranged by special appointment, are free.

At present, members of the Des Plaines Golden Agers are serving as guides, but more guides are desperately needed. An increase in the number would mean an increase in the number of hours in which the Museum would be open to the public.

Anyone interested in serving as a guide, no matter how little or how much time he can give, may participate in the Guide Training Program to be conducted Sunday, Oct. 3, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Museum. Lunch will be provided. Those interested are asked to register in advance by calling Miss Mary Wright at 297-4912.

SOME HAPPY CHILD of the 1880s in this hand decorated, red and black surrey, complete with fringe on top, proudly took her dolly for an airing

ONE NOOK OF the quilting exhibit displays this handsome red, white and blue, tulip pattern patchwork quilt; a spinning wheel; and a wool winder. In another part of the room stands a quilting frame that once belonged to the family of Jefferson Davis. Woven into a corner of another coverlet are the names of the weavers and the date, 1887.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

THE CHARM AND WARMTH of a kitchen of the early 1900s is captured in this restored room of the Kinder home, left, now the Des Plaines Historical Society's Museum at 777 Lee St. The old kitchen sink has three faucets: hot, cold and soft. Well water flowed through the hot and cold faucets; rain water, collected in a cistern in the attic, photo below, came through the soft faucet.

Speaking Of . . .

Fall Cleaning 'By The Book'

by KAY MARSH

Dirty days hath September — and so, alas, does every other month.

But the season's the reason and the autumn equinox turns every reluctant housekeeper's conscience toward the fall housecleaning that we somehow never quite finished in any recent fall. Let's consider then what the academics call a review of the literature in search of a rationale, pragmatic philosophy, motivation or just plain old push.

The "I Hate To Housekeep Book" is my own favorite practical guide to instant housekeeping. The witty Peg Bracken covers such relevant topics as "How to Remember to Remember" and "Don't Just Do Something, Sit There." But probably her most helpful contribution is the idea that anything worth doing is worth doing half way. It's better, she says, to take a fast swipe at a spot now than to wait until you can remember to buy that new miracle cleaning product that everybody's talking about.

On the other hand, just buying the new product can often inspire you to get on with the job. If you've spent $1.89, you certainly want to get your money's worth. Besides, there's a doubling consumer in all of us. For instance, am I looking for something I read about called DWR? It's supposed to be a Dirty Word Remover for walls and I can hardly wait to see if it works on clean words, too.

ANOTHER GOOD BOOK is Carol G.

Eisen's "Nobody Said You Had to Eat Off the Floor" (though with all the milk spilled in our kitchen, I suspect we have more nutrition per foot of vinyl than anywhere else in the house). Anyway, this psychiatrist's wife offers both help for your housekeeping hangups and a style that's fun to read.

Phyllis Diller's manual on housewifery takes an even more light-hearted approach. For instance, she suggests that you leave out the ironing board or vacuum, then dab furniture polish behind your ears so that everyone will think you've been slaving away.

But ultimately you actually have to slave away to get your house clean. And my favorite suggestion on motivation is that you have a party.

Yes, there's brunkmanship involved in inviting guests when you haven't "shoveled out" since May. Will you or won't you make it? But somehow the family will rally around and your house will look squeaky clean when your doorbell rings. It may even be squeaky clean, if you start with the upstairs linen closet. Which isn't a bad idea, since there's something about a clean linen closet that gives a woman a secret sense of power, like wearing lacy lingerie under your cotton shirtwaist dress.

Besides, it's good one-upmanship to put the last first, starting with some small, esoteric task. If you mention over morning coffee that you just marked all your linens, washed plastic-coated playing cards, dusted old teabags, or whatever, your neighbors naturally conclude that you'd deal with such trivia only after completing window washing, ceiling scrubbing and all the other basic drudgery.

LIB GLIB is another boon to those of us who hate to clean. Your typical woman's lib lady preaches a casual approach, assuming that most of us have more interesting things to do than clean house. (And who on earth doesn't?)

But the idea of non-sexist child raising is, to my mind, the greatest contribution of the lib literature. It's reassuring to know that you can borrow a son's muscle power and, at the same time, steer him away from old-fashioned sexual stereotypes. Of course, you have to catch him first. Our oldest-child-nominally-in-residence, a male almost 6 foot 4, is an expert at hiding on a football field or basketball court. However, I'm hoping for a few days between seasons when I can put him to work at home.

Unfortunately, by the time your male offspring is big enough and old enough to be of real help, he's also smart enough to think of more sophisticated excuses. He may, for instance, tell you that of course he'd be delighted to clean up his room but that such drastic action would disturb the delicate ecological balance.

On second thought, he just might well be right. At any rate, it's a new and timely reason to forget all about your fall housecleaning. At least until next year.

NORTHWEST ASSOCIATION OF NURSERY SCHOOLS

"Evaluating the Curriculum to Meet the Needs of the Pre-School Child — Emotionally — Socially — Academically — Physically" is the 1971-72 theme for the Northwest Association of Nursery Schools.

Formed four years ago, 50 schools now participate in the Association.

The first meeting of the group will be a director's workshop Monday in the Community Nursery School of Mount Prospect, 407 N. Maine with Mrs. Virginia Page as hostess. Coffee will be served at 7:30 and the meeting will begin at 8 a.m. with Miss Rose Foster, supervisor of Day Care Licensing, Chicago Region of the Department of Children and Family Services for the State of Illinois, speaking on "A Good Administrator Is."

MAINE WEST MOTHERS

"Friendship is Hamid Rahim" announces the Maine West Mother's Club in planning its welcome gathering. Hamid Rahim is Maine West's exchange student from Afghanistan. Students, parents and anyone interested are invited to the affair to be held Sunday, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the teacher's lounge at the school. Rahim is spending the year at the home of the Paul Rivals of Center Street.

Card playing groups have again been organized to raise funds for scholarships for graduating seniors at Maine West. An opportunity to win a trophy is offered to anyone joining these groups. Anyone interested in either day or evening card groups may call Mrs. Gene Sutterfield at 296-4145.

Tickets for Maine West Mother's Club's benefit performance of "Kiss Me Kate" to be presented Sunday, Oct. 3, at 7:30 p.m. are available. Priced at $3 per person, they may be obtained by contacting any Mother's Club board member, the Gladstone Realty on Lee St. or the theater party chairman, Mrs. Jack Scarff, 824-8948.

JUNIOR WOMAN'S CLUB

The Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines will hold their first meeting of the new club year, Sept. 28 at the Northwest Suburban YMCA, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

Women interested in learning more about the Juniors will find this meeting quite informative as the new chairmen will be announcing the projects they have planned for the year.

Those wishing further information are asked to contact Mrs. Richard Funk, Membership chairman, at 824-8230.

It's Apple Picking Time

by MARILYN HALLMAN

Ancient Romans prized them. People in Israel dip them in honey for good luck on New Year's Day. And we have fun picking and eating. APPLES Several nearby orchards invite you to pick your own bushel basket full.

BYSTRICKY'S ORCHARD — 4204 N. Rte. 47, five miles north of Woodstock, Ill. Picking began Sept. 18 for Jonathans, will start Sept. 25 for Red Delicious and Oct. 2 for Golden Delicious. Hours are Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. until sundown. Ready picked apples are also sold. Children are welcome to enjoy all the apples they can eat while here, says Mr. Bystricky, but he isn't responsible for stomach aches.

HEINZ ORCHARD — Atkinson Road, 1½ mile north of Rte. 176, east of Libertyville, Ill. Golden Delicious apples will be ready to pick Oct. 9. Hours are from sunrise to sunset on weekends only. Pickers are asked not to throw apples or shake tree branches while in the orchard.

ORIOLE SPRINGS ORCHARDS — State Line Road, one mile north of Hwy. 173 and four miles east of Richmond, Ill. Picking Jonathans began Sept. 18; Red Delicious will start Sept. 25, and Golden Delicious, Oct. 2, daily from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Visitors are also invited to see apples graded and packed in the Red Barn on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons they may also see a cider press in action. Fresh doughnuts, cold cider, smoked meats and other goodies are also for sale here.

Conference For Widows, Widowers

Catholic widows and widowers are invited to attend a conference at St. Mary's School Hall on Center Street just south of Prairie Avenue, Des Plaines this Sunday from 2-5 p.m.

A priest, an attorney and other speakers will answer questions pertinent to the problems of widowhood.

St. John's Chapter of NAIM will host the conference. Naim is an organization to help Catholic widows and widowers adjust to their loss and to their new state in life and affords them the opportunity to meet others in the same situation.

St. John's urges those eligible to also attend their monthly meeting this Friday, at 8:30 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 760 Pearson St., Des Plaines.

For more information interested persons are asked to call 824-3366. Members come from Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Anyone who has the notion that American consumers buy everything ready-made and are helpless if things don't come just so ought to see the flow of letters from women describing the way their "shorten too long" shirt sleeves for their husbands and sons. Practically all women sleeves at the cuff, sometimes difficult as the body of the sleeve has to be taken in to adjust to the width of the cuff. This is the way I've always shortened sleeves in self, but thought it time to check with a high quality store to get the rundown on the standard tailoring practice. If the sleeve is 2 inches too long, 1 inch is subtracted from the shoulder and 1 inch from the cuff end. They do not tinker with sleeves more than 2 inches too long. Makes good sense to me.

Dear Dorothy: Someone told me recently to clean my costume jewelry with toothpaste. It does a beautiful job. — J. L. Kerfoot

Marilyn Kolpin Is A Mrs.

The summertime meeting two years ago of Marilyn J. Kolpin and Bradley J. Schmidt resulted in their summertime marriage Aug. 15. The Rev. W. B. Streufert presided over the 5 p.m. double ring ceremony at St. John Lutheran Church

Mount Prospect.

Marilyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin J. Kolpin, 435 W. Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines, and 44 year residents of the community. Bradley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schmidt of Dundee, Ill.

Marilyn came down the aisle in a floor-length gown with a Venise lace bodice, chiffon skirt, and chiffon bishop sleeves, edged in lace. Her finger tip veil was edged in lace which matched that on the bodice of her dress and was held in place by a lace and seeded pearl bishop shaped crown. Lace also trimmed her detachable train. Marilyn carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, Papi mums and pink roses.

MARY CRABBE, a friend from Des Plaines, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Bette Kolpin, a cousin from Arlington Heights, Barbara Wiese, a friend from Roselle, Ill., Chris Cook, a friend from Roselle, and junior bridesmaid Bonnie Von Bergen, a cousin from Hampshire, Ill.

The attendants wore pink chiffon gowns with pink and white embroidered bodices, A-line skirts and long chiffon sleeves. They carried cascade bouquets of summer flowers.

Tom Phillips, a friend from Streamwood, Ill., was best man. Ushers included Kenneth Kolpin, Marilyn's brother from Houston, Tex., Michael Thebold, a friend from Princeville, Ill., and David and Allan Schmidt, Bradley's nephews from Richmond, Va.

A reception was held at Salt Creek Golf Club. Marilyn and Bradley are at home in Carpentersville, Ill.

Marilyn is a graduate of Elk Grove High School and is a senior at Northern Illinois University, majoring in accounting. Bradley is a graduate of Dundee High School and the University of Illinois. He received his degree in mechanical engineering and is employed with Illinois Tool Works.

Organ, Trumpets Sound At Wedding

Trumpeters Roy Hansen and Paul Busch of Des Plaines heralded the beginning and end of the musical wedding ceremony of Janet Ann Decho and Robert Scott Chamberlin. Janet is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell J. Decho of West Chester, Ill. Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth I. Chamberlin, 1342 Earl Ave., Des Plaines.

Purcell's Trumpet Voluntary in D Major echoed through the chapel of Divine Infant Catholic Church in West Chester as Janet came down the aisle wearing a Victorian styled high collared gown of organza over tulle with billowy organza sleeves. The bodice was inlaid with appliques which were repeated in the gown and cathedral train. Her three tiered illusion veil was fastened to a hairpiece of Stephanotis and baby's breath. Janet carried a colonial bouquet of Stephanotis, yellow garter roses and baby's breath.

The Rev. Leon R. Wagner presided over the Aug. 14, 3 p.m. double ring ceremony. James C. Thumler, music director of Christ Church in Des Plaines, provided organ interludes. The Rev. R. K. Wobbe of Christ Church also attended the ceremony and offered a special prayer for the couple.

JANET CHOSE her sister JoAnn for her maid of honor. JoAnn wore a spring yellow embroidered dotted swiss gown with an apple green ribbon woven through the sash. An apple green choker and apple green ribbon on her flower basket continued the color theme. In her basket were white and yellow French carnations, white daisies and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids Susan Decho, Janet's sister, Susan Chamberlin, Robert's sister, and Janet's friend Phyllis Bogorad wore dresses the same as the maid of honor's except yellow ribbons were woven in the sash. Their chokers and basket ribbons were also of yellow. Carolyn Decho was junior bridesmaid for her sister wearing the same ensemble only with mint green ribbons in her sash, on her basket and as a choker.

Gary Horwath of Carol Stream, Ill., was best man for Robert. James Christensen, Des Plaines, John Austin, formerly of Des Plaines, and Kenneth Thompson, Des Plaines, were groomsmen. Ushers included Janet's brother David and Robert's brother Steven.

SEVEN-year-old Elaine Decho was flower girl. Elaine wore a white embroidered dotted swiss gown with a yellow ribbon through the sash. She carried a wicker basket, decorated with a yellow ribbon of white and yellow French carnations and wore a yellow choker.

A reception for 150 guests was held at the American Legion Hall in Broadview, Ill. Following the reception the couple left for a two-week honeymoon in Colorado and New Mexico. They are making Carol Stream their home.

Janet is a graduate of Proviso West High School and is attending the University of Illinois majoring in Spanish. Robert is a Mame West graduate and received a bachelor's in music from Elmhurst College. He is employed with Lyon-Healy in Oak Park.
